A.F.L. Asks Stabilizer For Rations

Economic Director Is Logical Leader, Report of Resolution Group Says

Truce Is Sought

Pact With C. I. O. Group Is Aim; Arnold Is Under Fire

Toronto, Oct. 13 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor urged today that all rationing in the United States be placed under the director of economic stabilization.

Underlining the executive council's criticism of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, the resolutions committee brought in a report calling attention to "a difference between price control and rationing."

"One," the report said, "deals only with commodities, while the other extends to human living and regulates daily habits. One is a technical field and the other is concerned with human values."

The report said there were only 1,600 labor representatives on 5,000 rationing boards and recommended that "administration of all rationing should be placed under the director of economic stabilization and that representative local boards be set up for this purpose."

Rationing, like price control, already are a part of the over-all job supervised by the director of economic stabilization, but they are directly administered by Henderson.

The same report, adopted unanimously by the convention, criticized Henderson indirectly for his views on wage control.

The executive council's annual report, not mentioning Henderson by name, had criticized the Office of Price Administration severely for what it termed indecision and lack of courage.

The American Federation of Labor favors an immediate armistice with the C.I.O. but has declared war on the National Labor Relations Board and Thurman Arnold, the anti-trust chief of the U. S. Justice Department.

Reports on the three subjects were submitted to the federation's convention yesterday by the resolutions committee and all were approved by a voice vote without dissent.

One report condemned Arnold for his anti-trust suits against organized labor and asked that Attorney General Francis Biddle investigate "to ascertain whether Mr. Thurman Arnold has exploited the prestige of his public office for his own material and financial gain."

(Attorney General Biddle said last night in New York city: "I don't see why they want to investigate Mr. Arnold, who is simply doing his duty. However, I'd be glad to hold an investigation—it would show what an efficient public official Mr. Arnold is. He hits them on both sides of the table.")

The report was not in usual resolution form but was drafted by the committee as comment upon an executive council report dealing with anti-trust actions brought by Arnold against labor unions.

Besides recommending an investigation of Arnold by Biddle, it was recommended that a special committee present the two reports—that of the resolutions committee and that of the executive council—to President Roosevelt.

The report on the C.I.O. approved the resumption of negotiations, beginning next month, "so that unity can be re-established under the banner of the American Federation of Labor."

A third report by the resolutions committee said "the administration of the National Labor Relations Act, despite improvements resulting from legislative and other efforts of the federation, continues to present important deficiencies and serious problems.

"The executive council's report indicates that the American Federation of Labor is still victimized by the prejudice of subordinate officials of the board and by erroneous decisions of the board itself growing out of its absolute power to determine what form and structure trade union organization in this country should take."

In its long report dealing with Arnold, the federation's resolution committee said:

". . . We witnessed the astounding spectacle of a public servant, drawing his salary from the public funds under cover of being a public prosecutor, devoting as much, if not more, time toward appearances before widely publicized legislative committees that may not even have been considering matters connected with anti-trust, traveling about the country as a star attraction of commercial lecture bureaus, and writing a steady flow of articles that are being published in many commercial magazines, as he does in presenting legal arguments before legal tribunals."

Stimson Asks Draft Include Men of 18, 19

Willkie to Give His Reply Soon

Roosevelt Emissary Ready 'to Open Up' When He Lands in U. S.

Edmonton, Alberta, Oct. 13 (AP)—Wendell Willkie intimated here that he would have something to say about "flippant statements made by certain public officials" concerning his second front utterance in Moscow after he arrives in the United States.

Willkie left for Minneapolis this morning on the final leg of a globe-girdling flight which took him to Africa, the Middle East, Russia, China, Siberia and Alaska. He arrived at Fairbanks, Alaska, Sunday after flying across Mongolia and Siberia. He left China last Friday after touring the battlefront.

"I have collected much material and reached certain conclusions about our war effort, and about other countries and our relations with them," Willkie said. "I have already reported some of my conclusions to the American people, and some to the President.

"I shall be in the United States shortly, and I shall report to my fellow citizens further and in full, and to the President, if he wishes, on such subjects as he desires to discuss with me."

"Incidentally," Willkie's statement continued, "as to flippant statements made by certain public officials concerning the expression of my opinion in Russia on the question of a second front, I did not deem it appropriate or in good taste for me to reply to such personalities or flippancies while I was in other countries. I felt it my duty while abroad to uphold the hand of the President and all other United Nations officials, which I continued to do even after such remarks were made."

While in Moscow, Willkie made a statement urging speed in opening a second front and said that perhaps the military leaders needed prodding by the public. The statement evoked widespread comment in both Washington and London.

At his press conference in Washington October 6, President Roosevelt said in reply to questions about Willkie's call for a second front that he had read only the headlines and did not consider the stories worthwhile reading.

Mr. Roosevelt added that he regarded the stories as purely speculative.

On October 9, at another press conference, the President told his listeners that everything was all

Secretary of War Urges House Committee to Speed Measure to Aid Army

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Stressing a need for "exceptional soldiers," Secretary of War Stimson urged the House military affairs committee today to expedite legislation for the drafting of 18 and 19 year old men.

In a letter to Chairman May (D.-Ky.), Stimson said the urgency of the task of building up for the United States the best army in the world "cannot be overemphasized."

"Our own survival is in the balance," he said. "Its accomplishment demands the substitution of current necessity for our peacetime preferences."

Stimson said the necessity for lowering the draft age was this:

"That our army be animated by the youthful enthusiasms and resilience of spirit which has surged through all earlier American armies; that in our human desire to protect the youth of our land we remember the terrific pace of modern war, that we realize, above every consideration, the imperative necessity of creating an army as quickly as possible more efficient, more determined, more ardent than Europe and Asia can produce after ten years of concentrated training and indoctrination.

"Youth zealous for power and destruction of liberty is the strength of our enemies' armies. American youth is our strength and despite our wishful thinking or the dictates of our hearts, the virility of our effort must take precedence. We must face this truth; I should be derelict in my responsibility to this country and its heritage should I fail to voice it."

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Congressional leaders took President Roosevelt's call for an army of strong young men to carry the war to the Axis as their cue today for speedy action on legislation to lower the draft age from 20 to 18.

The President, in telling the nation last night that he believed it would be necessary to lower the minimum age limit for Selective Service to 18, said:

"We have learned how inevitable that is—and how important to the speeding up of victory."

Chairman May (D.-Ky.) of the House military committee, who previously had said he would have to be convinced of the need of drafting younger men, declared that in the light of the President's speech his committee would ex-

Navy Takes Over Explosive Plants; Three Are Arrested on Bribery Charges

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Navy took possession today of the plant of Triumph Explosives, Inc., at Elkton, Md., and two subsidiaries at Milford, Del., and the White House announced that the F. B. I. had arrested a plant vice president and an Army and Navy inspector on bribery charges.

A White House statement said the inspectors were charged with accepting bribes in the guise of "service fees" and that the Navy's "preliminary investigation indicates that more than $1,000,000 in management 'irregularities' may be involved."

The Navy took over the plants under terms of a presidential executive order which said it was desirous that they be operated "effectively and safely."

Those arrested, the White House said, were Josef Ben Decker, executive vice president of Triumph; J. A. McCambridge, until recently civilian Army inspector at the Triumph plant, and Reginald Gregory, chief civilian Navy inspector at Triumph.

The two subsidiaries taken under governmental control are the Milford Ordnance Company and the Sussex Ordnance Company. All have been placed in charge of Commander A. B. McCrary, acting for the Army and Navy.

Details of the bribery charges were not immediately available from the White House. It said more arrests were expected.

The arrest of Decker, McCambridge and Gregory, the White House said, resulted from an audit by the renegotiation section of the Navy procurement office which "uncovered numerous instances" of bribery in the Triumph Company management.

Marines Enlarge Their Hold Upon Guadalcanal and Inflict 'Many Casualties' on Japanese

Reds Repulse Nazis Around Grozny; Stalingrad Lull Ends

Astoria Seaman Relates How Plane Was Heard, Flare Lighted Ship, Firing Began

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—An unexpected night encounter with a hard-hitting, sharp-shooting Japanese battle force burned vivid images of flaming guns and ships in the memories of the survivors of three heavy U. S. cruisers sunk off Tulagi harbor August 9.

Some of the men who lived through that night of horror have reached San Francisco. The navy has permitted them to tell something of what happened.

Lynn F. Hager, a tall, sharp-eyed Texan, was on sky control watch on the Astoria. The night was black under thick, low clouds. He could not see the other two cruisers, the Vincennes and the Quincy, which moved along with the Astoria on their circular patrol of the harbor mouth.

Hager's keen ears picked up the ominous moan of an airplane. He flashed a message to the bridge. Word was sent to the captain.

Suddenly the night gave way to a glaring white as a flare burst through the clouds a few hundred feet above the ship. Simultaneously from the southern end of Tulagi Bay, a searchlight pinioned the Astoria for a brief moment.

The light snapped off. Then guns flamed from close quarters and the Astoria shuddered under the impact of shell after shell. Ammunition ready boxes exploded and showered the bridge and the deck with lead.

It was the beginning of the battle that ended only after the three United States fighting ships had been mortally wounded.

"We'd been fighting constantly since the beginning of the Tulagi battle, thirty-six hours before," said Hager, whose home is in Marquez, Tex.

Turret Is Knocked Out

"The first salvo hit us while some of the men were still running to their stations. Right at the beginning, they knocked out one of our turrets.

"As soon as their searchlights picked us up, we turned and started firing to port. It seemed to me that ships were coming at us from both sides. Just then, over from the island on the west of us, a searchlight caught us in its beam.

"Our commander cut loose at the light and after a few minutes the light went out in a kind of a big puff. Lieut. Commander E. K. Wakefield was directing the fire. He was one good officer. He had lost his binoculars and after looking around a minute he asked to borrow mine. He took a look through the glasses I handed him and said, 'well, that's one Jap who'll never throw another shell at us.'

"But we kept getting hit.

"Men up on the sky control kept dropping. They were scattered around the decks. One of the officers went down to take some of the men from a sick bay * * * but there wasn't any sick bay left. It had got a direct hit."

When it was no longer possible to fight the burning ship, orders were given to abandon. Hager said he started to help move the wounded off the forecastle but dived overboard to get a raft that seemed to be in good condition. He did not get back to the ship.

Francis M. Williamson, of Petersburg, Va., was on the Quincy. He told of getting aboard a life raft after the cruiser had been abandoned and of signalling a U. S. destroyer with a flashlight.

"While we were in the water," Williamson said, "there was one guy close to me. He had almost his whole body shot away. Once he said, very quiet, "I can't last more than 15 or 20 minutes more. I got a hundred dollars in my pocket here if it'll do you fellows any good.' But nobody took it."

Hager told of rescue ships firing their machineguns to drive off the sharks that had been attracted by the men struggling in the water.

"When the destroyer came up on us, she was firing," he said. "We thought she was Japanese, fixing to machinegun us."

Hager suggested to the men with him on the raft that they leave it and scatter in the water so they would not offer so easy

Struggle for Caucasian Oil Turns to Soviet Advantage; Stalingrad Battle Resumes on Small Scale

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Russia's Caucasian Armies were officially reported to have thrown back the Germans in the critical struggle for the Grozny oil fields today, while in the 50-day-old siege of Stalingrad a Nazi infantry regiment led by 50 tanks advanced slightly in a costly renewal of the drive toward the Volga.

Breaking a three-day lull, the Germans launched a series of attacks amid the skeleton ruins of Stalingrad, but the Russians declared their defense lines held firm and frustrated a Nazi attempt to smash into a northwest factory district.

For the third consecutive day, Nazi field headquarters made no specific mention of the trend of fighting inside the city, declaring merely:

"Local attempts of attack made by the enemy were nipped in the bud by German and Hungarian troops respectively in the area of Stalingrad and on the Don front."

Even the broad reference to "the Stalingrad area" contained no claims of Nazi gains or even of Nazi offensive.

Battlefront reports said the Germans were now attacking only in single regiments compared with as many as five divisions previously thrown into the assault.

Soviet gunners were credited with stemming the invaders after a minor penetration into one street yesterday.

Dispatches said Russian soldiers were muffled in great coats against the chill of approaching winter, and photographs of long lines of German prisoners showed they were already wearing their winter uniforms.

Nazi headquarters also declared weather conditions were becoming worse.

Pravda said Red army troops still held the Stalin tank plant, Stalingrad's largest industrial works, and reported that damaged tanks were being repaired inside the factory as German shells screamed overhead.

In the central Caucasus, Soviet dispatches reported that the Germans moved fresh divisions and tank columns into the battle, "straining to advance" toward the Grozny oil center, but Soviet counter-attacks scored gains in a number of areas.

In the Don-Volga corridor northwest of Stalingrad, where Marshal Semeon Timoshengo's armies have been pressing a relief counter-offensive along a 40-mile front, operations were described as a combination of trench fighting and warfare of maneuver.

"Our tank crews knocked out three German tanks, smashed five anti-tank guns, and wiped out a company of enemy infantry," Soviet headquarters announced, referring to this sector.

Eight hundred Germans were reported killed and 14 enemy attacks were beaten off in fighting for a single point.

Scene Inside Stalingrad

Russian correspondents gave vivid eye-witness accounts of the scene inside Stalingrad:

"On the horizon, a wide red reflection stretches out for many miles over burning Stalingrad. . . . The houses and streets look as if they were melting in a glow of flames . . . houses come clattering down, throwing up clouds of choking dust as their fragments fall . . . the earth and the river are covered with a pungent smoke.

"The city is in flames and steeped in blood, but it is alive. People are there. Troops are there. There the battle rages."

Soviet dispatches failed to make it clear whether the Germans were attempting to renew their full-scale assault on the Volga metropolis. Berlin last week said

Powers Takes Plea Of Second Degree Murder in Court

Gardiner Man, 66, Will Be Sentenced Friday in Deaths of Joseph and Bridget Neff

Patrick H. Powers, 66, of Gardiner who was charged with the murder of his sister Bridget Neff and her husband Joseph Neff at their summer home near Gardiner on August 28, last, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of murder, second degree, in county court this morning. Powers pleaded guilty to the shooting of Joseph Neff as charged in indictment No. 2987. The aged man was represented by Chris J. Flanagan. Judge Conway postponed sentence until next Friday at 10 o'clock.

Powers said he was born in Port Ewen and gave his present home as Gardiner.

On Friday, August 28, there was apparently an argument at the Neff home over ownership of the premises. Powers had formerly owned the farm but had lost it through foreclosure and it is charged that he shot the couple and then hid the bodies in the cellar. Mr. Neff was 69 and his wife 70. Powers then remained at the premises and on Monday following suspicion of the milkman was aroused by Power's actions. State Police were summoned and when they arrived Powers had barricaded himself in the house and refused to surrender. After an all day siege and gun battle he was finally driven from the house by tear gas and surrendered.

Indictments were later returned and Powers on being arraigned entered a plea of not guilty. Today he changed that plea to guilty.

Wilhelm Million who escaped from Wallkill prison also entered a plea of guilty to that charge. Louis Bruhn appeared for Million and sentence in that case will be pronounced Friday at 10.

In the cases of The People vs. Urban T. Kemble and Myrtle Kemble an application for inspection of the grand jury minutes has been made by Chris J. Flanagan and the case was put over pending decision of that matter. Application was made to Justice Harry E. Schirick for an inspection of the minutes and for a stay of both cases pending determination of the matter. Justice Schirick granted the application for a stay of the trial pending the action of the court on the application for examination of the

Body of Second Drowning Victim Is Recovered From Ashokan Reservoir

The waters of the Ashokan reservoir on Monday gave up the second victim of the triple drowning which on Sunday September 27, claimed the lives of three Tabasco residents. Thus far the bodies of Mrs. Elmer Van Demark and Miss Mary Terwilliger have been recovered. The body of Elmer VanDemark is still missing.

Monday while Lt. Andrew Helgersen, Officer Albert Paulsen of the B. W. S. police and Harold "Chick" Smith of Kingston, an employe of the Board of Water Supply, were cruising along the west bank of the upper basin of the Ashokan they discovered an object floating about three feet off shore and within 50 feet of the spot where the body of Mrs. Van Demark was recovered last Tuesday. Turning their boat to shore they discovered the object to be the body of Miss Terwilliger, 70-year-old victim.

The body which was badly decomposed was brought to shore and Coroner Henry Lamouree of Saugerties was notified. He issued a certificate for removal of the body and gave as his verdict "accidental drowning." The body was taken my the Gormley Ambulance Service of Phoenicia to the Pulling Funeral Home in Ellenville.

It was last Tuesday that Lt. Edward Schwall and Harold Smith recovered the first body as they cruised along the west shore of the upper basin near the Brodhead shore. The scene of both recoveries is perhaps six or seven miles from the place where the car went through a guard rail and into the Esopus creek during the height of a flood. No trace of the car has been found except for parts which were broken from the

Two Japanese Light Cruisers Damaged by Marine Corps Planes in Solomons

Armada Reported

Chinese Say Big Fleet of Jap Vessels Moves in South Pacific

(By the Associated Press)

United States Marines have succeeded in enlarging their hold on strategic Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, the Navy announced today, and in a two-day offensive have inflicted "many casualties" on the Japanese.

The Navy also announced that two Japanese light cruisers had been damaged by U. S. Marine corps aircraft in an attack on a force of two cruisers and four destroyers, October 9 and 11, and said 15 Japanese planes had been destroyed.

A direct hit left one of the enemy cruisers down by the bow off New Georgia Island, 150 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, and minor damage was inflicted in the second cruiser.

"United States Marines succeeded in extending our positions to the westward on the north shore of Guadalcanal Island after two days of offensive operations," a Navy communique said.

"Army fighters assisted by strafing enemy troops and installations, and the enemy suffered many casualties."

The Marines feat in expanding their gains was achieved in the face of Japanese reinforcements which were reported to have landed on the island recently under cover of darkness.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's disclosure that Allied strategy calls for "new offensives against Germany and Japan" was followed today by Chinese reports that a big Japanese armada including four aircraft carriers and seven battleships had been sighted "some time ago" en route toward the south Pacific.

McCain Is Confident

In Washington, Rear Admiral John S. McCain, lately a naval air commander in the southwest Pacific, told newsmen confidently that "we can hold the Solomons and expand them."

Speaking at Secretary Knox's press conference, Admiral McCain said American forces in the strategic Archipelago had already shown "sufficient superiority in material and men" to maintain and enlarge their grip on the islands.

The admiral said that from August 21 to September 17 the Japanese lost 133 planes over Guadalcanal Island to 25 American planes—a ratio of five to one.

A Reuters (British News Agency) dispatch from Chungking, China's war-time capital, quoted a Chinese military spokesman as saying that the Japanese fleet was observed steaming toward the south seas battle theatre.

The report, if true, suggested that the Japanese were diverting their major naval strength to meet the United Nations offensive heralded by Mr. Roosevelt, powerfully reinforcing their badly damaged forces in the southwest zone of operations.

In the Solomon Island campaign alone, the enemy's losses total 38 ships sunk or damaged, against a loss of nine American warships—three cruisers, four transports and two destroyers.

The Navy in Washington revealed late yesterday that the U. S. cruisers Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria were sunk by Japanese gunfire and torpedoes while protecting the landing of American reinforcements in the Tulagi-Guadalcanal area, August 8-9. Most of the American crewmen were saved, the Navy said.

In his broadcast last night, Mr. Roosevelt told the nation that one of the major decisions of Allied strategy already made "relates to the necessity of diverting enemy forces from Russia and China to other theatres of war by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

Axis Is Waning

The President declared that the Axis was waning, while Allied strength was "on the up-grade," and he added:

"Germany and Japan are already realizing what the inevitable result will be when the total strength of the United Nations hits them—at additional places on the earth's surface".

Coupled with this allusion to the establishment of new fronts, the chief executive called for an army of strong young men to carry the war to the Axis and asked Congress to lower the draft age from 20 to 18.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied troops had advanced within 12 miles of the Japanese advance base at Kokoda, at the base of the 5,000-foot Owen

Roosevelt Emissary Ready 'to Open Up' When He Lands in U. S.

Edmonton, Alberta, Oct. 13 (AP)—Wendell Willkie intimated here that he would have something to say about "flippant statements made by certain public officials" concerning his second front utterance in Moscow after he arrives in the United States.

Willkie left for Minneapolis this morning on the final leg of a globe-girdling flight which took him to Africa, the Middle East, Russia, China, Siberia and Alaska. He arrived at Fairbanks, Alaska, Sunday after flying across Mongolia and Siberia. He left China last Friday after touring the battlefront.

"I have collected much material and reached certain conclusions about our war effort, and about other countries and our relations with them," Willkie said. "I have already reported some of my conclusions to the American people, and some to the President.

"I shall be in the United States shortly, and I shall report to my fellow citizens further and in full, and to the President, if he wishes, on such subjects as he desires to discuss with me."

"Incidentally," Willkie's statement continued, "as to flippant statements made by certain public officials concerning the expression of my opinion in Russia on the question of a second front, I did not deem it appropriate or in good taste for me to reply to such personalities or flippancies while I was in other countries. I felt it my duty while abroad to uphold the hand of the President and all other United Nations officials, which I continued to do even after such remarks were made."

While in Moscow, Willkie made a statement urging speed in opening a second front and said that perhaps the military leaders needed prodding by the public. The statement evoked widespread comment in both Washington and London.

At his press conference in Washington October 6, President Roosevelt said in reply to questions about Willkie's call for a second front that he had read only the headlines and did not consider the stories worthwhile reading.

Mr. Roosevelt added that he regarded the stories as purely speculative.

On October 9, at another press conference, the President told his listeners that everything was all

Navy Takes Over Explosive Plants; Three Are Arrested on Bribery Charges

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Navy took possession today of the plant of Triumph Explosives, Inc., at Elkton, Md., and two subsidiaries at Milford, Del., and the White House announced that the F. B. I. had arrested a plant vice president and an Army and Navy inspector on bribery charges.

A White House statement said the inspectors were charged with accepting bribes in the guise of "service fees" and that the Navy's "preliminary investigation indicates that more than $1,000,000 in management 'irregularities' may be involved."

The Navy took over the plants under terms of a presidential executive order which said it was desirous that they be operated "effectively and safely."

Those arrested, the White House said, were Josef Ben Decker, executive vice president of Triumph; J. A. McCambridge, until recently civilian Army inspector at the Triumph plant, and Reginald Gregory, chief civilian Navy inspector at Triumph.

The two subsidiaries taken under governmental control are the Milford Ordnance Company and the Sussex Ordnance Company. All have been placed in charge of Commander A. B. McCrary, acting for the Army and Navy.

Details of the bribery charges were not immediately available from the White House. It said more arrests were expected.

The arrest of Decker, McCambridge and Gregory, the White House said, resulted from an audit by the renegotiation section of the Navy procurement office which "uncovered numerous instances" of bribery in the Triumph Company management.

Marines Enlarge Their Hold Upon Guadalcanal and Inflict 'Many Casualties' on Japanese

Armada Reported

Chinese Say Big Fleet of Jap Vessels Moves in South Pacific

(By the Associated Press)

United States Marines have succeeded in enlarging their hold on strategic Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, the Navy announced today, and in a two-day offensive have inflicted "many casualties" on the Japanese.

The Navy also announced that two Japanese light cruisers had been damaged by U. S. Marine corps aircraft in an attack on a force of two cruisers and four destroyers, October 9 and 11, and said 15 Japanese planes had been destroyed.

A direct hit left one of the enemy cruisers down by the bow off New Georgia Island, 150 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, and minor damage was inflicted in the second cruiser.

"United States Marines succeeded in extending our positions to the westward on the north shore of Guadalcanal Island after two days of offensive operations," a Navy communique said.

"Army fighters assisted by strafing enemy troops and installations, and the enemy suffered many casualties."

The Marines feat in expanding their gains was achieved in the face of Japanese reinforcements which were reported to have landed on the island recently under cover of darkness.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's disclosure that Allied strategy calls for "new offensives against Germany and Japan" was followed today by Chinese reports that a big Japanese armada including four aircraft carriers and seven battleships had been sighted "some time ago" en route toward the south Pacific.

McCain Is Confident

In Washington, Rear Admiral John S. McCain, lately a naval air commander in the southwest Pacific, told newsmen confidently that "we can hold the Solomons and expand them."

Speaking at Secretary Knox's press conference, Admiral McCain said American forces in the strategic Archipelago had already shown "sufficient superiority in material and men" to maintain and enlarge their grip on the islands.

The admiral said that from August 21 to September 17 the Japanese lost 133 planes over Guadalcanal Island to 25 American planes—a ratio of five to one.

A Reuters (British News Agency) dispatch from Chungking, China's war-time capital, quoted a Chinese military spokesman as saying that the Japanese fleet was observed steaming toward the south seas battle theatre.

The report, if true, suggested that the Japanese were diverting their major naval strength to meet the United Nations offensive heralded by Mr. Roosevelt, powerfully reinforcing their badly damaged forces in the southwest zone of operations.

In the Solomon Island campaign alone, the enemy's losses total 38 ships sunk or damaged, against a loss of nine American warships—three cruisers, four transports and two destroyers.

The Navy in Washington revealed late yesterday that the U. S. cruisers Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria were sunk by Japanese gunfire and torpedoes while protecting the landing of American reinforcements in the Tulagi-Guadalcanal area, August 8-9. Most of the American crewmen were saved, the Navy said.

In his broadcast last night, Mr. Roosevelt told the nation that one of the major decisions of Allied strategy already made "relates to the necessity of diverting enemy forces from Russia and China to other theatres of war by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

Axis Is Waning

The President declared that the Axis was waning, while Allied strength was "on the up-grade," and he added:

"Germany and Japan are already realizing what the inevitable result will be when the total strength of the United Nations hits them—at additional places on the earth's surface".

Coupled with this allusion to the establishment of new fronts, the chief executive called for an army of strong young men to carry the war to the Axis and asked Congress to lower the draft age from 20 to 18.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied troops had advanced within 12 miles of the Japanese advance base at Kokoda, at the base of the 5,000-foot Owen

Reds Repulse Nazis Around Grozny; Stalingrad Lull Ends

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Russia's Caucasian Armies were officially reported to have thrown back the Germans in the critical struggle for the Grozny oil fields today, while in the 50-day-old siege of Stalingrad a Nazi infantry regiment led by 50 tanks advanced slightly in a costly renewal of the drive toward the Volga.

Breaking a three-day lull, the Germans launched a series of attacks amid the skeleton ruins of Stalingrad, but the Russians declared their defense lines held firm and frustrated a Nazi attempt to smash into a northwest factory district.

For the third consecutive day, Nazi field headquarters made no specific mention of the trend of fighting inside the city, declaring merely:

"Local attempts of attack made by the enemy were nipped in the bud by German and Hungarian troops respectively in the area of Stalingrad and on the Don front."

Even the broad reference to "the Stalingrad area" contained no claims of Nazi gains or even of Nazi offensive.

Battlefront reports said the Germans were now attacking only in single regiments compared with as many as five divisions previously thrown into the assault.

Soviet gunners were credited with stemming the invaders after a minor penetration into one street yesterday.

Dispatches said Russian soldiers were muffled in great coats against the chill of approaching winter, and photographs of long lines of German prisoners showed they were already wearing their winter uniforms.

Nazi headquarters also declared weather conditions were becoming worse.

Pravda said Red army troops still held the Stalin tank plant, Stalingrad's largest industrial works, and reported that damaged tanks were being repaired inside the factory as German shells screamed overhead.

In the central Caucasus, Soviet dispatches reported that the Germans moved fresh divisions and tank columns into the battle, "straining to advance" toward the Grozny oil center, but Soviet counter-attacks scored gains in a number of areas.

In the Don-Volga corridor northwest of Stalingrad, where Marshal Semeon Timoshengo's armies have been pressing a 'relief' counter-offensive along a 40-mile front, operations were described as a combination of trench fighting and warfare of maneuver.

"Our tank crews knocked out three German tanks, smashed five anti-tank guns, and wiped out a company of enemy infantry." Soviet headquarters announced, referring to this sector.

Eight hundred Germans were reported killed and 14 enemy attacks were beaten off in fighting for a single point.

Scene Inside Stalingrad

Russian correspondents gave vivid eye-witness accounts of the scene inside Stalingrad:

"On the horizon, a wide red reflection stretches out for many miles over burning Stalingrad. . . . The houses and streets look as if they were melting in a glow of flames . . . houses come clattering down, throwing up clouds of choking dust as their fragments fall . . . the earth and the river are covered with a pungent smoke.

"The city is in flames and steeped in blood, but it is alive. People are there. Troops are there. There the battle rages."

Soviet dispatches failed to make it clear whether the Germans were attempting to renew their full-scale assault on the Volga metropolis. Berlin last week said

Cruisers' Crews Tell of Deadly Japanese Shells

Astoria Seaman Relates How Plane Was Heard, Flare Lighted Ship, Firing Began

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—An unexpected night encounter with a hard-hitting, sharp-shooting Japanese battle force burned vivid images of flaming guns and ships in the memories of the survivors of three heavy U. S. cruisers sunk off Tulagi harbor August 9.

Some of the men who lived through that night of horror have reached San Francisco. The navy has permitted them to tell something of what happened.

Lynn F. Hager, a tall, sharp-eyed Texan, was on sky control watch on the Astoria. The night was black under thick, low clouds. He could not see the other two cruisers, the Vincennes and the Quincy, which moved along with the Astoria on their circular patrol of the harbor mouth.

Hager's keen ears picked up the ominous moan of an airplane. He flashed a message to the bridge. Word was sent to the captain.

Suddenly the night gave way to a glaring white as a flare burst through the clouds a few hundred feet above the ship. Simultaneously from the southern end of Tulagi Bay, a searchlight pinioned the Astoria for a brief moment.

The light snapped off. Then guns flamed from close quarters and the Astoria shuddered under the impact of shell after shell. Ammunition ready boxes exploded and showered the bridge and the deck with lead.

It was the beginning of the battle that ended only after the three United States fighting ships had been mortally wounded.

"We'd been fighting constantly since the beginning of the Tulagi battle, thirty-six hours before," said Hager, whose home is in Marquez, Tex.

Turret Is Knocked Out

"The first salvo hit us while some of the men were still running to their stations. Right at the beginning, they knocked out one of our turrets.

"As soon as their searchlights picked us up, we turned and started firing to port. It seemed to me that ships were coming at us from both sides. Just then, over from the island on the west of us, a searchlight caught us in its beam.

"Our commander cut loose at the light and after a few minutes the light went out in a kind of a big puff. Lieut. Commander E. K. Wakefield was directing the fire. He was one good officer. He had lost his binoculars and after looking around a minute he asked to borrow mine. He took a look through the glasses I handed him and said, 'well, that's one Jap who'll never throw another shell at us.'

"But we kept getting hit.

"Men up on the sky control kept dropping. They were scattered around the decks. One of the officers went down to take some of the men from a sick bay * * * but there wasn't any sick bay left. It had got a direct hit."

When it was no longer possible to fight the burning ship, orders were given to abandon. Hager said he started to help move the wounded off the forecastle but dived overboard to get a raft that seemed to be in good condition. He did not get back to the ship.

Francis M. Williamson, of Petersburg, Va., was on the Quincy. He told of getting aboard a life raft after the cruiser had been abandoned and of signalling a U. S. destroyer with a flashlight.

"While we were in the water," Williamson said, "there was one guy close to me. He had almost his whole body shot away. Once he said, very quiet, 'I can't last more than 15 or 20 minutes more. I got a hundred dollars in my pocket here if it'll do you fellows any good.' But nobody took it."

Hager told of rescue ships firing their machineguns to drive off the sharks that had been attracted by the men struggling in the water.

"When the destroyer came up on us, she was firing," he said. "We thought she was Japanese, fixing to machinegun us."

Hager suggested to the men with him on the raft that they leave it and scatter in the water so they would not offer so easy

Gardiner Man, 66, Will Be Sentenced Friday in Deaths of Joseph and Bridget Neff

Patrick H. Powers, 66, of Gardiner who was charged with the murder of his sister Bridget Neff and her husband Joseph Neff at their summer home near Gardiner on August 28, last, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of murder, second degree, in county court this morning. Powers pleaded guilty to the shooting of Joseph Neff as charged in indictment No. 2987. The aged man was represented by Chris J. Flanagan. Judge Conway postponed sentence until next Friday at 10 o'clock.

Powers said he was born in Port Ewen and gave his present home as Gardiner.

On Friday, August 28, there was apparently an argument at the Neff home over ownership of the premises. Powers had formerly owned the farm but had lost it through foreclosure and it is charged that he shot the couple and then hid the bodies in the cellar. Mr. Neff was 69 and his wife 70. Powers then remained at the premises and on Monday following suspicion of the milkman was aroused by Power's actions. State Police were summoned and when they arrived Powers had barricaded himself in the house and refused to surrender. After an all day siege and gun battle he was finally driven from the house by tear gas and surrendered.

Indictments were later returned and Powers on being arraigned entered a plea of not guilty. Today he changed that plea to guilty.

Wilhelm Million who escaped from Wallkill prison also entered a plea of guilty to that charge. Louis Bruhn appeared for Million and sentence in that case will be pronounced Friday at 10.

In the cases of The People vs. Urban T. Kemble and Myrtle Kemble an application for inspection of the grand jury minutes has been made by Chris J. Flanagan and the case was put over pending decision of that matter. Application was made to Justice Harry E. Schirick for an inspection of the minutes and for a stay of both cases pending determination of the matter. Justice Schirick granted the application for a stay of the trial pending the action of the court on the application for examination of the

The waters of the Ashokan reservoir on Monday gave up the second victim of the triple drowning which on Sunday September 27, claimed the lives of three Tabasco residents. Thus far the bodies of Mrs. Elmer Van Demark and Miss Mary Terwilliger have been recovered. The body of Elmer VanDemark is still missing.

Monday while Lt. Andrew Helgersen, Officer Albert Paulsen of the B. W. S. police and Harold "Chick" Smith of Kingston, an employe of the Board of Water Supply, were cruising along the west bank of the upper basin of the Ashokan they discovered an object floating about three feet off shore and within 50 feet of the spot where the body of Mrs. Van Demark was recovered last Tuesday. Turning their boat to shore they discovered the object to be the body of Miss Terwilliger, 70-year-old victim.

The body which was badly decomposed was brought to shore and Coroner Henry Lamouree of Saugerties was notified. He issued a certificate for removal of the body and gave as his verdict "accidental drowning." The body was taken by the Gormley Ambulance Service of Phoenicia to the Pulling Funeral Home in Ellenville.

It was last Tuesday that Lt. Edward Schwall and Harold Smith recovered the first body as they cruised along the west shore of the upper basin near the Brodhead shore. The scene of both recoveries is perhaps six or seven miles from the place where the car went through a guard rail and into the Esopus creek during the height of a flood. No trace of the car has been found except for parts which were broken from the

Victory Service League Formed

Chevrolet Employes Here Join Kingston Chapter

The Kingston chapter of the national Victory Service League, a national alliance of motorists, was formed Monday evening by Roy M. Sutliff of the Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., when every employe in that organization signed the V. S. L. pledge and pledged themselves to car conservation in the interest of keeping motor vehicle transportation rolling for the duration.

Mr. Sutliff, recently returned from White Plains, where he was formally inducted as chairman of the Kingston chapter of the Victory Service League, presented the aims and objects of the organization to his men prior to their signing up.

The Victory Service League has been founded as a patriotic organization of car and truck operators who are pledging themselves to car conservation in the interests of maintaining America's civilian transportation system. In addition, the league will provide motorists with a correlating agency through which they can participate in any nationally sponsored activity designed to further the country's war effort. This means aiding in such movements as the present scrap metal drive, rubber salvage program, sale of War Bonds and stamps or any other similar patriotic duty.

More than 8,000 Chevrolet dealers and their 75,000 employes comprise the basic group about which the Victory Service League has been established. In an effort to conserve passenger cars and trucks the league members will sign a pledge to protect his equipment and get the most economical mileage possible from the present cars and trucks. Prior to becoming a member the car owner must have an inspection of his vehicle made. This inspection is being made in Kingston by the Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., mechanics and is absolutely free to car owners. Following the free inspection the car owner is handed a slip on which is noted the condition of 24 important items which are important to car economy and long life. Other items are also noted on the sheet if attention can be given to add to the car life. No charge is made for the inspection and the owner may have the corrections suggested made at any garage. Then a pledge is signed, a membership card issued and a marker is attached to the car to signify membership.

General Motors through Chevrolet instituted this movement as a patriotic duty to conserve the 27,000,000 passenger cars now on the roads of the nation as well as the 5,000,000 trucks which must be kept rolling. No new cars or trucks are being made for the duration and present cars and trucks must be conserved. The normal "death rate" of motor vehicles each year has been about 2,388,000, but with no new cars being built many of these cars must be saved by better care if the people are to continue to be served with transportation. There are 50,000 communities in America having no public transportation and depending entirely upon car transportation.

In presenting the plan to his organization, Mr. Sutliff stated that present day tires when driven at 35 miles an hour or less and given proper care should be made to give 40,000 miles of service. Gasoline mileage can be greatly increased by putting and keeping all cars in proper condition and by driving within the 35 mile an hour limit.

The national slogan of the V. S. L. is "save the wheels that serve America" and owners of all makes of cars and trucks are urged to sign the conservation pledge.

Among those who signed the V. S. L. pledge Monday evening were members of the Chevrolet organization, who have served under Mr. Sutliff for over 20 years as well as the more recent members of the organization.

Cleveland Strike Expected to End

Navy Recommends Further Employment Bar

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—A.F.L. strikers at the Steel Improvement & Forge Co. agreed to go back to work today after the Navy recommended that the men be barred from further employment in war production jobs and be deprived of any draft deferments.

The eight-day strike was ended abruptly last night by the vote of 166 of the 213 drop forge operators who walked out, union leaders said, because the company installed chronologs—time checkers—on the drop forges.

E. Wayne Patterson, international representative of the A.F.L. Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Welders Union, said the men agreed to resume operations and allow the War Labor Board to settle the dispute after they "were given proof that the strike was affecting war production."

In a telegram to Patterson, Assistant Secretary of Navy Ralph C. Bard had said the Navy lost "vital production of highly critical war material" because of the strike, which the department viewed as "evidence of a disloyal attitude that should exclude all persons involved from the enjoyment of rights and privileges of loyal Americans."

NormandieSalvage Certain, Sullivan Reports to Press

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The man running the biggest salvage job in the annals of shipping says the once-luxurious liner Normandie, half-submerged beside a Hudson river pier since fire crippled her February 9, will sail again.

Capt. William A. Sullivan, assigned by the Navy to right the 83,423-ton sea queen so she can carry American troops, told newsmen during a visit inside the hulk that her vast network of machinery again would develop the 160,000 horsepower that once sped her across the Atlantic in record time.

Sullivan did not say when he thought the French-built vessel—renamed the U. S. S. Lafayette—might float again but, when asked if he thought she would roll into position when certain phases of the salvage operation were completed, he replied:

"Sure it will."

Sullivan and 580 workmen are going to do the job by what the captain called "the method of controlled pumping."

This calls for sealing the ship, dividing her into watertight compartments, then pumping the water out slowly.

To pave the way for that intricate job, all the superstructure above water was removed. That under water is being removed now, thus lowering the ship's center of gravity.

Sullivan said the salvage job would cost less than building a new ship of the Normandie's size—but he didn't say how much.

Kaiser Expects Boom In Post-War America

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 13 (Wide World)—Peace should bring a boom, instead of a collapse, to American industry, Henry J. Kaiser, the nation's foremost shipbuilder, believes.

"It ought to keep every wheel turning in America for 20 years," he said in a speech decrying the forecast of depression, revolution and disaster which have come to his ears.

"We need not have a post-war depression," said the man who recently delivered a ship for a trial run 14 days after laying the keel at Portland, Ore.

"On the contrary, America can enter her most prosperous era with the greatest agricultural and industrial expansion, greatest individual and social opportunity, and greatest chance to become the hope of the nations which will set themselves to the task of rebuilding the devastated areas."

As a builder, he looks at post-war reconstruction as "the greatest job man ever tackled."

En Route With Bennett, Oct. 13 (AP)—Gubernatorial Nominee John J. Bennett, Jr., and two other candidates on the state Democratic ticket move today to Jamestown, where Bennett will deliver tonight a major speech in his campaign for governor. He stops at Dunkirk during the day.

Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti, candidate for re-election, and Mrs. Flora Johnson, Syracuse, nominee for representative-at-large, joined the attorney general at Buffalo this morning. All will appear at Jamestown, where Bennett's address is scheduled for broadcast over a 19-station radio network from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Confidently predicting his victory November 3, the gubernatorial candidate last night even tossed a few bouquets at the Republican party for its role in upholding the two-party system of government.

"Under the two-party system, America has grown great and its citizens have enjoyed a freedom known in no other country," the attorney general said at a rally at Niagara Falls. "Both the Democratic party and the Republican party have contributed to that growth and freedom. Both have produced great public leaders and statesmen. Both have one objective: The preservation of the American way of life."

Nimitz Visits Guadalcanal in Solomon Islands

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP)—U. S. fleet headquarters disclosed today that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz visited Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons two weeks ago and presented 27 awards to Navy, Marine and Army heroes.

The trip to the South Pacific island by the commander in chief of the Pacific fleet followed a conference with Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, naval commander in the South Pacific, and Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of U. S. air forces.

(A Navy statement two weeks ago disclosed that Nimitz, Ghormley, and Arnold had conferred "somewhere in the Pacific.")

The awards were 16 Navy crosses and 11 distinguished flying crosses, all for actions in the Solomons except one award to a participant in the raid last August on Japanese-held Makin Island.

The presentation was made as the heroes were grouped in a circle in front of the Guadalcanal field headquarters of Major General Alexander A. Vandergrift, commanding the Marines in the Solomons.

"Good work: More power to you," he told each as he pinned on the medals.

Navy crosses were awarded to: General Vandergrift, Washington, D. C., for exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of great responsibility as the commander of all the ground troops in the attack on the Solomons August 7.

Brig. Gen. William H. Rupertus, Washington, D. C., Marine Corps director of the Tulagi and Gavuto islands operations, for taking the islands after three days of bitter fighting.

Col. Merritt A. Edson, Chester, Va., Marine Corps raider commander, for repeatedly striking the enemy from Tulagi Island to Guadalcanal and for leading successfully the defense of Lunga Ridge in 12 hours of fierce fighting.

Lieut. Col. Evans F. Carlson, Plymouth, Conn., leader of the Marine raider attack on Makin Island August 17.

Lieut. Col. Edwin A. Pollock, Augusta, Ga., Marine commander of troops at Tenaru river, Guadalcanal Island, for annihilating almost 700 Japanese in that encounter.

Maj. Robert E. Galer, Washington, D. C., Marine Corps flier, for shooting down 11 enemy planes from August 30 to September 28. He and other Marine pilots accounted for 165 Japanese planes in the Solomons.

Maj. John Smith, Lexington, Okla., Marine aviator. He shot down more planes (16) than any other U. S. pilot from August 21 to September 15, his squadron downing 83 Jap planes although they were always outnumbered two-to-one and sometimes four-to-one.

The distinguished flying cross was awarded to Lieut. Donald E. McCafferty, Hempstead, N. Y., a Marine flier, for dive bombing enemy ships.

Handyman Leaves Big Sum of Hidden Cash

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 13 (AP)—Henry Wefer, 76-year-old junkyard handyman who died October 6, left $91,000 in cash hidden in his meagerly furnished 10-room home, and abstracts showing ownership of an estimated 17,000 acres of Iowa farm land.

Believed penniless by St. Joseph residents, Wefer lived alone. His house was modern but he left water and electricity turned off, Mrs. Minnie L. Gordon, public administrator, said, last night, and there were not more than a half-dozen pieces of furniture in all 10 rooms.

Wefer had worked in St. Joseph junkyards for nearly 20 years. Before his death he had given Henry Bassing, a fireman whom he knew, $400 and instructions to use it to bury him. The body was sent to Marengo, Ia. Bassing paid the expenses and turned $110 of the money back to the estate.

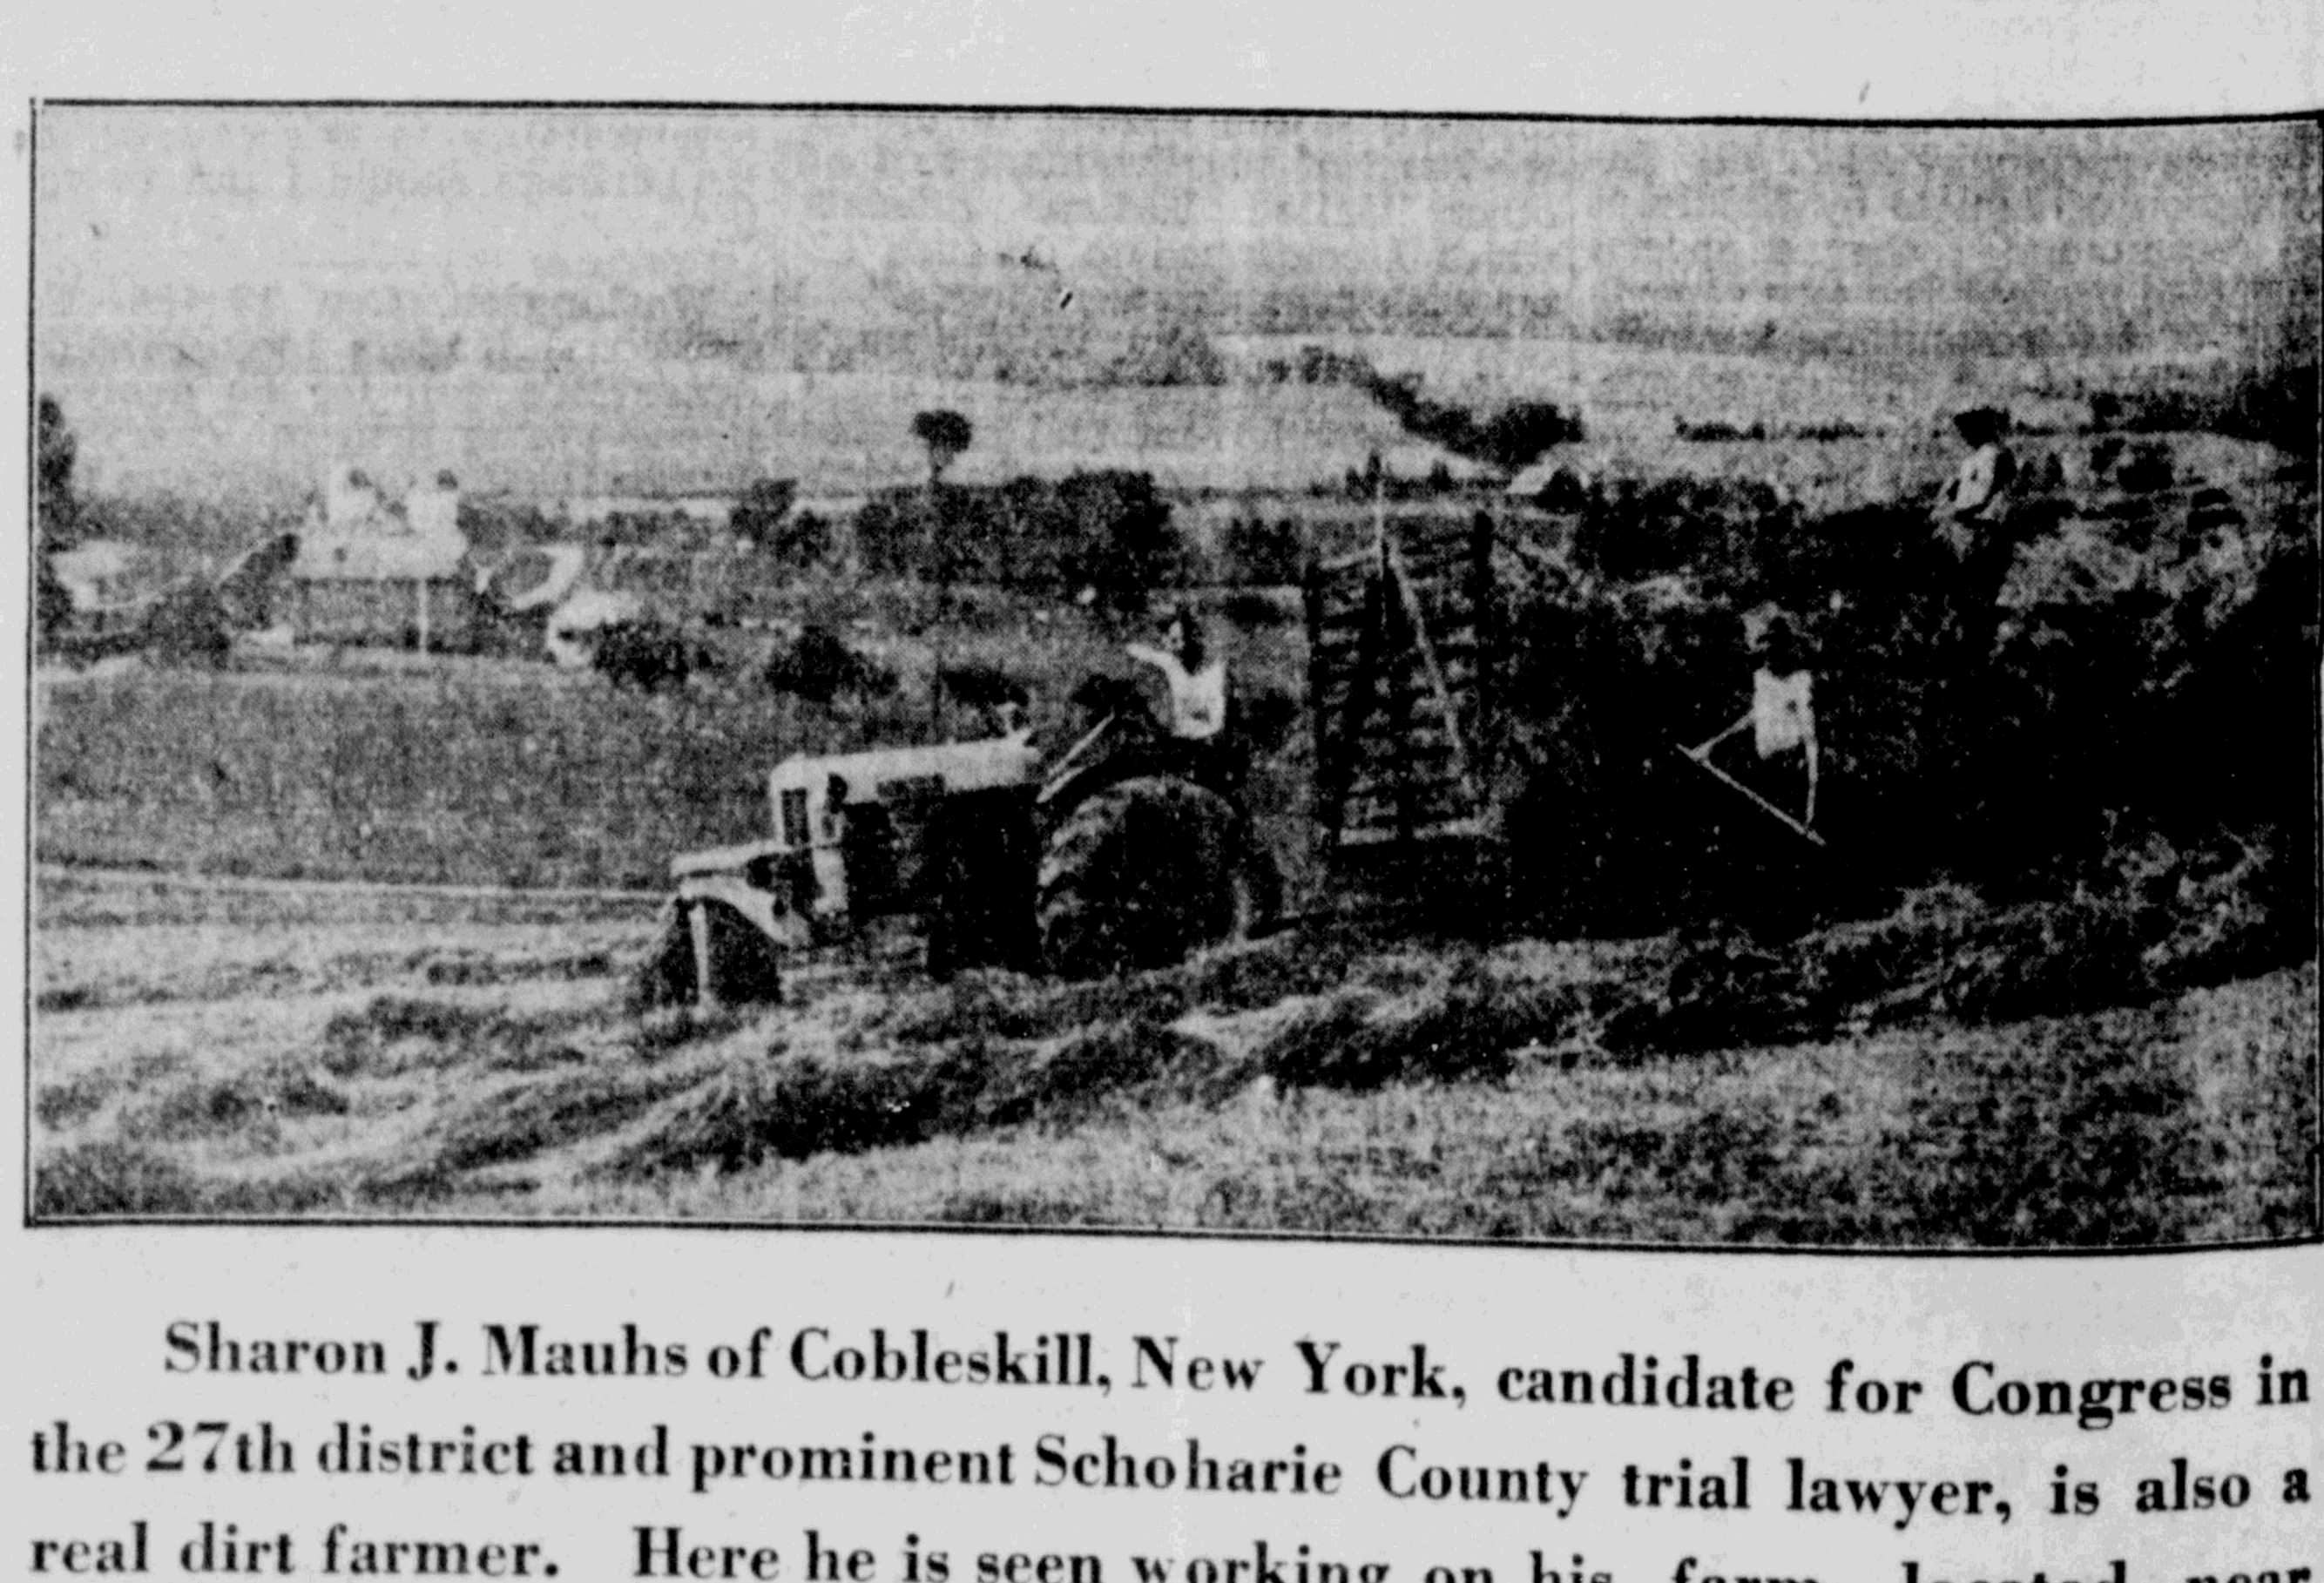
HAY FIRST — POLITICS SECOND



Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, New York, candidate for Congress in the 27th district and prominent Schoharie County trial lawyer, is also a real dirt farmer. Here he is seen working on his farm, located near Cobleskill. His farm buildings and part of his fine herd of registered Holsteins can be seen in the background. The young man standing on the ground is Mr. Mauh's oldest son, John, who while only fourteen, has taken a man's place on the farm all summer. John and his younger brother, Peter, are good horsemen. Both have fast saddle horses and are expert riders and they drive the big teams as well. Although the Cobleskill golf course is across the road from his property, Mr. Mauhs prefers to get his exercise on the farm. All summer he and his two boys could be seen every afternoon, if weather permitted, stripped to the waist, working in their hay fields, and when it was time to unload, Mrs. Mauhs was usually driving the team on the hay fork.

The Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union will hold its annual convention at the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, Saturday, October 17. The program will begin with a banquet at 6 o'clock. Delegates may register from 5 o'clock on.

The song leader and toastmaster at the banquet will be Richard B. Talleur of Poughkeepsie, who is a trustee of the State Union and a very active member of Christian Endeavor in this vicinity for a number of years. He will also give the main address of the evening at 8 o'clock.

Enemy Alien Stigma To Be Taken From 600,000

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—The stigma of being alien enemies of the United States will be lifted starting next Monday from 600,000 unnaturalized Italians in this country, Attorney General Francis Biddle announced last night.

The action was taken with the approval of President Roosevelt, Biddle said, in a Columbus Day speech broadcast by the Mutual Broadcasting System. The speech was also carried by virtually all short wave stations under government control.

Italians involved will be allowed to travel freely, possess cameras and firearms where local regulations permit, stay out after the curfew prescribed on the west coast for alien enemies, and go about without identification cards.

Biddle declared this exoneration of Italians had been well earned by their loyalty to the United States.

"This does not mean," he continued, "that dangerous or disloyal persons are no longer subject to apprehension or internment. We will still take no chances.

"It does mean that the regulations applying up to now to alien enemies no longer apply to Italian aliens. * * * They will be free to participate in the war effort without the handicaps that have hampered them up to now."

In an "unprecedented exercise of wartime vigilance," his office had investigated thoroughly all Italians here, Biddle said, adding that of the total of 600,000 there was need to intern only 228.

Victory Service League Formed

Chevrolet Employes Here Join Kingston Chapter

The Kingston chapter of the national Victory Service League, a national alliance of motorists, was formed Monday evening by Roy M. Sutliff of the Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., when every employe in that organization signed the V. S. L. pledge and pledged themselves to car conservation in the interest of keeping motor vehicle transportation rolling for the duration.

Mr. Sutliff, recently returned from White Plains, where he was formally inducted as chairman of the Kingston chapter of the Victory Service League, presented the aims and objects of the organization to his men prior to their signing up.

The Victory Service League has been founded as a patriotic organization of car and truck operators who are pledging themselves to car conservation in the interests of maintaining America's civilian transportation system. In addition, the league will provide motorists with a correlating agency through which they can participate in any nationally sponsored activity designed to further the country's war effort. This means aiding in such movements as the present scrap metal drive, rubber salvage program, sale of War Bonds and stamps or any other similar patriotic duty.

More than 8,000 Chevrolet dealers and their 75,000 employes comprise the basic group about which the Victory Service League has been established. In an effort to conserve passenger cars and trucks the league members will sign a pledge to protect his equipment and get the most economical mileage possible from the present cars and trucks. Prior to becoming a member the car owner must have an inspection of his vehicle made. This inspection is being made in Kingston by the Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., mechanics and is absolutely free to car owners. Following the free inspection the car owner is handed a slip on which is noted the condition of 24 important items which are important to car economy and long life. Other items are also noted on the sheet if attention can be given to add to the car life. No charge is made for the inspection and the owner may have the corrections suggested made at any garage. Then a pledge is signed, a membership card issued and a marker is attached to the car to signify membership.

General Motors through Chevrolet instituted this movement as a patriotic duty to conserve the 27,000,000 passenger cars now on the roads of the nation as well as the 5,000,000 trucks which must be kept rolling. No new cars or trucks are being made for the duration and present cars and trucks must be conserved. The normal "death rate" of motor vehicles each year has been about 2,388,000, but with no new cars being built many of these cars must be saved by better care if the people are to continue to be served with transportation. There are 50,000 communities in America having no public transportation and depending entirely upon car transportation.

In presenting the plan to his organization, Mr. Sutliff stated that present day tires when driven at 35 miles an hour or less and given proper care should be made to give 40,000 miles of service. Gasoline mileage can be greatly increased by putting and keeping all cars in proper condition and by driving within the 35 mile an hour limit.

The national slogan of the V. S. L. is "save the wheels that serve America" and owners of all makes of cars and trucks are urged to sign the conservation pledge.

Among those who signed the V. S. L. pledge Monday evening were members of the Chevrolet organization, who have served under Mr. Sutliff for over 20 years as well as the more recent members of the organization.

Cleveland Strike Expected to End

Navy Recommends Further Employment Bar

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—A.F.L. strikers at the Steel Improvement & Forge Co. agreed to go back to work today after the Navy recommended that the men be barred from further employment in war production jobs and be deprived of any draft deferments.

The eight-day strike was ended abruptly last night by the vote of 166 of the 213 drop forge operators who walked out, union leaders said, because the company installed chronologs—time checkers—on the drop forges.

E. Wayne Patterson, international representative of the A.F.L. Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Welders Union, said the men agreed to resume operations and allow the War Labor Board to settle the dispute after they "were given proof that the strike was affecting war production."

In a telegram to Patterson, Assistant Secretary of Navy Ralph C. Bard had said the Navy lost "vital production of highly critical war material" because of the strike, which the department viewed as "evidence of a disloyal attitude that should exclude all persons involved from the enjoyment of rights and privileges of loyal Americans."

Home Defense

Second Ward

Zone Warden Lester Elmendorf of the Second Ward has called a meeting of all air raid wardens of the ward to be held in the A. H. Wicks Engine house on Wednesday evening at 7:30. Important matters will be discussed and all wardens are asked to be present.

Mexicans of all classes are turning out every Sunday to drill for defense, and many foreigners have joined in the training.

NormandieSalvage Certain, Sullivan Reports to Press

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The man running the biggest salvage job in the annals of shipping says the once-luxurious liner Normandie, half-submerged beside a Hudson river pier since fire crippled her February 9, will sail again.

Capt. William A. Sullivan, assigned by the Navy to right the 83,423-ton sea queen so she can carry American troops, told newsmen during a visit inside the hulk that her vast network of machinery again would develop the 160,000 horsepower that once sped her across the Atlantic in record time.

Sullivan did not say when he thought the French-built vessel—renamed the U. S. S. Lafayette—might float again but, when asked if he thought she would roll into position when certain phases of the salvage operation were completed, he replied:

"Sure it will."

Sullivan and 580 workmen are going to do the job by what the captain called "the method of controlled pumping."

This calls for sealing the ship, dividing her into watertight compartments, then pumping the water out slowly.

To pave the way for that intricate job, all the superstructure above water was removed. That under water is being removed now, thus lowering the ship's center of gravity.

Sullivan said the salvage job would cost less than building a new ship of the Normandie's size—but he didn't say how much.

Kaiser Expects Boom In Post-War America

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 13 (Wide World)—Peace should bring a boom, instead of a collapse, to American industry, Henry J. Kaiser, the nation's foremost shipbuilder, believes.

"It ought to keep every wheel turning in America for 20 years," he said in a speech decrying the forecast of depression, revolution and disaster which have come to his ears.

"We need not have a post-war depression," said the man who recently delivered a ship for a trial run 14 days after laying the keel at Portland, Ore.

"On the contrary, America can enter her most prosperous era with the greatest agricultural and industrial expansion, greatest individual and social opportunity, and greatest chance to become the hope of the nations which will set themselves to the task of rebuilding the devastated areas."

As a builder, he looks at post-war reconstruction as "the greatest job man ever tackled."

Appreciation for sympathy was received from Mrs. Burgher and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Petersen. A communication was read from Rondout Valley Council, Ellenville, that their meetings will be held the first and third Tuesday of each month. A letter from State Councilor Mrs. Myrtle Golden was received. Her motto is "Faith and Unity." Mrs. Golden is from Bellmore, L. I., and a reception in her honor was held September 26.

A warrant was received from the state councilor appointing Mrs. Cecile Petersen, New Paltz, member of the local council as district deputy of District No. 6, comprising Saugerties, Kingston and Highland. Also appointment of Mrs. Ethel Beadle, Vanderlyn Council, Kingston, as deputy of Ida McKinley Council. The warrants were accepted and the deputies invited to visit at their pleasure. It was voted that the council assume responsibility for the card and game party to be held for those in service at the high school Friday, October 16. Mrs. Harriet Alexander was appointed chairman to choose assistants. Councilor Palmer reported on the parade and party for inductees held September 29 and thanked those who took part. Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Grace Graham and Mrs. Gwendolyn Callahan were appointed by the council to ascertain where the council could assist to the best advantage in the war effort, and report at the meeting October 21.

The councilor announced the annual anniversary party, charter member night and honor past councilors would be held Wednesday, November 4. A covered dish supper was served following the meeting. For the pause for tribute to those in service, Mrs. Philip Schantz read a stirring message urging those at home to put as much time in aid for the war effort as those in service, to contribute for bonds, stamps, and the scrap drive.

The blue side captained by Mrs. Edna Tompkins led in the contest with 816 points against 725 for the red side with Mrs. Anna Maynard captain. The losers will entertain the winners at the next meeting.

Bennett to Speak At Jamestown in Campaign Journey

En Route With Bennett, Oct. 13 (AP)—Gubernatorial Nominee John J. Bennett, Jr., and two other candidates on the state Democratic ticket move today to Jamestown, where Bennett will deliver tonight a major speech in his campaign for governor. He stops at Dunkirk during the day.

All will appear at Jamestown, where Bennett's address is scheduled for broadcast over a 19-station radio network from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Confidently predicting his victory November 3, the gubernatorial candidate last night even tossed a few bouquets at the Republican party for its role in upholding the two-party system of government.

"Under the two-party system, America has grown great and its citizens have enjoyed a freedom known in no other country," the attorney general said at a rally at Niagara Falls. "Both the Democratic party and the Republican party have contributed to that growth and freedom. Both have produced great public leaders and statesmen. Both have one objective: The preservation of the American way of life."

Nimitz Visits Guadalcanal in Solomon Islands

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP)—U. S. fleet headquarters disclosed today that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz visited Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons two weeks ago and presented 27 awards to Navy, Marine and Army heroes.

The trip to the South Pacific island by the commander in chief of the Pacific fleet followed a conference with Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, naval commander in the South Pacific, and Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of U. S. air forces.

(A Navy statement two weeks ago disclosed that Nimitz, Ghormley, and Arnold had conferred "somewhere in the Pacific.")

The awards were 16 Navy crosses and 11 distinguished flying crosses, all for actions in the Solomons except one award to a participant in the raid last August on Japanese-held Makin Island.

The presentation was made as the heroes were grouped in a circle in front of the Guadalcanal field headquarters of Major General Alexander A. Vandergrift, commanding the Marines in the Solomons.

"Good work: More power to you," he told each as he pinned on the medals.

Navy crosses were awarded to: General Vandergrift, Washington, D. C., for exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of great responsibility as the commander of all the ground troops in the attack on the Solomons August 7.

Brig. Gen. William H. Rupertus, Washington, D. C., Marine Corps director of the Tulagi and Gavuto islands operations, for taking the islands after three days of bitter fighting.

Col. Merritt A. Edson, Chester, Va., Marine Corps raider commander, for repeatedly striking the enemy from Tulagi Island to Guadalcanal and for leading successfully the defense of Lunga Ridge in 12 hours of fierce fighting.

Lieut. Col. Evans F. Carlson, Plymouth, Conn., leader of the Marine raider attack on Makin Island August 17.

Lieut. Col. Edwin A. Pollock, Augusta, Ga., Marine commander of troops at Tenaru river, Guadalcanal Island, for annihilating almost 700 Japanese in that encounter.

Maj. John Smith, Lexington, Okla., Marine aviator. He shot down more planes (16) than any other U. S. pilot from August 21 to September 15, his squadron downing 83 Jap planes although they were always outnumbered two-to-one and sometimes four-to-one.

Believed penniless by St. Joseph residents, Wefer lived alone. His house was modern but he left water and electricity turned off, Mrs. Minnie L. Gordon, public administrator, said, last night, and there were not more than a half-dozen pieces of furniture in all 10 rooms.

Wefer had worked in St. Joseph junkyards for nearly 20 years. Before his death he had given Henry Bassing, a fireman whom he knew, $400 and instructions to use it to bury him. The body was sent to Marengo, Ia. Bassing paid the expenses and turned $110 of the money back to the estate.

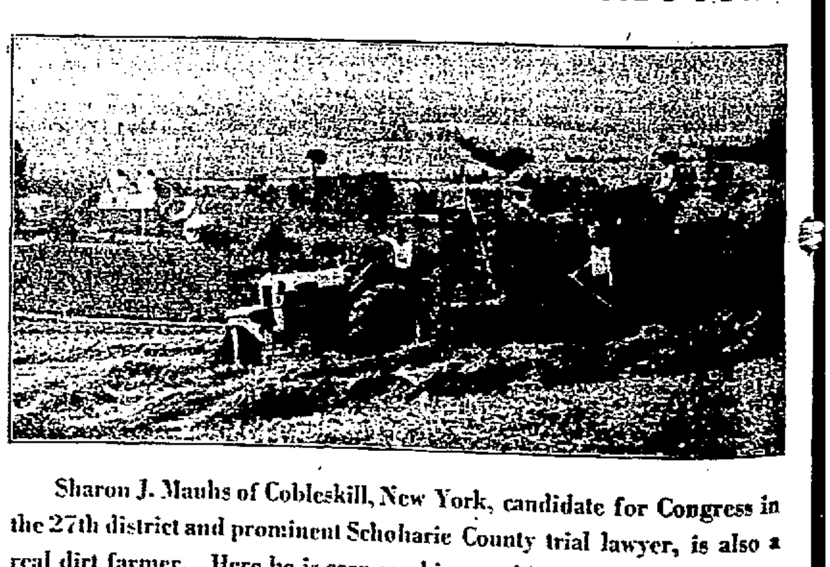
HAY FIRST—POLITICS SECOND



Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, New York, candidate for Congress in the 27th district and prominent Schoharie County trial lawyer, is also a real dirt farmer. Here he is seen working on his farm, located near Cobleskill. His farm buildings and part of his fine herd of registered Holsteins can be seen in the background. The young man standing on the ground is Mr. Mauh's oldest son, John, who while only fourteen, has taken a man's place on the farm all summer. John and his younger brother, Peter, are good horsemen. Both have fast saddle horses and are expert riders and they drive the big teams as well. Although the Cobleskill golf course is across the road from his property, Mr. Mauhs prefers to get his exercise on the farm. All summer he and his two boys could be seen every afternoon, if weather permitted, stripped to the waist, working in their hay fields, and when it was time to unload, Mrs. Mauhs was usually driving the team on the hay fork.

KIDS PUT IT OVER

Of all the noncombatant contributions to the war effort, is there anything so grand as the way these youngsters collect scrap iron?

In the last war there was quite a run of Thrift Stamps in the schools; and how those kids, from the kindergarten up, did buy 'em and make their parents shell out for the great cause! There was a saying then, in the younger fields of education and patriotism, "Frif stamps will win the war." And they did help mightily.

But now it's junk. Metallic junk. Junk for Junkers, we might have said in the last war, if the Old Iron Quest had arisen then. Or as some sloganeers call it now, Scrap for Scrappers. And how the kids love it! You might think, from their own personal and mass operations, that they alone were fighting and winning this war.

Maybe they are, with their little wagons and bikes and their eagerness to help, their keen searching of every nook and cranny in basement, yard, attic and garage, and their relentless seizure of every metallic thing in the neighborhood that isn't nailed down, and their requisitioning of everything on wheels that will carry the loot to the rising junk heaps. Their zeal is so infectious that sluggish grownups are themselves shamed into action and catch the contagious spirit of the drive.

MARCHING

Herr Supermann lately has a rebellion on his hands, and it grows and grows. The wrath of free-souled nations is rising against the enslavers. Western Europe is seething like a hornet's nest. The Norwegians are in open rebellion and the Danes and Dutch are rising. The French, except for a handful of weaklings and traitors, are not only dreaming of liberation but beginning to pave the way for it. The Greeks and Czechs, sabotaging the oppressors as they can, await their opportunity for liberation and revenge.

The British, who remain free at heavy cost, and the Americans, now the chief hope of oppressed Europe, are coming to the rescue. Their warplanes begin to fill the skies. The Russians hold back the destroyers on the eastern front and, day by day, hew down the Nazi strength.

It begins to look like the coming of "the great and terrible day of the Lord." Vengeance is His, and He will repay. But the payment will come, as usual, through the courageous efforts of men rising above themselves to do the Lord's work of punishment and cleansing. Sooner than men think, the prostrate people of Europe may be marching, and singing in their own tongues:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord.
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored.
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible, swift sword;

GAS RATION REPRIEVE?

Just as motorists have resigned themselves sadly to the enforcement of coupon gas rationing, the war council of the petroleum industry proposes a three-months delay. The council agrees that the 35-mile speed limit and a drastic reduction of gasoline consumption are both desirable, but points out that the former is already accepted by the public, and thinks the necessary fuel rationing may be accomplished voluntarily. It refers to the "already wide spread of volunteer rationing outside of the east coast."

It would be fine if such results could be attained throughout the country without compulsion. And there does seem to be developing in this country lately an unusual spirit of cooperation and self-restraint. But aren't there still too many people with "too much ego in their cosmos" to be trusted with complete self-control behind a steering wheel?

FATAL HANDSHAKE

When Hitler shakes hands, the shakee had better beware. In 1934 Hitler shook hands publicly with his bosom friend, Ernst von Roehm. Three days later he had Roehm murdered. This was in line with his policy toward the countries in his way—attack on Poland with which he had a ten-year non-aggression agreement, on Denmark and Norway with which he had no quarrel whatever; on Russia, his ally.

The latest recipient of Hitler's regard—for publication—is Marshal Rommel. Things have not been going very well lately for Rommel in North Africa. Whether as one report goes he is ill, or according to another report he is in disgrace, the fact is that Rommel is not now in Africa, but in Germany. During Hitler's recent speech to the Nazi party, opening the fourth year of the winter relief campaign, he took pains to walk over to Rommel, and, before all the crowd, to grasp his hand.

Rommel, as a soldier, must take lightly the chances of death. Yet even he must have felt a chill when the Fuehrer publicly attested his regard. For when Hitler is most friendly, he is most dangerous.

What's in a name? An English publisher announces a new edition of a standard textbook on "Strength of Materials." The author, appropriately, is Professor Timoshenko, of Russia.

Our greatest resources have often developed out of the obstacles we had to overcome.

SACCHARIN INSTEAD OF SUGAR?

As sugar is one food that is forbidden in extreme cases of overweight, many overweights now use saccharin to sweeten drinks or foods as it is many times sweeter than sugar and does not get deposited as fat in the body.

The rationing of sugar during the war has caused many of us to use saccharin for sweetening our tea and coffee.

A few years ago some overweights took large doses of saccharin and cases of severe stomach irritation and even poisoning by saccharin were reported. Today physicians are finding a few cases of dyspepsia where saccharin is used in half teaspoon doses instead of in one-half to 1½ grain tablets to sweeten tea and coffee.

As a matter of fact saccharin does interfere with digestion in that it slows up the flow of the digestive juices. Research workers also state that it slows up other body processes also such as the oxidation or purifying of the blood in the lungs and in the tissues. Some individuals report that the use of saccharin causes headaches.

Cases of poisoning by saccharin are rare. The symptoms resemble those of alcohol intoxication—rapid pulse, rapid breathing, unconsciousness. Artificial respiration is the treatment.

What about the use of saccharin for tea, coffee, lemonade, or other drinks, cooking and other uses?

While large doses may cause indigestion, headaches and poisoning, small doses are safe.

There have been so many inquiries regarding the danger to health and to life of saccharin that the Journal of the American Medical Association recently carried an editorial of advice and reassurance to physicians and the public.

"Sugar rationing and new emphasis on weight reduction have doubtless increased the use of saccharin for sweetening purposes. Renewed interest in the possible harmful effect of this substance is therefore only natural. Earlier investigations of saccharin, however, have failed to reveal dangerous side-actions except from extremely large doses. Likewise, the evidence does not reveal any reason why saccharin cannot be used continously in average sweetening doses for any length of time. Many patients have taken saccharin for years without harmful effects."

The above information from such high authority should remove all fear of saccharin, if taken in usual doses, that is ½ to 1½ grains.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The 50th annual meeting of the trustees and managers of the Industrial Home on East Chester street, was held on January 31, 1927. As a youngster I can remember when the Industrial Home was on Broadway, near Staples street.

The old building that housed the institution in those years was later turned into living apartments after the present Industrial Home was erected and placed in operation.

Only two of the original managers of the institution were living in 1927. They were Miss Mary Van Leuven of Kingston and Mrs. William Gokey of Brooklyn, and both were more than 90 years of age at that time.

At the annual meeting that year Miss Van Leuven was elected honorary president, while Mrs. Philip Elting was elected president. Other officers were Mrs. Frank R. Powley, first vice president; Mrs. Williams Carter, second vice president; Mrs. William H. Van Etten, recording secretary, and Mrs. Samuel M. Watts, corresponding secretary.

The trustees elected were D. N. Mathews, George Burgevin, John D. Schoonmaker, Frank A. Waters, W. H. Van Slyke, J. T. Washburn, and James O. Winston.

Thirty-five years ago I wrote a "poem" about the Skillypot, the famous old ferry that for more than a century plied the waters of the Rondout creek between Rondout and Sleightsburgh. This "poem" was printed that year and I have had several requests to reprint it.

The "poem" reads as follows:

"O Skillypot thy glorious form
Before my eyes I see
And so before the muse depart
I inscribe this song to thee

"For twenty years or more
I have trod thy noble deck
In passing o'er from shore to shore
Safe hast thou borne me, ne'r a wreck
O Skillypot

"Yes, for over twenty years and more
Through sunshine, hail or rain
Thou hast not stopped thy onward way
Except for broken chain
O Skillypot

"And when at last I cash my chips
And start for that land so fair
I wonder if when I reach Old River Styx
I'll find thee waiting there
O Skillypot

The Skillypot was kept in operation until about a year following the throwing open of the present Rondout Creek Bridge to traffic. The opening of the bridge caused such a decrease in the traffic over the creek on the ferry that it was found impossible to meet overhead expenses and she was hauled off the route.

Former Alderman John A. Fischer of Abeel street purchased the ancient craft, and I believe he later junked her.

President's Radio Address Gains Emphasis With Coincidental Announcement of Solomon Naval Losses

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 13 — President Roosevelt's radio address by coincidence shared attention with the announcement of the loss of three United States cruisers in the Solomons and heavy casualties.

The President did not mention the naval losses but, against the background of this severe drain on our naval forces, the appeal for cooperation from the civilian public will not lose significance but rather gain because of it.

Out in the Pacific, the American navy is fighting a tough battle —ten thousand miles away from the homeland and against a navy that doesn't have to divide its strength in two oceans. The price of the invasion of the Solomons had to be paid to prevent a southern march of the enemy toward Australia and New Zealand and toward our Pacific bases in the southwest.

The President didn't refer to the dangers that would be incurred in attempting to land troops for an operation in France in what is known as a "second front", but he made it abundantly clear that he and the other members of our high command are not going to be influenced by arm-chair strategists or the clamor of those who are not in possession of the facts and who, on account of the censorship, cannot know those essential facts.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable news announcement—and it is presumed that our hold in the Solomons is by no means absolutely assured as yet—the President exhibited confidence concerning the whole military and naval outlook. This note of confidence is in contrast to the expressions of those in official Washington who have felt it necessary to issue a scare about our losing the war.

Mr. Roosevelt chose instead to breathe reassurance, and the events in Russia and the steady growth of our air operations over Europe are confirmation of the turn for the better that the war, as a whole, has taken for our side.

Perhaps the most important part of the President's speech was his calm announcement to the American people that he wants legislation drafting the boys from 18 to 20 years of age. He stressed the importance of younger men in the army. The Congress has committees already at work on legislation, and it is probable that registration will be begun before the end of this year so that the younger men will be called into service shortly after the first of the year.

The decision to call the 18 to 20-year-olds means that manpower estimates as they relate to the married men both with and without children will have to be revised. If the army is to call the younger men, then the married men doubtless will be deferred, though already many draft boards, because of the unfair quota system now in effect, have summoned married men in some instances.

If married men are called in any great numbers, it is probable that age classifications will be made so that the younger men are summoned to service first. The draft operation requires such a large amount of time and work that the President must have thought it desirable to warn the public about the plan to draft 18 to 20-year olds so as to enable them and their families to make the necessary plans, especially with respect to schools and colleges. The problems of the latter will begin to multiply the moment the government takes the 18 to 20-year olds.

The President's idea of getting high school boys and citizens generally to pitch in and help with the harvest will be put to the test soon, but it is doubtful whether the solution of the farm labor problem is going to be as simple as that. Possibly when the new manpower legislation is adopted —and it may be enacted sometime in November just after the elections—there will be a revision of the draft as it affects agriculture.

It would be most unfortunate if men had to be called back from the army to help care for the food supply, just as today men are being called back from the army in some sections of the country to help mine certain needed metals. The President just gave the country a preliminary view of the manpower problem in more or less gentle terms. Before long, the manpower problem will be the principal issue before the country.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — If there is anything wrong with civilian morale in this country (and I don't believe there really is) it could be given a terrific boost by sending every one of our 100,000,000 or so 'teen-age-and-up persons to see "This Is the Army."

"This Is the Army" is, of course, the World War II edition of Irving Berlin's "Yip, Yip, Yaphank."' Except for one nostalgic number in which Berlin himself and a dozen oldtimers appear, there is nothing of the World War I revue in it. The cast and production staff of more than 300 men are all soldiers, and all privates and noncommissioned officers at that. They are not amateurs and there is nothing amateurish about the show which now is on a coast-to-coast tour.

Berlin did the music and lyrics but there civilian participation in the revue ends. The direction, and it's a beautiful piece of pacing, timing and handling of large choruses, is in the hands of Staff Sgt. Ezra Stone—the same Sergeant Stone who until a few weeks ago was the Henry Aldrich of radio fame.

Sgt. Milton Rosenstock, who was on his way to fame as a symphonic orchestra director when the draft caught up with him, leads the big orchestra. The costuming, dances and scenery were all done by the soldiers and the cast is full of names that were beginning to be heard on Broadway and in Hollywood, names like Philip Truex, Joe Cook, Jr., Earl Oxford, Julie Oshins and many others.

Not since this war started has anything come to Washington in the way of entertainment like "This Is the Army." Playing to standing room only nights and three matinees a week, it has made the old National Theater rafters ring with the kind of applause it has never heard before. From Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson, Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall, down to the clerks and secretaries, Washington audiences have poured out of the National with a new lift because "This Is the Army," as well as being grand entertainment, is a heart-thumping spectacle, with plenty of patriotic undertones.

From observations here, however, it seems to me that the boys who are making "This Is the Army" possible and dumping about $40,000 a week into the coffers of the Army Emergency Relief aren't getting the respect they deserve from either civilians or the Army. These boys are not on leave. They are on duty just as much as their buddies back in camp.

They not only play ten shows a week — road work that would break the back of some veteran troupers — but they drill three hours a day, are assigned to details to clean up the theater, help move in and out, and do many other menial chores that are no more fun than KP duty.

All they get out of it is their regular Army pay and $3.07 a day for board and room—a sum that shrinks pretty rapidly in the face of hotel rents and a soldier's appetite.

Millions of Tons Of Scrap Metal

Twenty-four States Now Show Over Million Tons in Drive

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Figures—and a lack of them—today told a rousing story of the earnest job being done by Americans to gather scrap metal for the war mills in the nationwide drive led by the newspapers.

Perhaps four million tons of old iron and steel have been gathered in the campaign, it was indicated in a statement by the Newspapers United Scrap Metal Drive Committee which said at least an estimated one million tons were known to have been collected.

There were still five days to go in the drive which began generally September 28. In some states the drive began earlier, finished earlier. In some it has only just started or will soon begin.

The committee said the 24 states which it listed as leading the nation reported estimated collections of 1,035,194 tons — 2,070,388,000 pounds—or an average of 31.3 pounds for every man, woman and child in those states.

But those figures were only part of the actual figure.

Committee Chairman Richard W. Slocum said:

"The enthusiasm of Americans from coast to coast to pile up mountains of scrap is hardly reflected in the figures so far available.

"While the committee so far has reports of more than one million tons gathered in the top 24 states, this probably represents only one-quarter of the scrap actually in stock piles. More tons of scrap are being added daily."

"Many states reporting have so far given estimates for only a few of their counties, and a number of states, although active in scrap collection, have not yet reported tonnages to the committee."

For the fifth day in a row Kansas led the nation in average pounds collected per person with a figure of 72.2 and a tonnage of 65,000. But Nevada leaped into second position with that state's first report of 70.3 pounds per person and a total of 3,870 tons.

Three heavily populated industrial states—New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio—had a reported collection of 622,639 tons, more than half the total for all 24 of the leading states.

pedite hearings on the necessary legislation.

"If the Commander-in-Chief says he needs them," May said, "I will cooperate in every way and I am sure the Congress will go along."

Senator Gurney (R.-S. D.) said he would press for an immediate hearing by the Senate military committee on his bill to draft 18 and 19 year olds, and Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he was sure the American people as well as Congress "will react favorably" to the President's recommendations.

Mr. Roosevelt, who suggested that legislation might also be needed to solve the manpower problem on the home front, alluded indirectly to a second fighting front again by declaring that one of the major decisions of strategy already made "relates to the necessity of diverting enemy forces from Russia and China to other theatres of war by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

"All of our combat units that go overseas," he said, "must consist of young, strong men who have had thorough training. A division that has an average age of 23 or 24 is a better fighting unit than one which has an average age of 33 or 34.

"The more of such troops we have in the field, the sooner the war will be won, and the smaller will be the cost in casualties."

The Chief Executive, after reviewing his recent inspection tour and reporting that Allied strength was "on the up-grade" while that of the Axis was waning, declared the objective of today was clear and realistic.

"It is to destroy completely the military power of Germany, Italy and Japan to such good purpose," he said, "that their threat against us and all the other United Nations cannot be revived a generation hence.

"We are united in seeking the kind of victory that will guarantee that our grandchildren can grow and, under God, may live their lives, free from the constant threat of invasion, destruction, slavery and violent death."

". . . And we Americans and our Allies are going to win," he declared "and do not let anyone tell you anything different . . .

"Germany and Japan are already realizing what the inevitable result will be when the total strength of the United Nations hits them—at additional places on the earth's surface."

Mobilization Needed

The President, who said that "we are getting ahead of our enemies" in the battles of transportation and production, declared that in order to keep stepping up production it will be necessary to solve "a formidable problem in the mobilization of manpower."

"It is not that we do not have enough people in this country to do the job," he said. "The problem is to have the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time.

"We are learning to ration materials; and we must now learn to ration manpower. * * *

"In order to do this, we shall be compelled to stop workers from moving from one war job to another as a matter of personal preference; to stop employers from stealing labor from each other; to use older men, and handicapped people, and more women, and even grown boys and girls, wherever possible and reasonable, to replace men of military age and fitness; to train new personnel for essential war work; and to stop the wastage of labor in all non-essential activities."

Community efforts, examples of which he said he had noted on his trip, should be made where necessary to help farmers harvest their crops. He continued:

"It may be that all of our volunteer effort—however well intentioned and well administered—will not suffice to solve the problem. In that case, we shall have to adopt new legislation. If this is necessary, I do not believe that the American people will shrink from it."

Turns Into Boomerang

The President, who said he planned to make other secret trips of inspection about the country, reported that the enemy's once touted use of "the war of nerves" was turning into a boomerang.

"For the first time," he said, "the Nazi propaganda machine is on the defensive. They begin to apologize to their own people for the repulse of their vast forces at Stalingrad, and for the enormous casualties they are suffering. They are compelled to beg their overworked people to rally their weakened production. They even publicly admit, for the first time, that Germany can be fed only at the cost of stealing food from the rest of Europe.

"They are proclaiming that a second front is impossible; but, at the same time, they are desperately rushing troops in all directions, and stringing barbed wire all the way from the coasts of Finland and Norway to the islands of the Eastern Mediterranean."

"Meanwhile, they are driven to increase the fury of their atrocities."

Takes Crack at Press, Radio

The President had said that the nation's combat units were well manned, well equipped and well trained, and that their effectiveness would depend upon the quality of their leadership and the wisdom of "strategic plans on which all military operations are based."

"I can say one thing about our plans: They are not being decided by the typewriter strategists who expound their views in the press or on the radio," Mr. Roosevelt said, and added:

"One of the greatest of American soldiers, Robert E. Lee, once remarked on the tragic fact that in the war of his day all the best generals were apparently working on newspapers instead of in the army. That seems to be true in all war.

"The trouble with the typewriter strategists is that, while they may be full of bright ideas, they are not in possession of much information about the facts or problems of military operations.

"We therefore, will continue to leave the plans for this war to the military leaders."

Committee to Study Skip-Stop System

Alderman Patrick T. Gilday, chairman of the railroad and bus committee of the Common Council, has arranged for a conference with the officials of the Kingston City Transportation Co., to be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council chambers in the city hall to consider the advisability of inaugurating the skip stop system on the city bus lines.

In other cities a skip stop system has been placed in effect to conserve tires and gas, and it is expected that the system will be adopted for Kingston.

In the years of the first World War the trolley road adopted the skip stop system, stopping at every other corner along the route. This was done to conserve electricity.

Blind Workers Do Big Job in Burbank

Burbank, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP).—Blind workers are helping build fighting and bombing planes at the Lockheed aircraft factory, and their boss says that in some respects they are better than sighted employes.

Eleven blind men and two sightless women have been engaged in placement test in the Lockheed plant for more than a month, and some of them now turn out more work than their fellows, due to higher concentration.

"On some of the more difficult operations the quality of their work is above average," said C. L. Pelton, Lockheed superintendent of fabrication. "In every case within a few weeks the quantity of their work equalled or exceeded that of sighted persons on the same operation."

Red Cross Will Furnish Kit Bags For Servicemen

Requests from the War Department regarding kit bags for servicemen embarking for overseas duty have grown to such proportions that it has been found necessary to establish quotas for Red Cross chapters in order that these kits may become available in sufficient quantities.

Senator Charles W. Walton, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross, announced this morning that Ulster county's quota for kit bags has been set at 1,800—approximately the number of local men now in service overseas.

"Each of these kit bags cost in the neighborhood of two dollars apiece," stated the chairman, "and we are now receiving contributions of any amount in order to defray the expense of assemblying these bags. Contributions may be sent to the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross at 237 Fair street, and marked for the attention of the Committee on Kit Bags for Servicemen."

Due to the possibility of purchasing the necessary articles for the kit bags at a lower price when bought in quantities, the local chapter of the Red Cross will assemble the bags, and therefore only contributions of money are requested.

The kit bags are to contain: cigarettes, smoking tobacco, playing cards, books, water-proof match boxes, metal pencil caps, buttons, soap boxes, soap, chewing gum, writing tablets, envelopes, pencils, double edge razor blades, shoe laces, "Housewife" kit, which includes needles, thread, buttons and safety pins.

Here's How I Licked Wartime Constipation!

It was easy after I was told it's often due to lack of "bulk"

"Seems like I was always 'dosing' up on account of constipation. That sort of stuff gets a fellow down.

"Then a friend pointed out that these war days were upsetting our whole way of living. Particularly in how we eat. Said I ought to take care my meals were properly balanced—and make sure I got plenty of 'bulk.' Because lack of 'bulk' is one of the common causes of wartime constipation. Those medicinal laxatives gave me only temporary relief; they didn't get at the cause.

"But, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really fixed me up. It corrects this kind of constipation by supplying 'bulk.' And it tastes swell, too. Just eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek."

Endeavor Plans Yearly Session

County Union Will Meet at Bloomingdale Church

The Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union will hold its annual convention at the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, Saturday, October 17. The program will begin with a banquet at 6 o'clock. Delegates may register from 5 o'clock on.

The song leader and toastmaster at the banquet will be Richard B. Talleur of Poughkeepsie, who is a trustee of the State Union and a very active member of Christian Endeavor in this vicinity for a number of years. He will also give the main address of the evening at 8 o'clock.

Following the banquet a business session will be held at which time the election of officers will take place. A committee composed of various members of local Christian Endeavor Societies will then have charge of a short devotional period. The installation of the newly elected officers will be next on the program. The evening will conclude by the address of Richard Talleur.

Enemy Alien Stigma To Be Taken From 600,000

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—The stigma of being alien enemies of the United States will be lifted starting next Monday from 600,000 unnaturalized Italians in this country, Attorney General Francis Biddle announced last night.

The action was taken with the approval of President Roosevelt, Biddle said, in a Columbus Day speech broadcast by the Mutual Broadcasting System. The speech was also carried by virtually all short wave stations under government control.

Italians involved will be allowed to travel freely, possess cameras and firearms where local regulations permit, stay out after the curfew prescribed on the west coast for alien enemies, and go about without identification cards.

Biddle declared this exoneration of Italians had been well earned by their loyalty to the United States.

"This does not mean," he continued, "that dangerous or disloyal persons are no longer subject to apprehension or internment. We will still take no chances.

"It does mean that the regulations applying up to now to alien enemies no longer apply to Italian aliens. * * * They will be free to participate in the war effort without the handicaps that have hampered them up to now."

In an "unprecedented exercise of wartime vigilance," his office had investigated thoroughly all Italians here, Biddle said, adding that of the total of 600,000 there was need to intern only 228.

The time has come for this sort of parting:

This was the end. After months of close companionship the time had come to part.

Sadly he thought of the good times they had had together. Those long summer evenings when they had walked to and fro, while, silent himself, he had listened to the shrill chatter of his companion. He could remember still the scent of roses they had enjoyed in each other's company.

But now it was all over. With one last lingering look, he closed the door and strode swiftly away to submerge his sorrows in warm water. After greasing the lawn mower and putting it away for the winter it was the only thing to do.

A city court official, after explaining the history of the American flag to a group of aliens seeking citizenship papers, asked one of them:

Official — Tell me, what flies over the city hall?

Alien (blinking)—Peejins.

Sunflowers

Sunflowers smiling in an autumn garden plot,
Are folks who see some good
where good seems not.
Sunflowers nodding in gray October rain,
Are friendly hands waving behind a misted window pane.

Two powerful colored stevedores, who had had some sort of falling out, were engaged in loading a vessel at a dock. Uncomplimentary remarks and warnings of intended violence were exchanged whenever the two passed each other with their trucks:

Mose—You jes' keep on pesterin' 'round wid me, and you is gwine to be able to settle a mighty big question for the scientific folks!

Rastus—What question is dat?

Mose—Kin the dead speak.

SPARKS . . . No man ever made his mark in the world by making ditto marks . . . There is many a noble purpose lost in the maze of family discord . . . Too many think "Opportunity" is a chance to get money without working for it . . . The fellow who boasts that he never tries to run things brands himself as a knocker.

She was having a good old wifey nag, and hubby was losing his patience, although so far he hadn't answered a word. Perhaps that was why his wife suddenly burst out:

Wife—Nothing I ever say to you bears fruit!

Hubby—It might, if you pruned it a bit.

SELF RESPECT . . . Confucius taught his followers they could have the respect of fellowmen only by having self-respect, gained through sincerity of intent and purpose in every thought, word and deed.

The Chinese sage did not expect them to accomplish the impossible—only to achieve through self-control what "masters of themselves" can and should do.

For he held that man's greatest victory was in mastery of self.

The teacher was trying to popularize arithmetic by bringing home the examples to the pupils:

Teacher—Now, Junior, if you had $5 in one pocket and $7.50 in the other, what would you say you had?

Junior—The wrong pants.

The most any girl wants from a beginner in love is for him to begin.

Sergeant (striding into the squad room)—All right, you —!, lazy apes, fall out!

The soldiers grabbed their hats and swarmed out—all but one who continued to lie in his bunk calmly blowing smoke rings.

Sergeant (roaring)—WELL!!!

Rookie (calmly)—Well, there were a lot of them, weren't there?

The many ways of raising money are about all being used now.

She—I was just insulted by a man in uniform.

M. P.—What did he do?

She—He wouldn't speak to me when I waved at him.

The Australian High Court has decided that the Commonwealth's uniform income tax for all states is legal, in a case in which four states contested the government's right to impose it.

Coal for the Swiss will be cut an additional 10 per cent.

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Stocks generally resumed the recovery trek in today's market although many acted a trifle weary after the long upward climb.

Customers returned from their double holiday still bullishly inclined over war prospects and the Senate's leniency on corporate taxes. There was some cashing in, however, on the idea the list might be due for a technical reversal, even if temporary.

Gains around 2 points in early dealings with activity pronounced. There was a later slow-down and some favorites that had touched new tops since last November backed away from best levels near the fourth hour. Scattered losers also were in evidence.

Bonds and commodities steadied although hogs at Chicago continued weak in reflection of expected price ceilings.

Stocks ahead at one time or another included duPont, American Telephone, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, General Electric, Westinghouse, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., Sperry and Allied Chemical. Santa Fe along with Bethlehem Steel, Sears Roebuck, Boeing and American Smelting.

Supported in the curb were Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Aluminum of America, Creole Petroleum and Niagara Hudson Power. Small minus signs were posted for American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and Phoenix Securities.

Romero Enlists

Hollywood, Oct. 13 (AP)—Cesar Romero, the tall, dark and handsome screen actor, is a Coast Guardsman now. Romero, unaccompanied, unheralded and unpressagented, walked into the Coast Guard's San Pedro recruiting office and asked: "Can one enlist in the Coast Guard here?" One could, it developed, and in a little while Romero had been sworn into the service as an apprentice seaman, the lowest grade in the outfit. Romero, of Cuban descent, has long been known as one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, and has shown a disposition to stay that way.

KIDS PUT IT OVER

Of all the noncombatant contributions to the war effort, is there anything so grand as the way these youngsters collect scrap iron?

In the last war there was quite a run of Thrift Stamps in the schools; and how those kids, from the kindergarten up, did buy 'em and make their parents shell out for the great cause! There was a saying then, in the younger fields of education and patriotism, "Frif stamps will win the war." And they did help mightily.

But now it's junk. Metallic junk. Junk for Junkers, we might have said in the last war, if the Old Iron Quest had arisen then. Or as some sloganeers call it now, Scrap for Scrappers. And how the kids love it! You might think, from their own personal and mass operations, that they alone were fighting and winning this war.

Maybe they are, with their little wagons and bikes and their eagerness to help, their keen searching of every nook and cranny in basement, yard, attic and garage, and their relentless seizure of every metallic thing in the neighborhood that isn't nailed down, and their requisitioning of everything on wheels that will carry the loot to the rising junk heaps. Their zeal is so infectious that sluggish grownups are themselves shamed into action and catch the contagious spirit of the drive.

MARCHING

Herr Supermann lately has a rebellion on his hands, and it grows and grows. The wrath of free-souled nations is rising against the enslavers. Western Europe is seething like a hornet's nest. The Norwegians are in open rebellion and the Danes and Dutch are rising. The French, except for a handful of weaklings and traitors, are not only dreaming of liberation but beginning to pave the way for it. The Greeks and Czechs, sabotaging the oppressors as they can, await their opportunity for liberation and revenge.

The British, who remain free at heavy cost, and the Americans, now the chief hope of oppressed Europe, are coming to the rescue. Their warplanes begin to fill the skies. The Russians hold back the destroyers on the eastern front and, day by day, hew down the Nazi strength.

It begins to look like the coming of "the great and terrible day of the Lord." Vengeance is His, and He will repay. But the payment will come, as usual, through the courageous efforts of men rising above themselves to do the Lord's work of punishment and cleansing. Sooner than men think, the prostrate people of Europe may be marching, and singing in their own tongues:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord.
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored.
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his
terrible, swift sword;

GAS RATION REPRIEVE?

Just as motorists have resigned themselves sadly to the enforcement of coupon gas rationing, the war council of the petroleum industry proposes a three-months delay. The council agrees that the 35-mile speed limit and a drastic reduction of gasoline consumption are both desirable, but points out that the former is already accepted by the public, and thinks the necessary fuel rationing may be accomplished voluntarily. It refers to the "already wide spread of volunteer rationing outside of the east coast."

It would be fine if such results could be attained throughout the country without compulsion. And there does seem to be developing in this country lately an unusual spirit of cooperation and self-restraint. But aren't there still too many people with "too much ego in their cosmos" to be trusted with complete self-control behind a steering wheel?

FATAL HANDSHAKE

When Hitler shakes hands, the shakee had better beware. In 1934 Hitler shook hands publicly with his bosom friend, Ernst von Roehm. Three days later he had Roehm murdered. This was in line with his policy toward the countries in his way—attack on Poland with which he had a ten-year non-aggression agreement, on Denmark and Norway with which he had no quarrel whatever; on Russia, his ally.

The latest recipient of Hitler's regard—for publication—is Marshal Rommel. Things have not been going very well lately for Rommel in North Africa. Whether as one report goes he is ill, or according to another report he is in disgrace, the fact is that Rommel is not now in Africa, but in Germany. During Hitler's recent speech to the Nazi party, opening the fourth year of the winter relief campaign, he took pains to walk over to Rommel, and, before all the crowd, to grasp his hand.

Rommel, as a soldier, must take lightly the chances of death. Yet even he must have felt a chill when the Fuehrer publicly attested his regard: For when Hitler is most friendly, he is most dangerous.

What's in a name? An English publisher announces a new edition of a standard textbook on "Strength of Materials." The author, appropriately, is Professor Timoshenko, of Russia.

SACCHARIN INSTEAD OF SUGAR?

As sugar is one food that is forbidden in extreme cases of overweight, many overweights now use saccharin to sweeten drinks or foods as it is many times sweeter than sugar and does not get deposited as fat in the body.

The rationing of sugar during the war has caused many of us to use saccharin for sweetening our tea and coffee.

A few years ago some overweights took large doses of saccharin and cases of severe stomach irritation and even poisoning by saccharin were reported. Today physicians are finding a few cases of dyspepsia where saccharin is used in half teaspoon doses instead of in one-half to 1½ grain tablets to sweeten tea and coffee.

As a matter of fact saccharin does interfere with digestion in that it slows up the flow of the digestive juices. Research workers also state that it slows up other body processes also such as the oxidation or purifying of the blood in the lungs and in the tissues. Some individuals report that the use of saccharin causes headaches.

Cases of poisoning by saccharin are rare. The symptoms resemble those of alcohol intoxication—rapid pulse, rapid breathing, unconsciousness. Artificial respiration is the treatment.

What about the use of saccharin for tea, coffee, lemonade, or other drinks, cooking and other uses?

While large doses may cause indigestion, headaches and poisoning, small doses are safe.

There have been so many inquiries regarding the danger to health and to life of saccharin that the Journal of the American Medical Association recently carried an editorial of advice and reassurance to physicians and the public.

"Sugar rationing and new emphasis on weight reduction have doubtless increased the use of saccharin for sweetening purposes. Renewed interest in the possible harmful effect of this substance is therefore only natural. Earlier investigations of saccharin, however, have failed to reveal dangerous side-actions except from extremely large doses. Likewise, the evidence does not reveal any reason why saccharin cannot be used continously in average sweetening doses for any length of time. Many patients have taken saccharin for years without harmful effects."

The above information from such high authority should remove all fear of saccharin, if taken in usual doses, that is ½ to 1½ grains.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The 50th annual meeting of the trustees and managers of the Industrial Home on East Chester street, was held on January 31, 1927. As a youngster I can remember when the Industrial Home was on Broadway, near Staples street.

The old building that housed the institution in those years was later turned into living apartments after the present Industrial Home was erected and placed in operation.

Only two of the original managers of the institution were living in 1927. They were Miss Mary Van Leuven of Kingston and Mrs. William Gokey of Brooklyn, and both were more than 90 years of age at that time.

At the annual meeting that year Miss Van Leuven was elected honorary president, while Mrs. Philip Elting was elected president. Other officers were Mrs. Frank R. Powley, first vice president; Mrs. Williams Carter, second vice president; Mrs. William H. Van Elten, recording secretary, and Mrs. Samuel M. Watts, corresponding secretary.

The trustees elected were D. N. Mathews, George Burgevin, John D. Schoonmaker, Frank A. Waters, W. H. Van Slyke, J. T. Washburn, and James O. Winston.

Thirty-five years ago I wrote a "poem" about the Skillypot, the famous old ferry that for more than a century plied the waters of the Rondout creek between Rondout and Sleightsburgh. This "poem" was printed that year and I have had several requests to reprint it.

The "poem" reads as follows:

"O Skillypot thy glorious form
Before my eyes I see
And so before the muse depart I inscribe this song to thee

"For twenty years or more
I have trod thy noble deck
In passing o'er from shore to shore
Safe hast thou borne me, ne'r a wreck
O Skillypot

"Yes, for over twenty years and more
Through sunshine, hail or rain
Thou hast not stopped thy onward way
Except for broken chain
O Skillypot

"And when at last I cash my chips
And start for that land so fair
I wonder if when I reach Old River Styx
I'll find thee waiting there
O Skillypot

The Skillypot was kept in operation until about a year following the throwing open of the present Rondout Creek Bridge to traffic. The opening of the bridge caused such a decrease in the traffic over the creek on the ferry that it was found impossible to meet overhead expenses and she was hauled off the route.

Former Alderman John A. Fischer of Abeel street purchased the ancient craft, and I believe he later junked her.

President's Radio Address Gains Emphasis With Coincidental Announcement of Solomon Naval Losses

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 13 — President Roosevelt's radio address by coincidence shared attention with the announcement of the loss of three United States cruisers in the Solomons and heavy casualties.

The President did not mention the naval losses but, against the background of this severe drain on our naval forces, the appeal for cooperation from the civilian public will not lose significance but rather gain because of it.

Out in the Pacific, the American navy is fighting a tough battle—ten thousand miles away from the homeland and against a navy that doesn't have to divide its strength in two oceans. The price of the invasion of the Solomons had to be paid to prevent a southern march of the enemy toward Australia and New Zealand and toward our Pacific bases in the southwest.

The President didn't refer to the dangers that would be incurred in attempting to land troops for an operation in France in what is known as a "second front", but he made it abundantly clear that he and the other members of our high command are not going to be influenced by arm-chair strategists or the clamor of those who are not in possession of the facts and who, on account of the censorship, cannot know those essential facts.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable news announcement—and it is presumed that our hold in the Solomons is by no means absolutely assured as yet—the President exhibited confidence concerning the whole military and naval outlook. This note of confidence is in contrast to the expressions of those in official Washington who have felt it necessary to issue a scare about our losing the war.

Mr. Roosevelt chose instead to breathe reassurance, and the events in Russia and the steady growth of our air operations over Europe are confirmation of the turn for the better that the war, as a whole, has taken for our side.

Perhaps the most important part of the President's speech was his calm announcement to the American people that he wants legislation drafting the boys from 18 to 20 years of age. He stressed the importance of younger men in the army. The Congress has committees already at work on legislation, and it is probable that registration will be begun before the end of this year so that the younger men will be called into service shortly after the first of the year.

The decision to call the 18 to 20-year-olds means that manpower estimates as they relate to the married men both with and without children will have to be revised. If the army is to call the younger men, then the married men doubtless will be deferred, though already many draft boards, because of the unfair quota system now in effect, have summoned married men in some instances.

If married men are called in any great numbers, it is probable that age classifications will be made so that the younger men are summoned to service first. The draft operation requires such a large amount of time and work that the President must have thought it desirable to warn the public about the plan to draft 18 to 20-year olds so as to enable them and their families to make the necessary plans, especially with respect to schools and colleges. The problems of the latter will begin to multiply the moment the government takes the 18 to 20-year olds.

The President's idea of getting high school boys and citizens generally to pitch in and help with the harvest will be put to the test soon, but it is doubtful whether the solution of the farm labor problem is going to be as simple as that. Possibly when the new manpower legislation is adopted—and it may be enacted sometime in November just after the elections—there will be a revision of the draft as it affects agriculture.

It would be most unfortunate if men had to be called back from the army to help care for the food supply, just as today men are being called back from the army in some sections of the country to help mine certain needed metals. The President just gave the country a preliminary view of the manpower problem in more or less gentle terms. Before long, the manpower problem will be the principal issue before the country.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — If there is anything wrong with civilian morale in this country (and I don't believe there really is) it could be given a terrific boost by sending every one of our 100,000,000 or so 'teen-age-and-up persons to see "This Is the Army."

"This Is the Army" is, of course, the World War II edition of Irving Berlin's "Yip, Yip, Yaphank." Except for one nostalgic number in which Berlin himself and a dozen oldtimers appear, there is nothing of the World War I revue in it. The cast and production staff of more than 300 men are all soldiers, and all privates and non-commissioned officers at that. They are not amateurs and there is nothing amateurish about the show which now is on a coast-to-coast tour.

Berlin did the music and lyrics but there civilian participation in the revue ends. The direction, and it's a beautiful piece of pacing, timing and handling of large choruses, is in the hands of Staff Sgt. Ezra Stone—the same Sergeant Stone who until a few weeks ago was the Henry Aldrich of radio fame.

Sgt. Milton Rosenstock, who was on his way to fame as a symphonic orchestra director when the draft caught up with him, leads the big orchestra. The costuming, dances and scenery were all done by the soldiers and the cast is full of names that were beginning to be heard on Broadway and in Hollywood, names like Philip Truex, Joe Cook, Jr., Earl Oxford, Julie Oshins and many others.

Not since this war started has anything come to Washington in the way of entertainment like "This Is the Army." Playing to standing room only nights and three matinees a week, it has made the old National Theater rafters ring with the kind of applause it has never heard before. From Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary of War Stimson, Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall, down to the clerks and secretaries, Washington audiences have poured out of the National with a new lift because "This Is the Army," as well as being grand entertainment, is a heart-thumping spectacle, with plenty of patriotic undertones.

From observations here, however, it seems to me that the boys who are making "This Is the Army" possible and dumping about $40,000 a week into the coffers of the Army Emergency Relief aren't getting the respect they deserve from either civilians or the Army. These boys are not on leave. They are on duty just as much as their buddies back in camp.

They not only play ten shows a week — road work that would break the back of some veteran troupers — but they drill three hours a day, are assigned to details to clean up the theater, help move in and out, and do many other menial chores that are no more fun than KP duty.

All they get out of it is their regular Army pay and $3.07 a day for board and room—a sum that shrinks pretty rapidly in the face of hotel rents and a soldier's appetite.

Ellenville Stages Firemen's Parade

Six Visiting Companies in Line of March

The annual parade and inspection of the Ellenville Fire Department took place Saturday afternoon and with six visiting companies, a band and three fife and drum corps it was a colorful affair.

The parade was headed by Mayor Benjamin Sparks and members of the Ellenville Village Board, Fire Chief Fred J. Frear and Assistants Benjamin Litchrod and William Krom. Local firemen in line numbered over 100 despite the fact that over 50 of their members are now serving with the armed forces.

Pioneer Engine Co. had as their guests members of the Otisville and Napanoch Fire Departments; Scoresby Hose & Hook & Ladder Co. entertained the Kerhonkson firemen, while Kimble Hose Co. had as guests companies from Port Jervis, Monticello and Walden.

Musical organizations in line included Clayton's Band of Ellenville and fife and drum corps from Middletown, Port Jervis and Walden.

The parade started at 4 o'clock and for an hour and a half the marchers traversed the main streets of the village, being greeted by large crowds along the line of march. At the conclusion of the parade and inspection the visiting firemen were entertained by the local companies to which they were assigned, buffet luncheons being served.

For many years the annual parade and inspection was one of the features of the four-days fair of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, but these were finally dropped, one compelling reason being that the firemen got rather "fed up" with donning heavy uniforms and marching around the dusty half-mile track at the fair grounds on a hot summer day.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press).

Burglarly—A La Carte

Mitchell, Ind.—It was just a hungry burglar that entered Mrs. Wayne Chastain's home.

She reported to police the man bound her to a chair, gagged her securely and then helped himself to a meal from the family refrigerator.

Mrs. Chastain, freed by neighbors after the gourmet fled, said she was "too terrified to obtain an accurate description of the man.

That Braid Again!

Kansas City — Lieut. James McCatee, Navy relations officer, was waiting in the lobby of a burlesque theatre. He wanted to talk with the manager about a float for a war chest drive.

Up walked a stranger who eyed McAtee's uniform, complete with stripes and braid.

"Stop dreamin', usher!" he barked. "Tell me when the show starts."

Emily Post Trap

San Diego — William Charles Parrish, Dayton, O., copied the uniform correctly, but he muffed the manners.

Parrish, 31, was jailed last night for unlawfully wearing military dress. F.B.I. agent Harold Nathan said the disguise might not have been detected except—

Parrish saluted enlisted men before they saluted him.

Unmatched Boom

Santa Barbara, Calif.—Business is red hot, practically blazing, in the west coast match industry.

C. W. Zuren, a field representative, explained one reason why business has boomed since Pearl Harbor.

More men are smoking pipes. They require more matches than cigars or cigarettes.

To the Letter

Blackfoot, Idaho — Bill Clough, 12-year-old son of county sheriff Del Clough, believes in obeying his father.

A two-point buck was spied on Bill's first hunting trip.

"Where'll I shoot him?" asked breathless Bill.

"Between the eyes."

Billy shot and the buck dropped. He was drilled in the exact center of his forehead.

Powerful Discovery

Phoenix, Ariz.—W. F. Steel is glad now that the plumbing leaked. He had been in the house only a month, and was pretty peeved when it went bad.

Under the house he went to investigate.

Before he found the leak he found a box. Inside was a newspaper dated nine years ago.

Also inside were eight sticks of dynamite, complete with caps and fuses.

Button, Button, Etc. . . .

Chicago — The politicians will have to get along during the fall campaign without their personal advertising—lapel buttons.

Firms which manufactured thousands of the lapel pins during former campaigns are not able to turn out any this year, officials said. Priorities have shut down on celluloid, tin and brass—needed to make the buttons.

The only kind of lapel buttons being manufactured, said officials, were identification pins worn by war and government workers.

Lecturer Is Heard

Martin DeMuth, artist, lecturer, and world traveler, talked to the students and faculty in the assembly program on Tuesday, October 4. Mr. DeMuth has traveled in some 60 countries and has talked to over 3,000 natives. In keeping with this changing world, Mr. DeMuth displayed a new map projection which is being introduced in schools this fall, the solar map projection. The rest of the program was devoted to the showing of motion pictures of the island of Bali, India, Ceylon, Singapore, Hongkong, Philippines, Java and Australia.

The Music Association held a social function last week. Those attending were members of the Glee Club Chorus and Band. Caroline Morehouse accompanied by Florence Kirpick sang. Jean Rogers headed the refreshment committee and Evelyn Bardsley the publicity. Evelyn Bardsley and Ruth Bergman handled the entertainment end of the program.

Guest at Forum

Dr. Roland G. Will was a guest speaker at a freshman forum last week. His topic was "Suggestions About How to Study." He remarked, "learning to study more effectively leads to happiness through success as a teacher and that investigations show that as a rule students in teachers' colleges with the highest scholarships usually are the ones to get jobs as teachers first.

C. P. T. Course

This week marks the final week of the eight-week's Civilian Pilot Training course that has been progressing here in New Paltz for the past two months.

The course officially closes on Saturday although many of the men will have to complete several hours of flying time which is required.

From here the men have several alternatives that they may take. They may go into the secondary work, or they may pursue glider piloting, or they may take further work that would enable them to be flying instructors.

Test Given Saturday

Here at the College on Saturday, there will be tests given to men who desire to enter the next class. This training program will begin November 1.

C. P. T. courses will continue at New Paltz for the eight weeks period.

Entertains Members

Miss Florence Lane, College librarian, will entertain members of Sigma Pi Sigma at her home Thursday evening, October 15, at 7:30 p. m.

Constance Thompson will deliver at this time a report concerning the tour of the library for members of the Freshman Class. The tour was an activity sponsored by Sigma Pi Sigma for the benefit of the freshmen.

The group will discuss the advisability of having convocation and initiate new members.

Sigma Pi Sigma, the honorary scholastic society, has for its advisor, Miss Ruth Mack Havens.

No Parents Day

Due to rationing conditions, the social committee of Student Council has thought it best to cancel preparations for Parents' Day.

This day, set aside each year for parents, has always played an important part in the school social calender. Special classes were held, the various school organizations played some part in showing the parents the ins and outs of this school.

This event, along with others postponed for the duration, will be continued again.

To Present Play

"The New Paltz Players" will hold its second meeting of the year at 7:30 Wednesday evening, October 14.

All members present at the meeting will act out pantomimes. The pantomimes may be done by members in a group or singly. Preparations for the pantomimes were started at the initial meeting of the year, which occured Wednesday evening, September 23.

Pantomimes Planned

Following the regular business meeting and presentation of the various pantomimes, refreshments will be served.

"The New Paltz Players," directed and advised by Miss Rebecca McKenna, compose the dramatic society of State Teachers College at New Paltz.

Schedule Concerts

Once again, under the auspices of the Three Arts Society, another series of concerts will be held this year in the Free Academy Auditorium in Newburgh.

In the past members of the faculty and student body attended the various concerts in large groups. Transportational facilities may hinder a similar performance this year. However, those people who can obtain transportation may again purchase subscriptions for the affairs.

First Concert Occurs

Tuesday evening, October 6, marked the date of the first Newburgh Concert. Several faculty members attended the concert in order to observe the internationally famous piano duo of Jacques Fray and Maria Braggrotti.

Eleven years ago these artists were students of the French Conservatory and active members of the parisitan "avante-garde" of music. Upon meeting in Paris, they merged their pianos and began building a repertoire from the manuscripts of their own transcriptions.

Field Is Young

Here in the young field of duopianism, they felt was a new medium through which all music could be reflected. No choral, orchestral or operatic work being too intricate for twenty fingers to execute. These young artists delved into the vast storehouse of music previously closed to soloists and are said to have emerged with a new style of pianism which brought them immediate recognition.

Said to be tireless pioneers in their work, they were the first to give popular music the significance of a concert hall performance in their debut at the Salle Plevel in Paris, in 1928, and in a lecture-recital at the Sarbonne University the same year.

First to Add Humor

They are said to have been the first team to bring humor to the concert stage when in their New York debut at Carnegie Hall in 1930 they rocked the audience with take offs on famous composers using Yankee Doodle as the principle theme.

Today these pianists select their programs for recital, radio and symphony appearance from an entirely original two piano library of their own which ranges from organ works of Bach to songs of the day.

Old D.&N. to Make Its Last Run Soon

Small Line in Mountains Will Be Abandoned

Thursday the Delaware & Northern railroad will close to business, but trains will run through October 17 to clear the line of all cars.

Following the closing, present train crews will dismantle the various stations and move to the Margaretville shows all the furniture, stoves, telegraph instruments and other equipment.

The cars which belong to the line will be assembled on a siding in Margaretville, the locomotives and the gasoline passenger car will be housed in the Margaretville shops.

Fires will be pulled and the engines will be ready for a buyer. The shops will be open for a short time to put equipment in condition for storage and will then close.

The Margaretville offices will be open for some weeks while the affairs of the road are being wound up.

New York city owns the right-of-way—the real estate, while Sam Rosoff, who sold the road to New York, retained the metals, buildings, rolling stock and property other than the real property.

It is expected that all of the equipment will be junked.

The closing of the railroad will make a big change in the mail service and there was a meeting of the postmasters of Margaretville, Shavertown, Pepacton and Downsville held in Margaretville last week with a mail route agent. Following the meeting a notice was posted asking for bids to carry the mail from Arkville to Downsville.

The village of Margaretville will feel the pinch of the closing more than any other village. The road had paid out nearly $30,000 yearly in that village. About the same amount was paid annually for railroad ties.

Margaretville has been receiving nearly 500 carloads of freight over the road each year. This will now have to come by truck, either from Arkville or from further points.

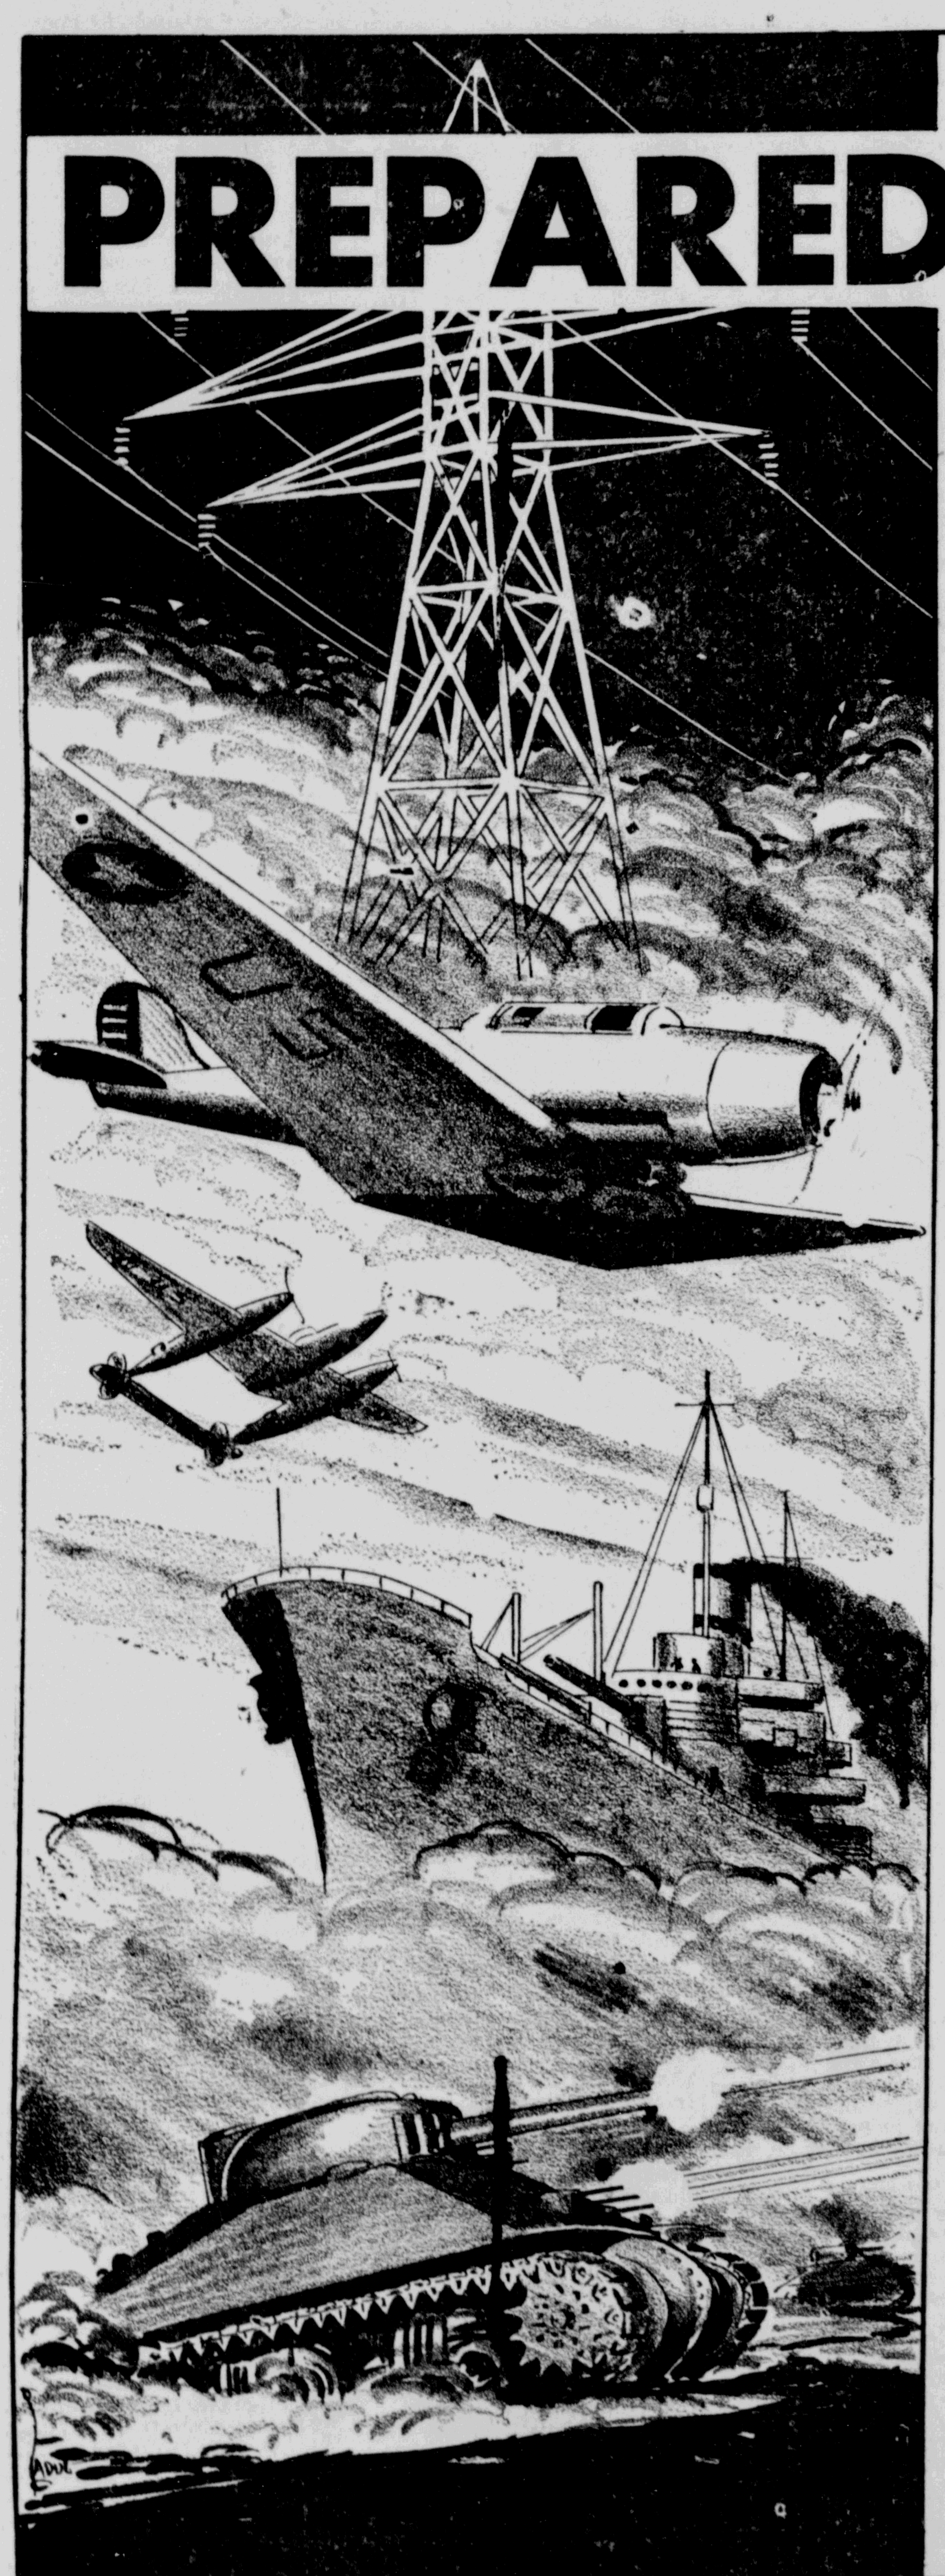
SOMETIMES WE THINK THEY'RE TOO DARNED GOOD!

Yes, sir, sometimes when we get to thinking about our classified ads, we think they're too good for our own good.

You see, it's like this. Someone call 2200 and inserts an ad. "Run it 3 days," they say. Then after the ad appears just One night, they call and say, "Take my ad out. I had about 50 calls last night."

So we lose money, for the other insertions. Now, do you see why we sometimes think our classified ads are "too good."

THE FREEMAN



PREPARED for PEACE or WAR!

It takes a lot of electric power to forge the implements of war!

Electric power must be manufactured, too . . . and the very instant it is made it must be used. It's the one manufactured article which can't be stored for even a fraction of a second.

How is it then that unlimited service has been kept flowing smoothly to vital war industries—even though most of the available supplies of steel, copper, and aluminum (the self-same materials used to build electrical equipment) are being turned into the tools of war?

▶ Because farsighted business management planned ahead in peacetime, the industry was ready for our Nation's vast war production effort! They weren't planning for war, of course, but for greater electrical conveniences to reach more and more people in their everyday lives. It is these electrical reserves, provided yesterday, which are meeting today's emergencies. Now, eleven months after Pearl Harbor, sufficient electric power is still available, throughout the country, to meet the unexpected demands of war production and essential civilian needs.

What is true in the country as a whole is also true in our own Central Hudson Valley. Here, too, your company has provided for the future . . . and no industry has lacked for power when it was ready to go to work.

Later, perhaps, in this part of New York State, some moderate form of power rationing may be found advisable—not because utilities failed to provide for the future, but simply because huge quantities of power may be needed in other areas to speed up war production. If that does happen, we know that each one will gladly do his part in curtailing nonessential use.

Acts Well-Arranged At K. of C. Ball

In spite of the noticeable absence of the young men, the 1,000 people, about 500 less than last year's attendance, who did attend the 23rd annual Charity Ball sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, last evening, at the municipal auditorium, found a well-arranged program of entertainment and dancing. The six specialty acts conducted by master of ceremonies, Alfred Skee, were timed to a one hour performance leaving the remainder of the evening for dancing.

The hall was decorated with streamers of red, white and blue shading the lights and trimming the balcony. Wide streamer drapes outlined the blacked-out windows. The K. of C. shield was also used and on the stage was the American flag.

Paul Zucca and his orchestra opened the evening's program with several selections including some of the old favorites and patriotic airs. During the word of welcome given by Thomas Lodge, general chairman of the ball, a moment of silent prayer for the men in service was observed.

Marjorie Barrett, who replaced Jane Matthews originally scheduled, opened the entertainment program of the evening. She not only was an accomplished violinist but singer and dancer as well. When she appeared later in the program in a medley of the popular Gypsy tunes, she played her violin and danced the waltzes at the same time. Her playing was continuous although she was executing splits, or back-bends in her dance routine. Miss Matthews had been called to Washington, D. C. for a government position.

One of last year's favorites at the K. of C. Ball, Bob Kennedy, blond tenor soloist, returned this year. This was one of the last appearances Mr. Kennedy will make for he soon will be drafted in the army. He first sang a medley of Victor Herbert's music, followed by "At the Balaika" and encores of "Donkey Serenade," another medley salute to the men in service with songs of the different branches of the armed forces; and as a special request "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Following Mr. Kennedy, the master of ceremonies introduced the local dance team of Miss Elizabeth Dwyer and Walter May, pupils of the Helen Cashin School of Dancing. They gave an exhibition ball room dancing waltz routine and Walter May returned later in the program to give one of his intricate tap numbers.

Wearing a gown weighing 55 pounds practically lined with 9,000 different kinds of cards, the human card index, Arthur Lloyd, proved to be one of the most entertaining artists in his field. After a few preliminary tricks with a large deck of cards, Mr. Lloyd urged members of the audience to call for any type of card. In the course of his act he produced draft card, officer's questionnaire, ticket to the third game of the World Series, various kinds of business cards, rationing cards, union certificates, wedding license, divorce degree, mah jong score card and several greeting cards. The group of high school students shouted for an A. A. card which Mr. Lloyd could not produce although he did show a menu from the local Central Lunch. The Boy Scout card was that of his son, Joseph Lloyd who has been reported as a prisoner of war in the Philippines where he was serving with the forces.

The stellar act and right from the home talent was that of Sharkey, the famous seal, and his trainer, Mark Huling. Sharkey performed the usual balance tricks with balls and hoops. He then proceeded to go to bed, arranging the pillow and coverlet. After a few actual snores he pretended to awaken with a resounding yawn. He also imitated sounds and played "Where the River Shannon Flows" on the chimes. Mr. Huling and Sharkey have been signed to appear at Radio City Music Hall in the coming stage show.

The novelty acrobatic trio of Anthony, Allen and Hodges will also appear at the Music Hall. This trio brought the formal entertainment to a close with their sophisticated dance steps woven into a slyly changing pattern that ended on a whimsical, mischievous vein.

William Fitzpatrick was chairman of the program committee. With the war conditions the engaging of outstanding talent for acts becomes exceedingly difficult as can be seen by the few references made to active service in connection with the performers themselves or near relatives.

The members of the Senior Girl Scout Troop of St. Joseph's Church assisted in the dining room. The group of young ladies who assisted in selling the flowers were the Misses Anne Dittmar, Dorothy Reis, Patricia Zaccheo, Catherine Lodge, Agnes Thurin, Joan Cahill, Esther Reis, Betty Spino, Margaret Feye, Patricia Martin, Rose Mary Conway, Mary Catherine Conway, Rose Miuccio, Nancy Miuccio, Marion Howard and Sheila Larkin.

Dancing continued to the music of Paul Zucca's orchestra until 2 a. m.

Century Club Names New Vice President

Twentieth Century Club met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. J. C. Fraser at her home on Johnston avenue. This was the first meeting of the actual study group with roll call and papers. Mrs. Maynard Mizel, president, presided.

During the business session, the resignation of Mrs. George E. Kenny as vice president was accepted. Since Mr. Kenny has entered active service Mrs. Kenny has been teaching. Mrs. Mizel appointed Mrs. Robert P. Baylor to fill the vacancy. Tentative plans were also made to further assist in the war effort.

Mrs. Harry Walker prepared the paper for the day on a canvas survey in Mexico. She gave a geographic outline of the country and said that it is a land of paradoxes presenting many things to many people. Her material was taken from the book, "Mexico Around Me," by Max Miller. Mrs. E. O. Allen presented the first roll call paper of the day on the people of Mexico. She told of the population of the country and the economic status. Thirty per cent of the population are Indians; 55 per cent mestizos and 15 per cent whites. There are five classes in the country ranging from the peons to the few privileged. The rancheros comprise most of the land owners, industrial and government employes.

Mrs. Richard Boerker also gave a roll call paper speaking of the government in Mexico. It is a federated republic similar to that of the United States with a legislative, judicial and executive departments. In the informal discussion which followed, Mrs. B. C. Van Ingen gave some personal glimpses of the country.

The members were reminded to make reservations for the Federated Women's Club luncheon, October 19.

The next meeting will be October 26, at the home of Miss Ella Bernard, 388 Albany avenue.

Millions of Tons Of Scrap Metal

Twenty-four States Now Show Over Million Tons in Drive

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Figures—and a lack of them—today told a rousing story of the earnest job being done by Americans to gather scrap metal for the war mills in the nationwide drive led by the newspapers.

Perhaps four million tons of old iron and steel have been gathered in the campaign, it was indicated in a statement by the Newspapers United Scrap Metal Drive Committee which said at least an estimated one million tons were known to have been collected.

There were still five days to go in the drive which began generally September 28. In some states the drive began earlier, finished earlier. In some it has only just started or will soon begin.

The committee said the 24 states which it listed as leading the nation reported estimated collections of 1,035,194 tons — 2,070,388,000 pounds—or an average of 31.3 pounds for every man, woman and child in those states.

But those figures were only part of the actual figure.

Committee Chairman Richard W. Slocum said:

"The enthusiasm of Americans from coast to coast to pile up mountains of scrap is hardly reflected in the figures so far available.

"While the committee so far has reports of more than one million tons gathered [illegible] the top 24 states, this probably [illegible]epresents only one-quarter of the scrap actually in stock piles. More tons of scrap are being added daily."

"Many states reporting have so far given estimates for only a few of their counties, and a number of states, although active in scrap collection, have not yet reported tonnages to the committee."

For the fifth day in a row Kansas led the nation in average pounds collected per person with a figure of 72.2 and a tonnage of 65,000. But Nevada leaped into second position with that state's first report of 70.3 pounds per person and a total of 3,870 tons.

Three heavily populated industrial states—New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio—had a reported collection of 622,639 tons, more than half the total for all 24 of the leading states.

Capture Kept Secret

pedite hearings on the necessary legislation.

"If the Commander-in-Chief says he needs them," May said, "I w[illegible] cooperate in every way and I a[illegible] sure the Congress will go along."

Senator Gurney (R.-S. D.) sa[illegible] he would press for an immedia[illegible] hearing by the Senate militar[illegible] committee on his bill to draft 1[illegible] and 19 year olds, and Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he was sure the American people as well as Congress "will react favorably" to the President's recommendations.

Mr. Roosevelt, who suggested that legislation might also be needed to solve the manpower problem on the home [illegible]ont, alluded indirectly to a se[illegible]nd fighting front again by declar[illegible]g that one of the major decision[illegible] of strategy already made "relate[illegible]o the necessity of diverting e[illegible]my forces from Russia and China to other theatres of war by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

"All of our combat units that go overseas," he said, "must consist of young, strong men who have had thorough training. A division that has an average age of 23 or 24 is a better fighting unit than one which has an average age of 33 or 34.

"The more of such troops we have in the field, the sooner the war will be won, and the smaller will be the cost in casualties."

The Chief Executive, after [illegible]viewing his recent inspection tour and reporting that Allied strength was "on the up-grade" while that of the Axis was waning, declared the objective of today was clear and realistic.

"It is to destroy completely the military power of Germany, Italy and Japan to such good purpose," he said, "that their threat against us and all the other United Nations cannot be revived a generation hence.

"We are united in seeking the kind of victory that will guarantee that our grandchildren can grow and, under God, may live their lives, free from the constant threat of invasion, destruction, slavery and violent death."

". . . And we Americans and our Allies are going to win," he declared "and do not let anyone tell you anything different . . .

"Germany and Japan are already realizing what the inevitable result will be when the total strength of the United Nations hits them—at additional places on the earth's [illegible]rface."

Mobilization Needed

The President, who said that "we are getting ahead of our enemies" in the battles of transportation and production, declared that in order to keep stepping up production it will be necessary to solve "a formidable problem in the mobilization of manpower."

"It is not that we do not have enough people in this country to do the job," he said. "The problem is to have the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time.

"We are learning to ration materials; and we must now learn to ration manpower. * * *

"In order to do this, we shall be compelled to stop workers from moving from one war job to another as a matter of personal preference; to stop employers from stealing labor from each other; to use older men, and handicapped people, and more women, and even grown boys and girls, wherever possible and reasonable, to replace men of military age and fitness; to train new personnel for essential war work; and to stop the wastage of labor in all non-essential activities."

Community efforts, examples of which he said he had noted on his trip, should be made where necessary to help farmers harvest their crops. He continued:

"It may be that all of our volunteer effort—however well intentioned and well administered—will not suffice to solve the problem. In that case, we shall have to adopt new legislation. If this is necessary, I do not believe that the American people will shrink from it."

Turns Into Boomerang

The President, who said he planned to make other secret trips of inspection about the country, reported that the enemy's once touted use of "the war of nerves" was turning into a boomerang.

"For the first time," he said, "the Nazi propaganda machine is on the defensive. They begin to apologize to their own people for the repulse of their vast forces at Stalingrad, and for the enormous casualties they are suffering. They are compelled to beg their overworked people to rally their weakened production. They even publicly admit, for the first time, that Germany can be fed only at the [illegible]ost of stealing food from the rest of Europe.

"They are proclaiming that a second front is impossible; but, at the same time, they are desperately rushing troops in all directions, and stringing barbed wire all the way from the coasts of Finland and Norway to the islands of the Eastern Mediterranean."

"Meanwhile, they are driven to increase the fury of their atrocities."

Takes Crack at Press, Radio

The President had said that the nation's combat units were well manned, well equipped and well trained, and that their effectiveness would depend upon the quality of their leadership and the wisdom of "strategic plans on which all military operations are based."

"I can say one thing about our plans: They are not being decided by the typewriter strategists who expound their views in the press or on the radio," Mr. Roosevelt said, and added:

"One of the greatest of American soldiers, Robert E. Lee, once remarked on the tragic fact that in the war of his day all the best generals were apparently working on newspapers instead of in the army. That seems to be true in all war.

"The trouble with the typewriter strategists is that, while they may be full of bright ideas, they are not in possession of much information about the facts or problems of military operations.

"We therefore, will continue to leave the plans for this war to the military leaders."

Committee to Study Skip-Stop System

Alderman Patrick T. Gilday, chairman of the railroad and bus committee of the Common Council, has arranged for a conference with the officials of the Kingston City Transportation Co., to be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council chambers in the city hall to consider the advisability of inaugurating the skip stop system on the city bus lines.

In other cities a skip stop system has been placed in effect to conserve tires and gas, and it is expe[illegible]ed that the system will be ado[illegible]ted for Kingston.

In the years of the first World War the trolley road adopted the skip stop system, stopping at every other corner along the route. This was done to conserve electricity.

Blind Workers Do Big Job in Burbank

Burbank, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP).—Blind workers are helping build fighting and bombing planes at the Lockheed aircraft factory, and their boss says that in some respects they are better than sighted employes.

Eleven blind men and two sightless women have been engaged in placement test in the Lockheed plant for more than a month, and some of them now turn out more work than their fellows, due to higher concentration.

"On some of the more difficult operations the quality of their work is above average," said C. L. Pelton, Lockheed superintendent of fabrication. "In every case within a few weeks the quantity of their work equalled or exceeded that of sighted persons on the same operation."

Red Cross Will Furnish Kit Bags For Servicemen

Requests from the War Department regarding kit bags for servicemen embarking for overseas duty have grown to such proportions that it has been found necessary to establish quotas for Red Cross chapters in order that these kits may become available in sufficient quantities.

Senator Charles W. Walton, chairman [illegible]f the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross, announced this morning that Ulster county's quota for kit bags has been set at 1,800—approximately the number of local men now in service overseas.

"Each of these kit bags cost in the neighborhood of two dollars apiece," stated the chairman, "and we are now receiving contributions of any amount in order to defray the expense of assembling these bags. Contributions may be sent to the Ulster County Chapter American Red Cross at 237 Fair street, and marked for the attention of the Committee on Kit Bags for Servicemen."

Due to the possibility of purchasing the necessary articles for the kit bags at a lower price when bought in quantities, the local chapter of the Red Cross will assemble the bags, and therefore only contributions of money are requested.

The kit bags are to contain: cigarettes, smoking tobacco, playing cards, books, water-proof match boxes, metal pencil caps, buttons, soap boxes, soap, chewing gum, writing tablets, envelopes, pencils, double edge razor blades, shoe laces, "Housewife" kit, which includes needles, thread, buttons and safety pins.

Here's How I Licked Wartime Constipation!

It was easy after I was told it's often due to lack of "bulk"

"Seems like I was always 'dosing' up on account of constipation. That sort of stuff gets a fellow down.

"Then a friend pointed out that these war days were upsetting our whole way of living. Particularly in how we eat. Said I ought to take care my meals were properly balanced—and make sure I got plenty of 'bulk.' Because lack of 'bulk' is one of the common causes of wartime constipation. These medicinal laxatives gave me only temporary relief; they didn't get at the cause.

"But, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really fixed me up. It corrects this kind of constipation by supplying 'bulk.' And it tastes swell, too. Just eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek."

Season Is Extended For Duck Hunters; Other Dates Given

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—New Yorkers, despite expected curtailments of meats; can have their fill of proteins—provided they are good enough shots.

The State Conservation Department announces the open duck season will be extended Thursday to the entire state, giving hunters 10 days more shooting than usual, and the woodcock and grouse seasons will open the same day in the southern zone.

The dividing line between this and the northern zone, where the woodcock season closes Thursday, is the New York Central railroad tracks between Albany and Buffalo, and the main line tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad between Albany and the Massachusetts State line.

In most of the state, wild ducks, most kinds of geese including brant, coot, rails and gallinules may be taken through Dec. 23. In portions of Essex, Clinton and Washington counties, where the duck season opened Sept. 26, the season closes Dec. 4.

Grouse may be hunted in the northern zone through Nov. 12. In the southern zone, except on Long Island, the woodcock season runs through Oct. 29, and the grouse season until Nov. 26. Woodcock and grouse may be shot on Long Island beginning Nov. 1.

No woman in Germany over the age of 55 can obtain a smoker's ration card unless she has a husband or at least one unmarried son in the armed forces.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BY THE GRACE OF GOD FREE AND INDEPENDENT TO—

YOU AND EACH OF YOU ARE HEREBY CITED TO SHOW CAUSE at a Surrogate's Court to be held in and for the County of Ulster at the Surrogate's Office in the City of Kingston, N. Y., on the 10th day of November, 1942, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why a certain instrument in writing, dated October 18, 1933, relating to both real and personal estate, presented to said Surrogate's Court, should not be proved, admitted to probate and recorded as the last Will and Testament of GRACE P. Body of Second Drowning Victim Is Recovered From Ashokan Reservoir machine as it was dashed down the rocks on the flood waters. The car in which the three victims were riding was returning from Andes where the trio had gone to look at canary birds. As the car came around a sharp turn at Cold Brook, it swept wide to the left of the road and then the driver in an effort to avoid striking the car of Kart B. Smith of Dobbs Ferry, swung sharply to the right again. The Smith car was sideswiped and the Chevrolet car crashed through the frail guard rail and plunged into the creek. It was last seen settling in the turbid waters as it was carried down stream at a rapid pace.

Since then deputy sheriffs, state troopers, forest rangers and B. W. S. police and employes have searched for the car and the occupants along the stream and in the reservoir. Recovery of two bodies from the reservoir indicates that either the three people were thrown from the car and carried by the swift current to the Ashokan reservoir or the car was rolled to the reservoir and the bodies have floated clear. Inspection of the creek which is now very low has disclosed no trace of the car and it is believed it is in the reservoir.

Arrangements were made with the city of New York to have the salvage crew of the B. W. S. come to the Ashokan reservoir with an electro-magnet to institute a search for the car. Lt. Helgersen said this equipment was expected to arrive today and start the job of searching for the car.

Meanwhile the search for the third body is being continued.

While the body of Miss Terwilliger was recovered Monday about noon, no word of the recovery was received at the sheriff's office until late in the afternoon. A misunderstanding among the searchers led to this failure to notify the sheriff.

Identification of Miss Terwilliger was made by means of clothing found on the body which were shown to Mrs. Minnie Knickels of Stanton, N. J., and Myron Terwilliger, sister and brother of the victim.

Moscow's Secrecy Is Deep-Rooted, National Matter

Russian Counsel, Self-Kept by All, Has Advantages in Peril; Once-Given Word Is Inviolate

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Oct. 13—Both in the United States and in Britain, especially in military circles, one constantly hears the plaint that the Anglo-American Allies are hampered in their relations with Russia by secrecy regarding details of Soviet observers and resources.

It is pointed out that official observers are not permitted the run of the Red fronts. Rather typical was the rhetorical question flung at me recently by an officer—let's call him Anglo-American— who demanded:

"How the devil can we know about the urgency of opening a second front if we have small idea of what Red resources are to meet the present emergency?"

It struck me then and the thought has been growing that the more important point to be determined is what underlies this Russian tendency to secrecy, for it undoubtedly exists. Moscow must have some reason. If that can be fathomed it will perhaps be easier to chart a course which will draw the triple alliance into that closer understanding which is necessary not only to win the war but to win the place.

Accordingly, I have been delving into this problem of Russian reluctance to do a lot of talking.

I wish it were possible to give direct quotations. But you know how it is these days when the shadow of anonymity stands behind public figures, ready to poke them in the back if they dare mention their names. So we'll just get ahead with the job on our own.

We start from the premise that the Russians do keep their affairs to themselves, broadly speaking. There are several reasons for this:

One—The Russians by nature are secretive or, perhaps, a happier way to put it is that it is characteristic of them to keep their own councils. Communism itself is a deep, silent stream.

Two—Then the Russians are an exceedingly proud people who expect their word to be accepted without producing detailed proof of its truth. This in part, would explain their expectation that the Anglo-American alliance would not question the assertion that it is necessary to open a second front to relieve the fierce pressure on the Red armies of the south.

Afraid to Trust Secrets

Three—Moscow is afraid to trust its innermost secrets to the Allies because it feels in all likelihood that those secrets might leak into the press or, at least, be spread by word of mouth and thus come to the enemy.

The point here is that while the Soviet government can and does control the circulation of news in its own domains, both in printed publications and by word of mouth Britain and America maintain no such control. Much of the grist of information that goes into the Anglo-American hopper comes out through the press.

You understand the Red argument here when you stop to consider the case of Britain in the cyclonic autumn of 1940. Hitler's fierce bombardment of the British Isles had reduced them close to impotency. John Bull had only a handful of warplanes left with which to defend himself.

But Hitler didn't realize this. The British government in this case kept its desperate straits a close secret, so much so that a distinguished British air officer told me last night he himself hadn't realized the situation.

All Der Fuehrer knew was that he seemed to be crashing his warplanes against a stone wall. And he quit his bombardment just when he might have won had he continued a few days more.

That was exceptional secrecy for Britain and it would be for America. It is customary procedure in Russia.

Four—We now come down to a point which is delicate but where we can't mince words. There is an element of distrust between the Soviet and the other two members of the triple alliance. That isn't one-sided. It cuts both ways.

Suspicion Not Strange

Now, it isn't strange that suspicion should exist. Ever since the Bolshevist revolution twenty-five years ago, both America and Britain have fought vigorously to exclude an aggresive Communism and its propaganda and the two governments have declined to dissociate points of difference, especially events immediately preceding the outbreak of the second World War.

This situation naturally has given rise at times to friction between Moscow and the other two capitals. However, relations have been much more cordial since the beginning of the Russo-German conflict.

It is logical to expect that still more of this mutual distrust will disappear when the English-speaking Allies get into full battle action. Shoulder-to-shoulder fighting is calculated to dispel a lot of fog.

Naturally, there remains much to be done. From the Anglo-American standpoint, one stumbling block certainly is Communist political propaganda in their countries. They apparently are prepared to accept the full obligations of partnership in the war and in the post-war readjustment but are unwilling to accept the political ism.

It is believed in some quarters here that Moscow would be willing to give guarantees that Russian money would not be used in America or Britain to spread Communism. Likely, the Moscow government also seeks assurances.

As I already have reported, all three Allies are busy with this problem of distrust. It is one of the great issues of the war and one upon which peace developments depend heavily.

Seamen Here Seeking Furnished Apartments

In assisting the service men who have stopped at the Service Men's Center, 672 Broadway, it has been found that many seamen are seeking furnished apartments of three to four rooms. There are a number of these seamen stationed in the city with a possibility that they will be here for quite some time. Others will be coming to the city from time to time.

The committee will try to arrange for the housing of these young men, and anyone having apartments for rent are asked to call the Service Men's Center, 2629, to give information regarding the rooms and the amount of rent.

Applicants Are Considered

Secretary George Goodfellow of the local Y. M. C. A. was one of the group who left Kingston this morning for an army induction center in Albany where he will be given a physical test. If successful he will be immediately inducted into the U. S. Army. The board of directors of the local "Y" have several applicants under consideration for appointment as executive secretary of the association to replace Secretary Goodfellow. The board will meet next week at which time it is expected an appointment will be made.

Raskoskie Is in Service

Inadvertently the name of John Raskoskie of 127 Hasbrouck avenue was omitted from the list of the names of the boys of the Sixth ward who are now in the armed service. Raskoskie enlisted in the Air Corps more than a year ago.

Station Is Repainted

The West Shore railroad passenger station on Railroad avenue is now being repainted. It has been a number of years since the station was given a new coat of paint.

Ohio State Tops Football Poll; Georgia Is Next

Buckeyes Get 25 Points to Lead Country's Gridders; Gophers Out of First 10

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Once-mighty Minnesota has tumbled at last, but the Big Ten Conference still produces the best college football teams in the land, in the opinion of 91 sports writers who voted in the first Associated Press poll of the season and picked Ohio State as the country's No. 1 college team.

Coach Paul Brown's Buckeyes, winners of their first three starts by decisive margins, received 25 first-place votes and a total of 636 points, based on the usual pattern of ten points for each first-place vote, nine for each second, and so on.

While Minnesota, the No. 1 team in the final rankings of 1941, slumped to 14th place this time, the Big Ten produced three other representatives among the first ten, in addition to Ohio State.

The southeastern conference landed a trio of teams among the first ten, including Georgia which was voted the No. 2 spot, while the east was represented by two clubs and the far west by one.

Here are the first ten, with the first-place votes in parentheses and points figured on a 10-9-8-7 etc., basis:

1. Ohio State (25)..........636
2. Georgia (12)..............494
3. Michigan (12)............418
4. Alabama (10)..............356
5. Illinois (8)..............326
6. Georgia Tech (5)..........300
7. Wisconsin (0).............296
8. Pennsylvania (5)..........289
9. Colgate (2)...............170
10. Washington State (3).....168

Big Battle Looms In Georgia-Tulane Game on Saturday

Bull Dogs Are Favorites but Green Wave Rates Watching; Sinkwich vs. Lou Thomas

New Orleans, Oct. 13 (AP)—Georgians might not be able to understand this, but Tulane's Greenies aren't a bit scared of their University of Georgia football team, despite its high national ranking and its Frankie Sinkwich.

Of course nobody around town is actually predicting a victory for Tulane's inexperienced Huskies over Georgia Saturday, but Coach Monk Simons, Jr., expressed the general viewpoint, "my boys are going into All-America Frankie's back yard with the idea of taking a pop at him."

Monk prefaced this remark by conceding Sinkwick was the best back he had seen last year while scouting for Tulane under former Coach Red Dawson.

But to many Tulanians, Frankie will have to prove on the field that he is better than the Greenies' own Lou Thomas.

They point out that Sinkwich did not satisfactorily do this when they met as sophomores two seasons ago. Each gained 41 yards during the game which Tulane won 21-13. But Thomas, then a second-stringer, took only three tries while Sinkwich needed 14 chances.

Last year Frankie made All-America. Lou didn't match that. But he averaged 6.8 yards on running plays, the highest season's mark ever recorded at Tulane; had a .500 passing average, ran back a couple of kickoffs for touchdowns, and otherwise made himself useful.

He scored twice against Southern California this season, once on a 64-yard punt return.

Tulane completed nine passes against Auburn. Lou threw six and caught the other three. His running and passing set up both Tulanes touchdowns.

In the 18-7 upset of Rice, Lou passed for both touchdowns, kicked a field goal and an extra point. He maneuvered a two-play, 83-yard scoring charge by dashing 33 yards and passing to Moose Porter for the rest of the distance.

In other words, Sinkwich won't be the only back on the field. Saturday.

Louis Explains Statement Of Possible Retirement

Boxing Champion Says He Probably Won't Have Another Chance to Enter Ring

By ART EDSON

Kansas City, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Joe Louis controversy—will he or won't he fight again?—has ended. Both sides are right.

Sergeant Joe, on his way from Fort Riley, Kas., to Los Angeles for a two weeks furlough, diplomatically voted both yes and no while waiting for his early morning plane.

He hasn't exactly retired. Still he doubts if he ever does any more heavyweight title-defending.

(In Omaha Sunday Joe told David B. Kaufman of The Associated Press his fighting days were over. Later from New York came Promoter Mike Jacobs' cry that Joe had been misinterpreted.)

"When I said in Omaha I wasn't going to fight again," Joe explained, "I meant I'd probably never have another chance.

"This war is my business now. Say it lasts two years. I'm in for the duration and six months after. That's a long time to be out of training."

Then he figured he was through with the ring for keeps?

"It depends," Joe replied. "Maybe the competition won't amount to much. And it depends on how I feel. You can't tell what kind of shape I'll be in when this war is over."

Joe, now 28, reiterated what he said in Omaha, that he would be pretty old for fighting when the war is finished. "Layoffs sure don't help none." He pointed out.

"Longest I ever went without training was five months," he recalled. "Getting in shape after that, I regretted every mile of it."

On the other hand, for Joe was full of other hands this morning, the army doesn't ruin one's condition as much as might be expected.

"I got to feeling good quick while training for Conn," he declared.

And speaking of Conn, the boy whom Joe was to have fought until the army gave it the gong, Louis doesn't think Billy's chances look too brilliant either.

"Probably be some youngster coming along who can beat everybody," was the way he put it.

While Joe waited in the lobby (he had spent the night chatting with an old friend, Cab Calloway, the orchestra man) surprised citizens rubbed the sleep from their eyes, and then hurried over to grasp his hand.

Invariably it was "how are you, Mister Louis?" with never a glance at those sergeant's stripes on his arm.

New York—The past baseball season was another banner year for southpaw sluggers.

Seven of the top 10 batters in the majors were left hand hitters, and the highest average of the bunch—.356—was pounded out by a leftie, lank Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox, American League stick champion.

Ernie Lombardi, who won the National League crown; Joe Gordon of the Yankees and George Case of the Senators were the only right hand hitters among the big 10.

The others, all southpaws, were Williams, Johnny Pesky of the Boston Red Sox, Stan Spence of the Senators, Enos Slaughter and Stan Musial of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, Pistol Pete Reiser of the Dodgers and Johnny Mize of the New York Giants.

Southpaws have an edge among the batting champions for the past decade. Twelve of the 20 batting champions of both leagues in this period have been lefties. The American League crown has been won five times by right handers and five by lefties but in the senior circuit the southpaws have won seven of 10. Lombardi, who won this year and in 1938, and Joe Medwick, 1937 victor, were the only right handers to finish on top.

During that period the highest average also was turned in by a lefty. That was last year when Williams hit .406.

The St. Louis Cardinals are not noted for the generous salaries paid their players, particularly the younger performers. And the report is that when George (Whitey) Kurowski hit that ninth inning home run to clinch the World Series and enable the Cards to take the larger share of the series dough he earned himself almost double the money he had made all season. That decisive hit was worth more than $6,000.

Investigations Are Still Being Made of Other Middletown Players; Team Misses Gobeo

While stories were still being circulated that a sweeping investigation of other Middletown High School football players who's age limits were questionable was being made, Coach Ted Conwicke's once-defeated Kingston High School gridders will play host to Port Jervis Friday night of this week at the municipal stadium.

The loss of Tony Gobeo to the Middie squad has already made damaging blows to the hopes of Johnny Bateman's club to go through the 1942 campaign unbeaten. Last Saturday afternoon in Poughkeepsie Sammy Kalloch's eleven routed Middletown by 14 to 0. Right now the Middies appear to be in for additional tough afternoons unless Bateman can find a good replacement for the valuable Gobeo.

Although the mentioned investigations of other Middie players has been kept a secret so far, the Middletown High School authorities promise a quick and thorough view of all players in question. From an unauthorized source, it was declared that the authorities might dig up one or two others over the limit gridders now with the Middletown varsity.

Kingston Has Problem

However, the Maroon and White squad has its own worry right now. And that is to build up enough power to meet the Port Jervis eleven which comes here Friday night under the stadium arclights. The problem of Middletown can wait for a week or more until Kingston takes care of Port this week and Poughkeepsie next Saturday afternoon. Those two games will be enough to take into consideration at once.

Friday night will find the Maroons bumping into a decidedly improved Port Jervis unit which has been idle since blanking Liberty by 12 to 0 two weeks ago. Coach Ted Conwicke isn't letting his boys forget the terrific pasting handed to them by Mont Pleasant and with these two factors taking the limelight, it is quite possible that local fans will see a different ball club operating for Kingston this week.

Port Jervis, although somewhat weak on passes in the defense department, has a rip-snorting ground attack which tore Liberty's defense into shreds earlier in the season. Port's main ground gainers are Ted Salmon, Frankie Adams, John Lynch and Steve Bullock. All have seen varsity work before and the quartet represents a tough secondary for any eleven to face.

While needing some work to brush up on the art of pass defense, Port itself has a good aerial game with Teddy Salmon as the No. 1 chucker. Art Clark and D. Creer, ends, are smooth pass snatchers and may be able to backfire Kingston's supposedly strong passing game into its face, providing Salmon and company start right. Since that Liberty game Coach Lou Horseman has been giving his backfield men plenty of work on batting down passes thrown by the Port reserves and reports reach here that the Tri-Staters won't be caught flat-footed by any notion of taking to the air that Kingston pass flingers might have.

Improvement Expected

In the 33 to 0 rout by Mont Pleasant at the stadiumh about two weeks ago Kingston couldn't form any stiff ground attack or passing attack. This week, however, this phase should find the Maroons better equipped to do a lot of damage through the air with Leland Boice on the throwing end. Boice can throw a lot of good aerials and if he gets the proper help from his mates there's no telling how much ground the Kingston team could gain by these passes.

Kingston also has had a long lay-off from competition with other teams but as far as stiff practice sessions are concerned, Coach Conwicke has been giving his stalwarts plenty of work and that menu will continue right up until Thursday night. The usual light practice is slated for Friday afternoon.

This is the first DUSO League engagement for the Maroons this year and although a league championship for the club seems far-fetched, there's always a probability of anything happening. Middletown, last year's winner, is surely side-tracked for the moment without Gobeo. A "dark-horse" club like Kingston, Port Jervis or Newburgh, may creep up and grab it before the 1942 campaign goes into the books.

Collection Scraps

(By The Associated Press)

Ardmore, Okla.—Jesse Mayrant went looking for scrap and had to be salvaged himself.

He and some friends found old iron embedded in an asphalt "lake." They waited for the sun to thaw the asphalt. Then Mayrant ventured out and mired down to his knees.

He was rescued by firemen using planks to support their weight.

Southport, N. C.—A motorist, surprised at seeing a 1,000-gallon tank rolling down the road toward him apparently without any means of locomotion, pulled aside to let it pass.

Three small boys, completely hidden from the front because of the tank's size, were trundling it along to their school's scrap pile.

Memphis, Tenn.—A 79-year-old widow here at the home for the aged contributed her mite to the scrap pile—13 ounces of old metal.

"It isn't much but I hope it will help," she said as she placed on the scrap heap her picture frame, belt buckle, pin tray, an old brooch, and some knitting needles she had had 50 years.

New York—More than 30,000 pounds of scrap metal collected backstage at the Radio City Music Hall in Rockefeller Center will be added to Manhattan's junk heap Wednesday—and how.

The Rockettes, the Music Hall's famous precision dancers, will help load the scrap on trucks right outside the stage door. The salvaged metal included:

The innards of four old pianos, a dismantled three-ton proscenium arch and four gigantic sound horns.

Two U. S. Destroyers Launched at Kearny

Kearny, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—Two U. S. destroyers, the Philip and the Renshaw, were launched today at the shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company.

First down the ways was the Philip, sponsored by Mrs. Barrett Philip of the naval training station, Sampson, N. Y., and named for her father-in-law, the late Rear Admiral John Woodward Philip, U. S. N. It reached the water at 12:03 p. m. (Eastern War Time).

Following at 12:23 p. m. was the Renshaw, honoring the late Commander William B. Renshaw, U. S. N. Miss Dorothy Lillian Renshaw of Mamaroneck, N. Y., a great-great-grandniece of the commander, christened this vessel.

In the Civil War, the late Commander Renshaw was commended by Admiral Farragut for "the handsome manner in which he managed his vessel," the Westfield, in operations with the mortar fleet below New Orleans and on the Mississippi river.

Commander Renshaw refused to surrender to the Confederate forces at Galveston harbor on January 1, 1863. Instead, he set fire to the craft and died in the explosion that followed.

A previous destroyer named Renshaw was scrapped in accordance with the London Naval Treaty in 1936.

Saboteurs Are Buried

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Evening Star said today that the six Nazi saboteurs who were executed at the district jail August 8 had been buried in a "Potter's Field" in the District of Columbia. Unpainted, wooden tombstones bearing only a number, ranging from 276 to 281, inclusive, are the only grave markers, the paper said, but aded: "From a reliable source it was learned that No. 276 is the grave of Edward John Kerling, leader of the group of four enemy agents who landed from a U-boat on the Florida coast last July and shortly afterward were rounded up along with four other saboteurs by the F.B.I. The other graves contain the bodies of: No. 277, Herbert Hans Haupt; No. 278, Richard Quirin; No. 279, Werner Thiel; No. 280, Hermann Otto Neubauer; No. 281, Heinrich Harm Heinck."

Honor Roll Is Presented Monday To West Shokan

C. H. Weidner Accepts Roll Presented to Community by Mr. and Mrs. L. Kelder

An honor roll presented to the community of West Shokan by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelder in honor of the young men who have gone from that locality to enter the armed forces of the United States, was unveiled and dedicated on Columbus Day. The dedication and presentation address was given by County Judge J. Edward Conway who is also serving as chairman for the Ulster county U. S. O. campaign.

Charles H. Weidner, a veteran of the first World War in which he served in the United States Navy, accepted the honor roll on behalf of the people of the community.

The program was opened with the call to the Colors by West Shokan Boy Scout Troop, No. 63, followed by "The Star Spangled Banner." Acting as master of ceremonies was E. Clayton Burgher whose introductory remarks were followed by a service song by D. Kelder. The unveiling of the honor roll was by two "Victory mothers," Mrs. Grace Doonan and Mrs. Adeline J. Kelder after which Judge Conway dedicated the honor roll and presented it to the community.

In his remarks Judge Conway said that "civilization for the second time in a single generation seems to be tottering on the brink of destruction. Force and conquest are the order of the day and the military might of the Axis fanatics was everywhere directed against justice and human rights. The helpless and the innocent are murdered in cold blood to sate the appetite for power of war-crazed dictators."

Continuing in part Judge Conway said, "From this little village and its environs young men have laid aside their daily tasks, postponed their plans and dreams and hopes of peace and happiness to lay at the altar of their nation, their hearts, their minds and their very lives, that America may remain the land of the free. We have come to dedicate this roll of honor, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Kelder, and this ceremony becomes in essence a demonstration of patriotism, a demonstration of love. It is a demonstration of patriotism because we pause to commend in highest terms those young men who by their answer to their nation's call have performed their highest duty to their country. It is a demonstration of patriotism to those here present, who though they stay behind, stand behind our fighting forces with heart and hand and mind and will, united to the end that our beloved country shall emerge a victor. This honor roll is but the emblem of our love, our confidence and our loyalty to our nation and our boys who have caught the torch of the spirit of America and now hold it high and bear it nobly that it may continue to be the priceless heritage of all succeeding generations."

"This afternoon as we remember these boys who stand ready to give all that victory may be ours, let us view the perfection of their patriotism in peace and in war. Let us emulate the excess of their self-sacrifice and the nobility of their courage and face the future with confidence imbued with their spirit and firmly resolving, with them, that Old Glory and all that it symbolizes and all that it actualizes shall forever continue to be the banner of freedom and light."

In accepting the honor roll Mr. Weidner said:

"Judge Conway and Friends:

In behalf of the townspeople of the West Shokan community I accept this Honor Roll.

To us who shall pass it time and time again in our daily errands this memento should be a symbol of our high esteem for these boys who have been called to fight our battles on land, and sea, and in the air.

To those whose names are inscribed thereon it should be a token of our loyalty and devotion to them.

But perhaps it must be more than this if the sacrifices these boys make are not to be in vain.

Let us make this Honor Roll a constant reminder of the duty we have here on the home front to work hard, think clearly, and act courageously — first, to help bring this terrible war to an early end, and second—and quite as important—to defend and maintain our way of life and our institutions for ourselves and for these our sons when they return.

We people of this community, your friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelder, thank you for this appropriate gift in the same fine spirit of friendliness and sincerity as you gave it."

The ceremonies concluded with the song, "God Bless America". by the school children of West Shokan and Bushkill districts and the assemblage.

Car Owners in East Will Give Tire Information

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Registration for gasoline rationing will begin November 9 in all parts of the country except the already-rationed east.

The Office of Price Administration, announcing this today, said that while car owners in the east need not re-register, they must, like the rest of the country, provide additional information concerning the tires they own.

In gearing gasoline rationing more closely to the tire conservation program, O. P. A. made these innovations in the plan now operated in the east:

Periodic tire inspections as to requirement for a renewal of rations, as well as any application for tires or recaps.

Certification that the applicant owns no more than five tires for any vehicle.

Revocation or reduction of rations for drivers who exceed the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit.

The registration beginning November 9 will be for "A" coupon books, with the rationing plan to go into effect November 22.

Each applicant will be required to list the serial number of all tires he owns. If he lists more than five tires for each car, he will be denied an "A" book until he shows he has disposed of the excess tires.

O. P. A. said it would announce shortly details of the periodic tire inspection program.

All car owners registering next month will receive "A" books containing coupons for mileage at the rate of 2,800 per year. Applications for supplemental rations, which the OPA said would receive "most careful scrutiny," may be filed any time after the basic "A" book has been received.

To qualify for supplemental ration, the applicant must show that he needs more than 150 miles per month of occupational driving, and that he has formed a car-sharing club for carrying three or more persons, in addition to himself, to and from work regularly.

If the applicant has not formed a car-sharing club, he must prove that alternative means of transportation are inadequate, and that it is impossible for him to carry others.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson said the plan was designed to reduce the national average passenger car mileage to 5,000 a year, as recommended by the Baruch committee.

"In order to achieve this average," Henderson said "we must remember that only essential driving can be permitted, and that the vast majority of cars will receive less than the average mileage. Through this patriotic curtailment of driving, it will be possible for this country to live within its rubber supply and to carry on our activities essential to winning of the war".

Of the 2,800 miles a year driving (based on 15 miles to the gallon) provided by the "A" book, 1,800 miles is presumed to be for occupational driving, and the remainder for "necessary family driving."

130 More to Be Examined

Kingston's draft board is planning to send a contingent of 130 men to an army induction center in Albany for physical examination on Saturday morning. This contingent will complete the October quota of 250 men the draft board had been asked to supply.

Nazi shock troops would be withdrawn to permit dive bombers and heavy siege guns to batter the city into surrender.

The Soviet command said three attacks failed to crack the city's defense lines.

Other major developments:

Malta strikes back—Britain's Mediterranean island of Malta, known as the most heavily bombed spot in the world, was becoming a graveyard for Axis raiders today as British defenders chalked up a 48-hour score of at least 39 enemy planes destroyed.

British headquarters said R.A.F. fighters shot down 24 German and Italian planes yesterday, setting a new daylight record, and damaged about 50. Fifteen others had been shot down Sunday.

"The enemy took an even bigger beating from Malta's defenses than in any single day previously," the British command said.

Official figures listed more than 1,000 Axis planes destroyed in vain attempts to knock out the tiny island stronghold. Since the war began, Malta's air-raid sirens have sounded more than 3,000 times.

Reinforcements Are Moved

On the basis of past performances, the fury of the Axis attack indicated that the Germans were moving reinforcements across the Mediterranean to bolster Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's stalled armies in Egypt. Malta has long been a thorn in the side of Axis convoys en route to the North African battle front.

Egyptian campaign—All quiet.

Western air war—R.A.F. bombers pounded war foundries in northwest Germany overnight, and the British radio again warned the French that it was important now as never before for every Frenchman to be prepared for operations of the allied air forces, navies and armies.

The broadcast warned the French to keep away from German headquarters, barracks, rail centers, repair yards and the fortified zones.

"Shackling war"—Prime Minister Churchill, charging the German government with violating the Geneva convention in its treatment of British captives, told Parliament today that the British government never had countenanced any general order for the tying up of prisoners on the field of battle.

Churchill said the government had asked Switzerland, representing the interests of both Germany and Britain, to protest to the Nazis against the breach of the Geneva treaty and "urge them to desist from it."

If Germany agrees, he said, "the counter measures of similar nature which the (British) government felt themselves forced to take (against German prisoners) will immediately be withdrawn."

Four Scottish colleges have given $4,000 to Britain's war chest.

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Stocks generally resumed the recovery trek in today's market although many acted a trifle weary after the long upward climb.

Customers returned from their double holiday still bullishly inclined over war prospects and the Senate's leniency on corporate taxes. There was some cashing in, however, on the idea the list might be due for a technical reversal, even if temporary.

Gains around 2 points in early dealings with activity pronounced. There was a later slow-down and some favorites that had touched new tops since last November backed away from best levels near the fourth hour. Scattered losers also were in evidence.

Bonds and commodities steadied although hogs at Chicago continued weak, in reflection of expected price ceilings.

Stocks ahead at one time or another included duPont, American Telephone, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, General Electric, Westinghouse, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., Sperry and Allied Chemical, Santa Fe along with Bethlehem Steel, Sears Roebuck, Boeing and American Smelting.

Supported in the curb were Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Aluminum of America, Creole Petroleum and Niagara Hudson Power. Small minus signs were posted for American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and Phoenix Securities.

The Professional Artists League announces plans for the celebration of American Art Week during the week of November 1-7.

This national event, first sponsored in 1934, has awakened interest everywhere in the beauty of American Art, and native crafts. The local designers in each community especially are featured.

Proclamations recommending the observance of American Art Week have been issued by many governors and mayors. The cultural value of such an affair has been recognized by these men in their recommendations.

In Ulster county, Louis Kabrin, of Woodstock, has been appointed chairman of American Art Week.

Artists and Craftsmen who would like to exhibit during the week of November 1-7, should prepare their work now. Details concerning time and place of each exhibit will be announced very shortly.

Ellenville Stages Firemen's Parade

Six Visiting Companies in Line of March

The annual parade and inspection of the Ellenville Fire Department took place Saturday afternoon and with six visiting companies, a band and three fife and drum corps it was a colorful affair.

The parade was headed by Mayor Benjamin Sparks and members of the Ellenville Village Board, Fire Chief Fred J. Frear and Assistants Benjamin Litchrod and William Krom. Local firemen in line numbered over 100 despite the fact that over 50 of their members are now serving with the armed forces.

Pioneer Engine Co. had as their guests members of the Otisville and Napanoch Fire Departments; Scoresby Hose & Hook & Ladder Co. entertained the Kerhonkson firemen, while Kimble Hose Co. had as guests companies from Port Jervis, Monticello and Walden.

Musical organizations in line included Clayton's Band of Ellenville and fife and drum corps from Middletown, Port Jervis and Walden.

The parade started at 4 o'clock and for an hour and a half the marchers traversed the main streets of the village, being greeted by large crowds along the line of march. At the conclusion of the parade and inspection the visiting firemen were entertained by the local companies to which they were assigned, buffet luncheons being served.

For many years the annual parade and inspection was one of the features of the four-days fair of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, but these were finally dropped, one compelling reason being that the firemen got rather "fed up" with donning heavy uniforms and marching around the dusty half-mile track at the fair grounds on a hot summer day.

Maximum carrot prices have been fixed in Britain.

SOMETIMES WE THINK THEY'RE TOO DARNED GOOD!

Yes, sir, sometimes when we get to thinking about our classified ads. we think they're too good for our own good.

You see, it's like this. Someone call 2200 and inserts an ad. "Run it 3 days," they say. Then after the ad appears just One night, they call and say, "Take my ad out. I had about 50 calls last night."

So we lose money, for the other insertions. Now, do you see why we sometimes think our classified ads are "too good."

THE FREEMAN

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press).

Burglarly—A La Carte

Mitchell, Ind.—It was just a hungry burglar that entered Mrs. Wayne Chastain's home.

She reported to police the man bound her to a chair, gagged her securely and then helped himself to a meal from the family refrigerator.

Mrs. Chastain, freed by neighbors after the gourmet fled, said she was "too terrified to obtain an accurate description of the man.

That Braid Again!

Kansas City — Lieut. James McCatee, Navy relations officer, was waiting in the lobby of a burlesque theatre. He wanted to talk with the manager about a float for a war chest drive.

Up walked a stranger who eyed McAtee's uniform, complete with stripes and braid.

"Stop dreamin', usher!" he barked. "Tell me when the show starts."

Emily Post Trap

San Diego — William Charles Parrish, Dayton, O., copied the uniform correctly, but he muffed the manners.

Parrish, 31, was jailed last night for unlawfully wearing military dress. F.B.I. agent Harold Nathan said the disguise might not have been detected except—

Parrish saluted enlisted men before they saluted him.

Unmatched Boom

Santa Barbara, Calif.—Business is red hot, practically blazing, in the west coast match industry.

C. W. Zuren, a field representative, explained one reason why business has boomed since Pearl Harbor.

More men are smoking pipes. They require more matches than cigars or cigarettes.

To the Letter

Blackfoot, Idaho — Bill Clough, 12-year-old son of county sheriff Del Clough, believes in obeying his father.

A two-point buck was spied on Bill's first hunting trip.

"Where'll I shoot him?" asked breathless Bill.

"Between the eyes."

Billy shot and the buck dropped. He was drilled in the exact center of his forehead.

Powerful Discovery

Phoenix, Ariz.—W. F. Steel is glad now that the plumbing leaked. He had been in the house only a month, and was pretty peeved when it went bad.

Under the house he went to investigate.

Before he found the leak he found a box. Inside was a newspaper dated nine years ago.

Also inside were eight sticks of dynamite, complete with caps and fuses.

Button, Button, Etc. . . .

Chicago — The politicians will have to get along during the fall campaign without their personal advertising—lapel buttons.

Firms which manufactured thousands of the lapel pins during former campaigns are not able to turn out any this year, officials said. Priorities have shut down on celluloid, tin and brass—needed to make the buttons.

The only kind of lapel buttons being manufactured, said officials, were identification pins worn by war and government workers.

Ration Date Is Set

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP) — The Office of Price Administration today set Tuesday and Wednesday, October 20-21, for the registration of all fuel oil dealers and suppliers in the 30 states where oil and kerosene will be rationed under the new program. Dealers who fail to register will become ineligible to sell fuel under the rationing system. This registration will be a preliminary to the registration of consumers. When the dealers register, they will be given application blanks to distribute to their customers.

Teachers' College News

Lecturer Is Heard

Martin DeMuth, artist, lecturer, and world traveler, talked to the students and faculty in the assembly program on Tuesday, October 4. Mr. DeMuth has traveled in some 60 countries and has talked to over 3,000 natives. In keeping with this changing world, Mr. DeMuth displayed a new map projection which is being introduced in schools this fall, the solar map projection. The rest of the program was devoted to the showing of motion pictures of the island of Bali, India, Ceylon, Singapore, Hongkong, Philippines, Java and Australia.

The Music Association held a social function last week. Those attending were members of the Glee Club Chorus and Band. Caroline Morehouse accompanied by Florence Kirpick sang. Jean Rogers headed the refreshment committee and Evelyn Bardsley the publicity. Evelyn Bardsley and Ruth Bergman handled the entertainment end of the program.

Guest at Forum

Dr. Roland C. Will was a guest speaker at a freshman forum last week. His topic was "Suggestions About How to Study." He remarked, "learning to study more effectively leads to happiness through success as a teacher and that investigations show that as a rule students in teachers' colleges with the highest scholarships usually are the ones to get jobs as teachers first.

C. P. T. Course

This week marks the final week of the eight-week's Civilian Pilot Training course that has been progressing here in New Paltz for the past two months.

The course officially closes on Saturday although many of the men will have to complete several hours of flying time which is required.

From here the men have several alternatives that they may take. They may go into the secondary work, or they may pursue glider piloting, or they may take further work that would enable them to be flying instructors.

Test Given Saturday

Here at the College on Saturday, there will be tests given to men who desire to enter the next class. This training program will begin November 1.

C. P. T. courses will continue at New Paltz for the eight weeks period.

Entertains Members

Miss Florence Lane, College librarian, will entertain members of Sigma Pi Sigma at her home Thursday evening, October 15, at 7:30 p. m.

Constance Thompson will deliver at this time a report concerning the tour of the library for members of the Freshman Class. The tour was an activity sponsored by Sigma Pi Sigma for the benefit of the freshmen.

The group will discuss the advisability of having convocation and initiate new members.

Sigma Pi Sigma, the honorary scholastic society, has for its advisor, Miss Ruth Mack Havens.

No Parents Day

Due to rationing conditions, the social committee of Student Council has thought it best to cancel preparations for Parents' Day.

This day, set aside each year for parents, has always played an important part in the school social calender. Special classes were held, the various school organizations played some part in showing the parents the ins and outs of this school.

This event, along with others postponed for the duration, will be continued again.

To Present Play

"The New Paltz Players" will hold its second meeting of the year at 7:30 Wednesday evening, October 14.

All members present at the meeting will act out pantomimes. The pantomimes may be done by members in a group or singly. Preparations for the pantomimes were started at the initial meeting of the year, which occured Wednesday evening, September 23.

Pantomimes Planned

Following the regular business meeting and presentation of the various pantomimes, refreshments will be served.

"The New Paltz Players," directed and advised by Miss Rebecca McKenna, compose the dramatic society of State Teachers College at New Paltz.

Schedule Concerts

Once again, under the auspices of the Three Arts Society, another series of concerts will be held this year in the Free Academy Auditorium in Newburgh.

In the past members of the faculty and student body attended the various concerts in large groups. Transportational facilities may hinder a similar performance this year. However, those people who can obtain transportation may again purchase subscriptions for the affairs.

First Concert Occurs

Tuesday evening, October 6, marked the date of the first Newburgh Concert. Several faculty members attended the concert in order to observe the internationally famous piano duo of Jacques Fray and Maria Braggrotti.

Eleven years ago these artists were students of the French Conservatory and active members of the parisitan "lavante-garde" of music. Upon meeting in Paris, they merged their pianos and began building a repertoire from the manuscripts of their own transcriptions.

Field Is Young

Here in the young field of duo-pianism, they felt was a new medium through which all music could be reflected. No chorel, orchestral or operatic work being too intricate for twenty fingers to execute. These young artists delved into the vast storehouse of music previously closed to soloists and are said to have emerged with a new style of pianism which brought them immediate recognition.

Said to be tireless pioneers in their work, they were the first to give popular music the significance of a concert hall performance in their debut at the Salle Plevel in Paris, in 1928, and in a lecture-recital at the Sarbonne University the same year.

First to Add Humor

They are said to have been the first team to bring humor to the concert stage when in their New York debut at Carnegie Hall in 1930 they rocked the audience with take offs on famous composers using Yankee Doodle as the principle theme.

Today these pianists select their programs for recital, radio and symphony appearance from an entirely original two piano library of their own which ranges from organ works of Bach to songs of the day.

Old D.&N. to Make Its Last Run Soon

Small Line in Mountains Will Be Abandoned

Thursday the Delaware & Northern railroad will close to business, but trains will run through October 17 to clear the line of all cars.

Following the closing, present train crews will dismantle the various stations and move to the Margaretville shows all the furniture, stoves, telegraph instruments and other equipment.

The cars which belong to the line will be assembled on a siding in Margaretville, the locomotives and the gasoline passenger car will be housed in the Margaretville shops.

Fires will be pulled and the engines will be ready for a buyer. The shops will be open for a short time to put equipment in condition for storage and will then close.

The Margaretville offices will be open for some weeks while the affairs of the road are being wound up.

New York city owns the right-of-way—the real estate, while Sam Rosoff, who sold the road to New York, retained the metals, buildings, rolling stock and property other than the real property.

It is expected that all of the equipment will be junked.

The closing of the railroad will make a big change in the mail service and there was a meeting of the postmasters of Margaretville, Shavertown, Pepacton and Downsville held in Margaretville last week with a mail route agent. Following the meeting a notice was posted asking for bids to carry the mail from Arkville to Downsville.

The village of Margaretville will feel the pinch of the closing more than any other village. The road had paid out nearly $30,000 yearly in that village. About the same amount was paid annually for railroad ties.

Margaretville has been receiving nearly 500 carloads of freight over the road each year. This will now have to come by truck, either from Arkville or from further points.

U. S. Bans Ulster Milk

When the American troops arrived in Ulster they were not allowed to drink the milk because it did not come up to their standard, it is revealed in Belfast. Now there is agitation to get the same pure milk to drink that the American Army chiefs require for their men.

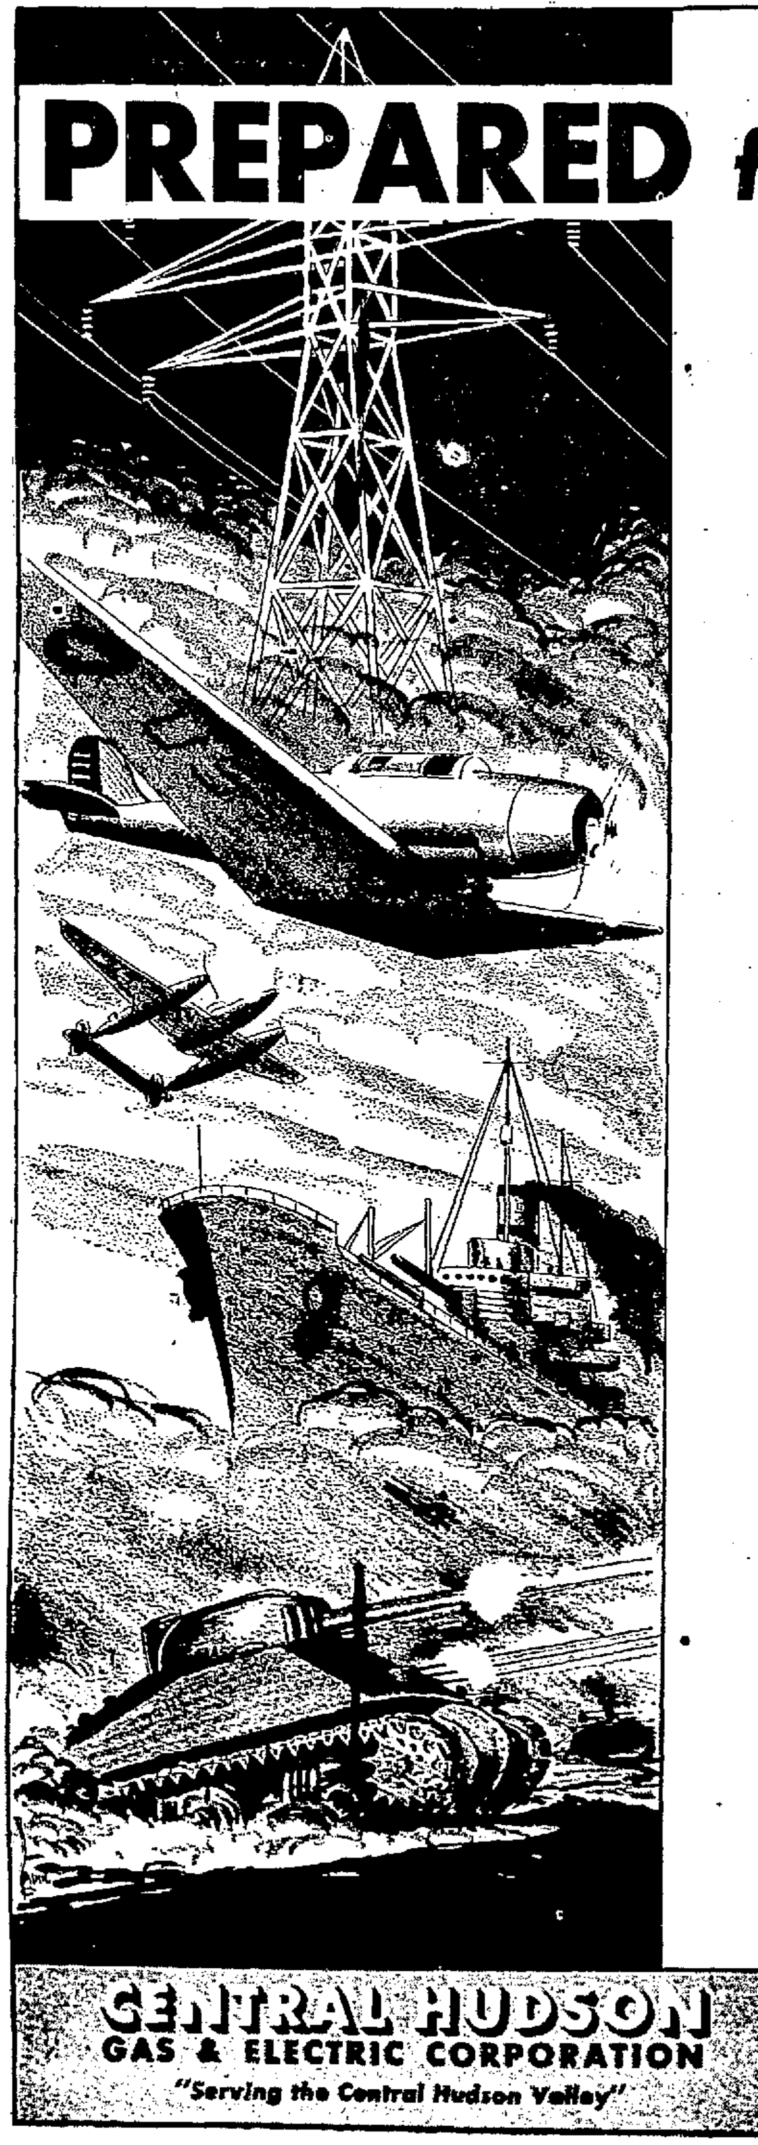
PREPARED for PEACE or WAR!



It takes a lot of electric power to forge the implements of war!

Electric power must be manufactured, too . . . and the very instant it is made it must be used. It's the one manufactured article which can't be stored for even a fraction of a second.

How is it then that unlimited service has been kept flowing smoothly to vital war industries—even though most of the available supplies of steel, copper, and aluminum (the self-same materials used to build electrical equipment) are being turned into the tools of war?

▶ Because farsighted business management planned ahead in peacetime, the industry was ready for our Nation's vast war production effort! They weren't planning for war, of course, but for greater electrical conveniences to reach more and more people in their everyday lives. It is these electrical reserves, provided yesterday, which are meeting today's emergencies. Now, eleven months after Pearl Harbor, sufficient electric power is still available, throughout the country, to meet the unexpected demands of war production and essential civilian needs.

What is true in the country as a whole is also true in our own Central Hudson Valley. Here, too, your company has provided for the future . . . and no industry has lacked for power when it was ready to go to work.

Later, perhaps, in this part of New York State, some moderate form of power rationing may be found advisable—not because utilities failed to provide for the future, but simply because huge quantities of power may be needed in other areas to speed up war production. If that does happen, we know that each one will gladly do his part in curtailing nonessential use.

Acts Well-Arranged At K. of C. Ball

In spite of the noticeable absence of the young men, the 1,000 people, about 500 less than last year's attendance, who did attend the 23rd annual Charity Ball sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, last evening, at the municipal auditorium, found a well-arranged program of entertainment and dancing. The six specialty acts conducted by master of ceremonies, Alfred Skee, were timed to a one hour performance leaving the remainder of the evening for dancing.

The hall was decorated with streamers of red, white and blue shading the lights and trimming the balcony. Wide streamer drapes outlined the blacked-out windows. The K. of C. shield was also used and on the stage was the American flag.

Paul Zucca and his orchestra opened the evening's program with several selections including some of the old favorites and patriotic airs. During the word of welcome given by Thomas Lodge, general chairman of the ball, a moment of silent prayer for the men in service was observed.

Marjorie Barrett, who replaced Jane Matthews originally scheduled, opened the entertainment program of the evening. She not only was an accomplished violinist but singer and dancer as well. When she appeared later in the program in a medley of the popular Gypsy tunes, she played her violin and danced the waltzes at the same time. Her playing was continuous although she was executing splits, or back-bends in her dance routine. Miss Matthews had been called to Washington, D. C. for a government position.

One of last year's favorites at the K. of C. Ball, Bob Kennedy, blond tenor soloist, returned this year. This was one of the last appearances Mr. Kennedy will make for he soon will be drafted in the army. He first sang a medley of Victor Herbert's music, followed by "At the Balaika" and encores of "Donkey Serenade," another medley salute to the men in service with songs of the different branches of the armed forces; and as a special request "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Following Mr. Kennedy, the master of ceremonies introduced the local dance team of Miss Elizabeth Dwyer and Walter May, pupils of the Helen Cashin School of Dancing. They gave an exhibition ball room dancing waltz routine and Walter May returned later in the program to give one of his intricate tap numbers.

Wearing a gown weighing 55 pounds practically lined with 9,000 different kinds of cards, the human card index, Arthur Lloyd, proved to be one of the most entertaining artists in his field. After a few preliminary tricks with a large deck of cards, Mr. Lloyd urged members of the audience to call for any type of card. In the course of his act he produced draft card, officer's questionnaire, ticket to the third game of the World Series, various kinds of business cards, rationing cards, union certificates, wedding license, divorce degree, mah jong score card and several greeting cards. The group of high school students shouted for an A. A. card which Mr. Lloyd could not produce although he did show a menu from the local Central Lunch. The Boy Scout card was that of his son, Joseph Lloyd who has been reported as a prisoner of war in the Philippines where he was serving with the forces.

The stellar act and right from the home talent was that of Sharkey, the famous seal, and his trainer, Mark Huling. Sharkey performed the usual balance tricks with balls and hoops. He then proceeded to go to bed, arranging the pillow and coverlet. After a few actual snores he pretended to awaken with a resounding yawn. He also imitated sounds and played "Where the River Shannon Flows" on the chimes. Mr. Huling and Sharkey have been signed to appear at Radio City Music Hall in the coming stage show.

The novelty acrobatic trio of Anthony, Allen and Hodges will also appear at the Music Hall. This trio brought the formal entertainment to a close with their sophisticated dance steps woven into a slyly changing pattern that ended on a whimsical, mischievous vein.

William Fitzpatrick was chairman of the program committee. With the war conditions the engaging of outstanding talent for acts becomes exceedingly difficult as can be seen by the few references made to active service in connection with the performers themselves or near relatives.

The members of the Senior Girl Scout Troop of St. Joseph's Church assisted in the dining room. The group of young ladies who assisted in selling the flowers were the Misses Anne Dittmar, Dorothy Reis, Patricia Zaccheo, Catherine Lodge, Agnes Thurin, Joan Cahill, Esther Reis, Betty Spino, Margaret Feye, Patricia Martin, Rose Mary Conway, Mary Catherine Conway, Rose Miuccio, Nancy Miuccio, Marion Howard and Sheila Larkin.

Dancing continued to the music of Paul Zucca's orchestra until 2 a. m.

Wightman, vice president of the Hudson River Conservation Society, Inc., was the guest speaker. Mrs. Wightman in her talk, which was illustrated by colored slides, traced the history of Hudson river from the glacial age down to the present day, and by slides taken from authentic old prints of a hundred years ago compared the shores of that time and today.

The conservationists have begun to make the river popular as a recreation center."

Following this highly informative talk a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Niles, Mrs. Harry Myers and Mrs. Lucius Doty.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. H. Niles, 193 Pearl street, October 23.

Season Is Extended For Duck Hunters; Other Dates Given

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—New Yorkers, despite expected curtailments of meats, can have their fill of proteins—provided they are good enough shots.

The State Conservation Department announces the open duck season will be extended Thursday to the entire state, giving hunters 10 days more shooting than usual, and the woodcock and grouse seasons will open the same day in the southern zone.

The dividing line between this and the northern zone, where the woodcock season closes Thursday, is the New York Central railroad tracks between Albany and Buffalo, and the main line tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad between Albany and the Massachusetts State line.

In most of the state, wild ducks, most kinds of geese including brant, coot, rails and gallinules may be taken through Dec. 23. In portions of Essex, Clinton and Washington counties, where the duck season opened Sept. 26, the season closes Dec. 4.

Grouse may be hunted in the northern zone through Nov. 12. In the southern zone, except on Long Island, the woodcock season runs through Oct. 29, and the grouse season until Nov. 26. Woodcock and grouse may be shot on Long Island beginning Nov. 1.

machine as it was dashed down the rocks on the flood waters. The car in which the three victims were riding was returning from Andes where the trio had gone to look at canary birds. As the car came around a sharp turn at Cold Brook, it swept wide to the left of the road and then the driver in an effort to avoid striking the car of Kart B. Smith of Dobbs Ferry, swung sharply to the right again. The Smith car was sideswiped and the Chevrolet car crashed through the frail guard rail and plunged into the creek. It was last seen settling in the turbid waters as it was carried down stream at a rapid pace.

Since then deputy sheriffs, state troopers, forest rangers and B. W. S. police and employes have searched for the car and the occupants along the stream and in the reservoir. Recovery of two bodies from the reservoir indicates that either the three people were thrown from the car and carried by the swift current to the Ashokan reservoir or the car was rolled to the reservoir and the bodies have floated clear. Inspection of the creek which is now very low has disclosed no trace of the car and it is believed it is in the reservoir.

Arrangements were made with the city of New York to have the salvage crew of the B. W. S. come to the Ashokan reservoir with an electro-magnet to institute a search for the car. Lt. Helgersen said this equipment was expected to arrive today and start the job of searching for the car.

Meanwhile the search for the third body is being continued.

While the body of Miss Terwilliger was recovered Monday about noon, no word of the recovery was received at the sheriff's office until late in the afternoon. A misunderstanding among the searchers led to this failure to notify the sheriff.

Identification of Miss Terwilliger was made by means of clothing found on the body which were shown to Mrs. Minnie Knickels of Stanton, N. J., and Myron Terwilliger, sister and brother of the victim.

Moscow's Secrecy Is Deep-Rooted, National Matter

Russian Counsel, Self-Kept by All, Has Advantages in Peril; Once-Given Word Is Inviolate

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Oct. 13—Both in the United States and in Britain, especially in military circles, one constantly hears the plaint that the Anglo-American Allies are hampered in their relations with Russia by secrecy regarding details of Soviet observers and resources.

It is pointed out that official observers are not permitted the run of the Red fronts. Rather typical was the rhetorical question flung at me recently by an officer—let's call him Anglo-American— who demanded:

"How the devil can we know about the urgency of opening a second front if we have small idea of what Red resources are to meet the present emergency?"

It struck me then and the thought has been growing that the more important point to be determined is what underlies this Russian tendency to secrecy, for it undoubtedly exists. Moscow must have some reason. If that can be fathomed it will perhaps be easier to chart a course which will draw the triple alliance into that closer understanding which is necessary not only to win the war but to win the place.

Accordingly, I have been delving into this problem of Russian reluctance to do a lot of talking.

I wish it were possible to give direct quotations. But you know how it is these days when the shadow of anonymity stands behind public figures, ready to poke them in the back if they dare mention their names. So we'll just get ahead with the job on our own.

We start from the premise that the Russians do keep their affairs to themselves, broadly speaking. There are several reasons for this:

One—The Russians by nature are secretive or, perhaps, a happier way to put it is that it is characteristic of them to keep their own councils. Communism itself is a deep, silent stream.

Two—Then the Russians are an exceedingly proud people who expect their word to be accepted without producing detailed proof of its truth. This in part, would explain their expectation that the Anglo-American alliance would not question the assertion that it is necessary to open a second front to relieve the fierce pressure on the Red armies of the south.

Afraid to Trust Secrets

Three—Moscow is afraid to trust its innermost secrets to the Allies because it feels in all likelihood that those secrets might leak into the press or, at least, be spread by word of mouth and thus come to the enemy.

The point here is that while the Soviet government can and does control the circulation of news in its own domains, both in printed publications and by word of mouth Britain and America maintain no such control. Much of the grist of information that goes into the Anglo-American hopper comes out through the press.

You understand the Red argument here when you stop to consider the case of Britain in the cyclonic autumn of 1940. Hitler's fierce bombardment of the British Isles had reduced them close to impotency. John Bull had only a handful of warplanes left with which to defend himself.

But Hitler didn't realize this. The British government in this case kept its desperate straits a close secret, so much so that a distinguished British air officer told me last night he himself hadn't realized the situation.

All Der Fuehrer knew was that he seemed to be crashing his warplanes against a stone wall. And he quit his bombardment just when he might have won had he continued a few days more.

That was exceptional secrecy for Britain and it would be for America. It is customary procedure in Russia.

Four—We now come down to a point which is delicate but where we can't mince words. There is an element of distrust between the Soviet and the other two members of the triple alliance. That isn't one-sided. It cuts both ways.

Suspicion Not Strange

Now, it isn't strange that suspicion should exist. Ever since the Bolshevist revolution twenty-five years ago, both America and Britain have fought vigorously to exclude an aggresive Communism and its propaganda and the two governments have declined to dissociate points of difference, especially events immediately preceding the outbreak of the second World War.

This situation naturally has given rise at times to friction between Moscow and the other two capitals. However, relations have been much more cordial since the beginning of the Russo-German conflict.

It is logical to expect that still more of this mutual distrust will disappear when the English-speaking Allies get into full battle action. Shoulder-to-shoulder fighting is calculated to dispel a lot of fog.

Naturally, there remains much to be done. From the Anglo-American standpoint, one stumbling block certainly is Communist political propaganda in their countries. They apparently are prepared to accept the full obligations of partnership in the war and in the post-war readjustment but are unwilling to accept the political ism.

It is believed in some quarters here that Moscow would be willing to give guarantees that Russian money would not be used in America or Britain to spread Communism. Likely, the Moscow government also seeks assurances.

As I already have reported, all three Allies are busy with this problem of distrust. It is one of the great issues of the war and one upon which peace developments depend heavily.

Seamen Here Seeking Furnished Apartments

In assisting the service men who have stopped at the Service Men's Center, 672 Broadway, it has been found that many seamen are seeking furnished apartments of three to four rooms. There are a number of these seamen stationed in the city with a possibility that they will be here for quite some time. Others will be coming to the city from time to time.

The committee will try to arrange for the housing of these young men, and anyone having apartments for rent are asked to call the Service Men's Center, 2629, to give information regarding the rooms and the amount of rent.

Applicants Are Considered

Secretary George Goodfellow of the local Y. M. C. A. was one of the group who left Kingston this morning for an army induction center in Albany where he will be given a physical test. If successful he will be immediately inducted into the U. S. Army. The board of directors of the local "Y" have several applicants under consideration for appointment as executive secretary of the association to replace Secretary Goodfellow. The board will meet next week at which time it is expected an appointment will be made.

Raskoskie Is in Service

Ohio State Tops Football Poll; Georgia Is Next

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Once-mighty Minnesota has tumbled at last, but the Big Ten Conference still produces the best college football teams in the land, in the opinion of 91 sports writers who voted in the first Associated Press poll of the season and picked Ohio State as the country's No. 1 college team.

Coach Paul Brown's Buckeyes, winners of their first three starts by decisive margins, received 25 first-place votes and a total of 636 points, based on the usual pattern of ten points for each first-place vote, nine for each second, and so on.

While Minnesota, the No. 1 team in the final rankings of 1941, slumped to 14th place this time, the Big Ten produced three other representatives among the first ten, in addition to Ohio State.

The southeastern conference landed a trio of teams among the first ten, including Georgia which was voted the No. 2 spot, while the east was represented by two clubs and the far west by one.

Here are the first ten, with the first-place votes in parentheses and points figured on a 10-9-8-7 etc., basis:

1. Ohio State (25)..........636
2. Georgia (12)..........494
3. Michigan (12)..........418
4. Alabama (10)..........356
5. Illinois (8)..........326
6. Georgia Tech (5)..........300
7. Wisconsin (0)..........296
8. Pennsylvania (5)..........289
9. Colgate (2)..........170
10. Washington State (3)..........168

In the Independent League matches rolled at the Central Rec alleys last night Bill Evans paced the Buicks to two wins over Callanans with a high 535 triple on scores of 170, 201 and 164. Bob Townsend of the winners posted a high 204 single. H. Townsend and Bob rolled 520 and 500 series respectively. L. Van Alstyne had a 525 triple for Callanans.

Beicherts also grabbed two from Freds with Kubicek doing the big stickwork with a 546 series on games of 188, 180 and 178. Mit Arlensky of Freds collected a 200 single and had a 513 triple. Jack Dawkins came on with a 502 series.

The Oilers with Don Keyser banging out a 192 high single and 490 high triple, won all three from Jumps. Keyser had other marks of 163 and 135. T. Costello was high for the losers.

Wilbers captured two from Vogels. Charlie Grunenwald took honors for the losers with a score of 586 and high single of 220. Johnny Long, no relation we believe to the well-known orchestra leader, split the maples for a 498 series.

Baltimore — Al Tribulani, 148½, Wilmington, outpointed Billy Carrigan, 154½, Baltimore, (10).

Big Battle Looms In Georgia-Tulane Game on Saturday

Bull Dogs Are Favorites but Green Wave Rates Watching; Sinkwich vs. Lou Thomas

New Orleans, Oct. 13 (AP)—Georgians might not be able to understand this, but Tulane's Greenies aren't a bit scared of their University of Georgia football team, despite its high national ranking and its Frankie Sinkwich.

Of course nobody around town is actually predicting a victory for Tulane's inexperienced Huskies over Georgia Saturday, but Coach Monk Simons, Jr., expressed the general viewpoint, "my boys are going into All-America Frankie's back yard with the idea of taking a pop at him."

Monk prefaced this remark by conceding Sinkwick was the best back he had seen last year while scouting for Tulane under former Coach Red Dawson.

But to many Tulanians, Frankie will have to prove on the field that he is better than the Greenies' own Lou Thomas.

They point out that Sinkwich did not satisfactorily do this when they met as sophomores two seasons ago. Each gained 41 yards during the game which Tulane won 21-13. But Thomas, then a second-stringer, took only three tries while Sinkwich needed 14 chances.

Last year Frankie made All-America. Lou didn't match that. But he averaged 6.8 yards on running plays, the highest season's mark ever recorded at Tulane; had a .500 passing average, ran back a couple of kickoffs for touchdowns, and otherwise made himself useful.

He scored twice against Southern California this season, once on a 64-yard punt return.

Tulane completed nine passes against Auburn. Lou threw six and caught the other three. His running and passing set up both Tulanes touchdowns.

In the 18-7 upset of Rice, Lou passed for both touchdowns, kicked a field goal and an extra point. He maneuvered a two-play, 83-yard scoring charge by dashing 33 yards and passing to Moose Porter for the rest of the distance.

In other words, Sinkwich won't be the only back on the field Saturday.

Louis Explains Statement Of Possible Retirement

ON THE SPOT

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Editor

New York—The past baseball season was another banner year for southpaw sluggers.

Seven of the top 10 batters in the majors were left hand hitters. and the highest average of the bunch—.356—was pounded out by a leftie, lank Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox, American League stick champion.

Ernie Lombardi, who won the National League crown; Joe Gordon of the Yankees and George Case of the Senators were the only right hand hitters among the big 10.

The others, all southpaws, were Williams, Johnny Pesky of the Boston Red Sox, Stan Spence of the Senators, Enos Slaughter and Stan Musial of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, Pistol Pete Reiser of the Dodgers and Johnny Mize of the New York Giants.

Southpaws have an edge among the batting champions for the past decade. Twelve of the 20 batting champions of both leagues in this period have been lefties. The American League crown has been won five times by right handers and five by lefties but in the senior circuit the southpaws have won seven of 10. Lombardi, who won this year and in 1938, and Joe Medwick, 1937 victor, were the only right handers to finish on top.

During that period the highest average also was turned in by a lefty. That was last year when Williams hit .406.

The St. Louis Cardinals are not noted for the generous salaries paid their players, particularly the younger performers. And the report is that when George (Whitey) Kurowski hit that ninth inning home run to clinch the World Series and enable the Cards to take the larger share of the series dough he earned himself almost double the money he had made all season. That decisive hit was worth more than $6,000.

The anti-aircraft replacement training center at Fort Eustis, Va., could put a big-name baseball club on the field and then have some of history's most famous names on the sidelines as rooters.

Corporal Jim Kluttz, checking a list of trainees, found these men, but not the ones who made the names famous:

Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Joe Gordon, Billy Herman, Joe Cronin, Johnny Allen, Johnny Murphy, Ted Lyons, Ed Smith, Tommy Bridges, Bill Lee, Johnny Peacock, Frank McCormick, Bill Tabor, Joe Moore and Johnny Rizzo.

Boxing Champion Says He Probably Won't Have Another Chance to Enter Ring

By ART EDSON

Kansas City, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Joe Louis controversy—will he or won't he fight again?—has ended. Both sides are right.

Sergeant Joe, on his way from Fort Riley, Kas., to Los Angeles for a two weeks furlough, diplomatically voted both yes and no while waiting for his early morning plane.

He hasn't exactly retired. Still he doubts if he ever does any more heavyweight title-defending.

(In Omaha Sunday Joe told David B. Kaufman of The Associated Press his fighting days were over. Later from New York came Promoter Mike Jacobs' cry that Joe had been misinterpreted.)

"When I said in Omaha I wasn't going to fight again," Joe explained, "I meant I'd probably never have another chance.

"This war is my business now. Say it lasts two years. I'm in for the duration and six months after. That's a long time to be out of training."

Then he figured he was through with the ring for keeps?

"It depends," Joe replied. "Maybe the competition won't amount to much. And it depends on how I feel. You can't tell what kind of shape I'll be in when this war is over."

Joe, now 28, reiterated what he said in Omaha, that he would be pretty old for fighting when the war is finished. "Layoffs sure don't help none." He pointed out.

"Longest I ever went without training was five months," he recalled: "Getting in shape after that, I regretted every mile of it."

On the other hand, for Joe was full of other hands this morning, the army doesn't ruin one's condition as much as might be expected.

"I got to feeling good quick while training for Conn," he declared.

And speaking of Conn, the boy whom Joe was to have fought until the army gave it the gong, Louis doesn't think Billy's chances look too brilliant either.

"Probably be some youngster coming along who can beat everybody," was the way he put it.

While Joe waited in the lobby (he had spent the night chatting with an old friend, Cab Calloway, the orchestra man) surprised citizens rubbed the sleep from their eyes, and then hurried over to grasp his hand.

Invariably it was "how are you, Mister Louis?" with never a glance at those sergeant's stripes on his arm.

When it was announced in Berlin that an honor would be awarded to the boy or girl who performed the most meritorious service in dealing with crop vermin, one boy killed 3,450 potato beetles in a day and was adjudged the winner. His reward—a photograph of Hitler.

First DUSO Loop Gridiron Battle Scheduled Here

Investigations Are Still Being Made of Other Middletown Players; Team Misses Gobeo

While stories were still being circulated that a sweeping investigation of other Middletown High School football players who's age limits were questionable was being made, Coach Ted Conwicke's once-defeated Kingston High School gridders will play host to Port Jervis Friday night of this week at the municipal stadium.

The loss of Tony Gobeo to the Middie squad has already made damaging blows to the hopes of Johnny Bateman's club to go through the 1942 campaign unbeaten. Last Saturday afternoon in Poughkeepsie Sammy Kalloch's eleven routed Middletown by 14 to 0. Right now the Middies appear to be in for additional tough afternoons unless Bateman can find a good replacement for the valuable Gobeo.

Although the mentioned investigations of other Middie players has been kept a secret so far, the Middletown High School authorities promise a quick and thorough view of all players in question. From an unauthorized source, it was declared that the authorities might dig up one or two others over the limit gridders now with the Middletown varsity.

Kingston Has Problem

However, the Maroon and White squad has its own worry right now. And that is to build up enough power to meet the Port Jervis eleven which comes here Friday night under the stadium arclights. The problem of Middletown can wait for a week or more until Kingston takes care of Port this week and Poughkeepsie next Saturday afternoon. Those two games will be enough to take into consideration at once.

Friday night will find the Maroons bumping into a decidedly improved Port Jervis unit which has been idle since blanking Liberty by 12 to 0 two weeks ago. Coach Ted Conwicke isn't letting his boys forget the terrific pasting handed to them by Mont Pleasant and with these two factors taking the limelight, it is quite possible that local fans will see a different ball club operating for Kingston this week.

Port Jervis, although somewhat weak on passes in the defense department, has a rip-snorting ground attack which tore Liberty's defense into shreds earlier in the season. Port's main ground gainers are Ted Salmon, Frankie Adams, John Lynch and Steve Bullock. All have seen varsity work before and the quartet represents a tough secondary for any eleven to face.

While needing some work to brush up on the art of pass defense, Port itself has a good aerial game with Teddy Salmon as the No. 1 chucker. Art Clark and D. Creer, ends, are smooth pass snatchers and may be able to backfire Kingston's supposedly strong passing game into its face, providing Salmon and company start right. Since that Liberty game Coach Lou Horseman has been giving his backfield men plenty of work on batting down passes thrown by the Port reserves and reports reach here that the Tri-Staters won't be caught flat-footed by any notion of taking to the air that Kingston pass flingers might have.

Improvement Expected

In the 33 to 0 rout by Mont Pleasant at the stadiumh about two weeks ago Kingston couldn't form any stiff ground attack or passing attack. This week, however, this phase should find the Maroons better equipped to do a lot of damage through the air with Leland Boice on the throwing end. Boice can throw a lot of good aerials and if he gets the proper help from his mates there's no telling how much ground the Kingston team could gain by these passes.

Kingston also has had a long lay-off from competition with other teams but as far as stiff practice sessions are concerned, Coach Conwicke has been giving his stalwarts plenty of work and that menu will continue right up until Thursday night. The usual light practice is slated for Friday afternoon.

This is the first DUSO League engagement for the Maroons this year and although a league championship for the club seems far-fetched, there's always a probability of anything happening. Middletown, last year's winner, is surely side-tracked for the moment without Gobeo. A "dark-horse" club like Kingston, Port Jervis or Newburgh, may creep up and grab it before the 1942 campaign goes into the books.

Gun Club Will Meet

The last meeting before the hunting season opens will be held on Wednesday evening, October 14 by the Hurley Gun Club. President of the club, Joseph Armater has called the meeting for 7:30 o'clock and will be held in the Town Hall. Committees appointed during the year will make reports and the social committee will give a report on what social functions have been planned for the club during the winter months. It is hoped that every member will make an effort to attend the meeting.

Collection Scraps

(By The Associated Press)

Ardmore, Okla.—Jesse Mayrant went looking for scrap and had to be salvaged himself.

He and some friends found old iron embedded in an asphalt "lake." They waited for the sun to thaw the asphalt. Then Mayrant ventured out and mired down to his knees.

He was rescued by firemen using planks to support their weight.

Southport, N. C.—A motorist, surprised at seeing a 1,000-gallon tank rolling down the road toward him apparently without any means of locomotion, pulled aside to let it pass.

Three small boys, completely hidden from the front because of the tank's size, were trundling it along to their school's scrap pile.

Memphis, Tenn.—A 79-year-old widow here at the home for the aged contributed her mite to the scrap pile—13 ounces of old metal.

"It isn't much but I hope it will help," she said as she placed on the scrap heap her picture frame, belt buckle, pin tray, an old brooch, and some knitting needles she had had 50 years.

New York—More than 30,000 pounds of scrap metal collected backstage at the Radio City Music Hall in Rockefeller Center will be added to Manhattan's junk heap Wednesday—and how.

The Rockettes, the Music Hall's famous precision dancers, will help load the scrap on trucks right outside the stage door. The salvaged metal included:

The innards of four old pianos, a dismantled three-ton proscenium arch and four gigantic sound horns.

Two U. S. Destroyers Launched at Kearny

Kearny, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—Two U. S. destroyers, the Philip and the Renshaw, were launched today at the shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company.

First down the ways was the Philip, sponsored by Mrs. Barrett Philip of the naval training station, Sampson, N. Y., and named for her father-in-law, the late Rear Admiral John Woodward Philip, U. S. N. It reached the water at 12:03 p. m. (Eastern War Time).

Following at 12:23 p. m. was the Renshaw, honoring the late Commander William B. Renshaw, U. S. N. Miss Dorothy Lillian Renshaw of Mamaroneck, N. Y., a great-great-grandniece of the commander, christened this vessel.

In the Civil War, the late Commander Renshaw was commended by Admiral Farragut for "the handsome manner in which he managed his vessel," the Westfield, in operations with the mortar fleet below New Orleans and on the Mississippi river.

Commander Renshaw refused to surrender to the Confederate forces at Galveston harbor on January 1, 1863. Instead, he set fire to the craft and died in the explosion that followed.

A previous destroyer named Renshaw was scrapped in accordance with the London Naval Treaty in 1936.

Saboteurs Are Buried

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Evening Star said today that the six Nazi saboteurs who were executed at the district jail August 8 had been buried in a "Potter's Field" in the District of Columbia. Unpainted, wooden tombstones bearing only a number, ranging from 276 to 281, inclusive, are the only grave markers, the paper said, but added: "From a reliable source it was learned that No. 276 is the grave of Edward John Kerling, leader of the group of four enemy agents who landed from a U-boat on the Florida coast last July and shortly afterward were rounded up along with four other saboteurs by the F.B.I. The other graves contain the bodies of: No. 277, Herbert Hans Haupt; No. 278, Richard Quirin; No. 279, Werner Thiel; No. 280, Hermann Otto Neubauer; No. 281, Heinrich Harm Heinck."

Reds Repulse Nazis Around Grozny; Stalingrad Lull Ends

Nazi shock troops would be withdrawn to permit dive bombers and heavy siege guns to batter the city into surrender.

The Soviet command said three attacks failed to crack the city's defense lines.

Other major developments:

Malta strikes back—Britain's Mediterranean island of Malta, known as the most heavily bombed spot in the world, was becoming a graveyard for Axis raiders today as British defenders chalked up a 48-hour score of at least 39 enemy planes destroyed.

British headquarters said R.A.F. fighters shot down 24 German and Italian planes yesterday, setting a new daylight record, and damaged about 50. Fifteen others had been shot down Sunday.

"The enemy took an even bigger beating from Malta's defenses than in any single day previously," the British command said.

Official figures listed more than 1,000 Axis planes destroyed in vain attempts to knock out the tiny island stronghold. Since the war began, Malta's air-raid sirens have sounded more than 3,000 times.

Reinforcements Are Moved

On the basis of past performances, the fury of the Axis attack indicated that the Germans were moving reinforcements across the Mediterranean to bolster Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's stalled armies in Egypt. Malta has long been a thorn in the side of Axis convoys en route to the North African battle front.

Egyptian campaign—All quiet.

Western air war—R.A.F. bombers pounded war foundries in northwest Germany overnight, and the British radio again warned the French that it was important now as never before for every Frenchman to be prepared for operations of the allied air forces, navies and armies.

The broadcast warned the French to keep away from German headquarters, barracks, rail centers, repair yards and the fortified zones.

"Shackling war"—Prime Minister Churchill, charging the German government with violating the Geneva convention in its treatment of British captives, told Parliament today that the British government never had countenanced any general order for the tying up of prisoners on the field of battle.

Churchill said the government had asked Switzerland, representing the interests of both Germany and Britain, to protest to the Nazis against the breach of the Geneva treaty and "urge them to desist from it."

If Germany agrees, he said, "the counter measures of similar nature which the (British) government felt themselves forced to take (against German prisoners) will immediately be withdrawn."

Honor Roll Is Presented Monday To West Shokan

C. H. Weidner Accepts Roll Presented to Community by Mr. and Mrs. L. Kelder

An honor roll presented to the community of West Shokan by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelder in honor of the young men who have gone from that locality to enter the armed forces of the United States, was unveiled and dedicated on Columbus Day. The dedication and presentation address was given by County Judge J. Edward Conway who is also serving as chairman for the Ulster county U. S. O. campaign.

Charles H. Weidner, a veteran of the first World War in which he served in the United States Navy, accepted the honor roll on behalf of the people of the community.

The program was opened with the call to the Colors by West Shokan Boy Scout Troop, No. 63, followed by "The Star Spangled Banner." Acting as master of ceremonies was E. Clayton Burgher whose introductory remarks were followed by a service song by D. Kelder. The unveiling of the honor roll was by two "Victory mothers," Mrs. Grace Doonan and Mrs. Adeline J. Kelder after which Judge Conway dedicated the honor roll and presented it to the community.

In his remarks Judge Conway said that "civilization for the second time in a single generation seems to be tottering on the brink of destruction. Force and conquest are the order of the day and the military might of the Axis fanatics was everywhere directed against justice and human rights. The helpless and the innocent are murdered in cold blood to sate the appetite for power of war-crazed dictators."

Continuing in part Judge Conway said, "From this little village and its environs young men have laid aside their daily tasks, postponed their plans and dreams and hopes of peace and happiness to lay at the altar of their nation, their hearts, their minds and their very lives, that America may remain the land of the free. We have come to dedicate this roll of honor, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Kelder, and this ceremony becomes in essence a demonstration of patriotism, a demonstration of love. It is a demonstration of patriotism because we pause to commend in highest terms those young men who by their answer to their nation's call have performed their highest duty to their country. It is a demonstration of patriotism to those here present, who though they stay behind, stand behind our fighting forces with heart and hand and mind and will, united to the end that our beloved country shall emerge a victor. This honor roll is but the emblem of our love, our confidence and our loyalty to our nation and our boys who have caught the torch of the spirit of America and now hold it high and bear it nobly that it may continue to be the priceless heritage of all succeeding generations."

"This afternoon as we remember these boys who stand ready to give all that victory may be ours, let us view the perfection of their patriotism in peace and in war. Let us emulate the excess of their self-sacrifice and the nobility of their courage and face the future with confidence imbued with their spirit and firmly resolving, with them, that Old Glory and all that it symbolizes and all that it actualizes shall forever continue to be the banner of freedom and light."

In accepting the honor roll Mr. Weidner said:

"Judge Conway and Friends:

In behalf of the townspeople of the West Shokan community I accept this Honor Roll.

To us who shall pass it time and time again in our daily errands this memento should be a symbol of our high esteem for these boys who have been called to fight our battles on land, and sea, and in the air.

To those whose names are inscribed thereon it should be a token of our loyalty and devotion to them.

But perhaps it must be more than this if the sacrifices these boys make are not to be in vain.

Let us make this Honor Roll a constant reminder of the duty we have here on the home front to work hard, think clearly, and act courageously — first, to help bring this terrible war to an early end, and second—and quite as important—to defend and maintain our way of life and our institutions for ourselves and for these our sons when they return.

We people of this community, your friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelder, thank you for this appropriate gift in the same fine spirit of friendliness and sincerity as you gave it."

The ceremonies concluded with the song, "God Bless America", by the school children of West Shokan and Bushkill districts and the assemblage.

Car Owners in East Will Give Tire Information

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Registration for gasoline rationing will begin November 9 in all parts of the country except the already-rationed east.

The Office of Price Administration, announcing this today, said that while car owners in the east need not re-register, they must, like the rest of the country, provide additional information concerning the tires they own.

In gearing gasoline rationing more closely to the tire conservation program, O. P. A. made these innovations in the plan now operated in the east:

Periodic tire inspections as to requirement for a renewal of rations, as well as any application for tires or recaps.

Certification that the applicant owns no more than five tires for any vehicle.

Revocation or reduction of rations for drivers who exceed the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit.

The registration beginning November 9 will be for "A" coupon books, with the rationing plan to go into effect November 22.

Each applicant will be required to list the serial number of all tires he owns. If he lists more than five tires for each car, he will be denied an "A" book until he shows he has disposed of the excess tires.

O. P. A. said it would announce shortly details of the periodic tire inspection program.

All car owners registering next month will receive "A" books containing coupons for mileage at the rate of 2,800 per year. Applications for supplemental rations, which the OPA said would receive "most careful scrutiny," may be filed any time after the basic "A" book has been received.

To qualify for supplemental ration, the applicant must show that he needs more than 150 miles per month of occupational driving, and that he has formed a car-sharing club for carrying three or more persons, in addition to himself, to and from work regularly.

If the applicant has not formed a car-sharing club, he must prove that alternative means of transportation are inadequate, and that it is impossible for him to carry others.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson said the plan was designed to reduce the national average passenger car mileage to 5,000 a year, as recommended by the Baruch committee.

"In order to achieve this average," Henderson said "we must remember that only essential driving can be permitted, and that the vast majority of cars will receive less than the average mileage. Through this patriotic curtailment of driving, it will be possible for this country to live within its rubber supply and to carry on our activities essential to winning of the war".

Of the 2,800 miles a year driving (based on 15 miles to the gallon) provided by the "A" book, 1,800 miles is presumed to be for occupational driving, and the remainder for "necessary family driving."
